Music Appreciation Broadened To 40 Compositions

By Mr. A. George Pascale Director of Music,

East Haven Schools (This is the second in a series of articles by Mr. Pascale, on Music Appreciation.)

Music appreciation, which was limited to seven or eight compositions, has now been broadened out to forty. The fifth grade have folk-songs and grades 6, 7, and 8 have classical pieces. Due to no records in the schools, the piano has been a big aid to music appreciation. Some of the fifth grade folk-songs include, American folk-song, "Old Black Joe"; Italian folk-song, Santa Lucia, and Russian folk-song "The Volga Boatmen". Those of the upper grades include, sixth, "Anitra's Dance", by Grieg; Shubert's "Serenade"; seventh, "Pilgrim's Chorus", Wagner; "Stars and Stripes", Sousa; and eighth, "Narcissus", Nevin; "Moment Musicale", Shubert, and the "March Militaire", Shubert. The high school is now the possessor of a set of bass drunis, acouired through the co-operation of the high school students.

Pictured above in the harbor of Brest, France, is the Spanish loyalist submarine C-2, left stranded by its crew which divided into Red and anti-Red groups. A rebel plot to seize the submersible failed and the boat in now awaiting a new crew to take it back to Valencia, Spain.

PEN VERSUS SWORD

That the influence of the pen is immeasurably superior to that of, not only the sword, but also of every other visible agency, is a self-evident truth.

The influence of the pen can be constructive or destructive. Far more lasting damage has been done by untruths and evil communication written by the pen than by the material damage done by the combined wars of all human history.

The sword cannot upbuild, the pen can. The sword cannot construct, the pen can. The power of the press can be used to ponder to the tastes, even destructive tastes, of the people for a price. When there appears upon the newspaper horizon a newspaper even as unostentatious as The East Haven Citizen, which has for its fixed policy the Angeli. refusal to publish anything but that which it is purposed to upbuild the community and its citizens, it is worthy of a supporting hand.

Really fortunate is the community that has such a newspaper. And we want you as a representative East Haven citizen.

By the power of the publicity that this paper can give we can, together improve real estate and home values and personal enjoyment in East Haven. We welcome news from you. We will publish continued articles and valuable facts of information.
