

Retail Merchants Request Open Forum To Discuss Business Problems

At Least 30 Business Men Would Organize Retail Merchants' Association To Direct Activities For Good Of Town In General—Meeting Monday Evening.

Action is being taken to organize some form of Retail Merchants' Association in Branford. In response to requests the Branford Review is sponsoring a meeting Monday evening at 8:15, in the Community House, if it is available, for the purpose of bringing together the retailers to discuss their problems and elect officers if the formation of such a body meets with the approval of the merchants.

Thirty business men have expressed a hope that an association be sponsored and it is hoped that all will attend.

Since the Chamber of Commerce disbanded several years ago many have expressed regret that another group was not formed beneficial to the town in general.

The success of the group will depend on its leadership and objectives.

In the open forum Monday evening it is expected that the out-of-town-peddler menace will come up for consideration.

There is considerable talk, too, of possible re-routing traffic to reduce the road hazard and at the same time direct business into Branford.

Guilford Town Caucus Will Be Spirited

A spirited contest is promised at the coming Republican town caucus in Guilford. The majority of the Town Committee will support Leslie Dudley, present incumbent, for nomination as first selectman, but a minority faction is offering the name of Norman W. Knowles for that position. They are supporting most of the regular ticket except that they have named Daniel C. Walden of Sachem's Head for the Board of Assessors.

The dissenters, who include among their ranks the Guilford Taxpayers Association, are offering Mr. Knowles on his excellent record as head of the borough, recently consolidated with the town. They point out that during his five years in office he kept down the tax rate and reduced the debt by $8,000. It is also urged that he would make an excellent first executive as a business man, half owner of a business which pays $30,000 annually in wages to Guilford people.

The insurgent movement has gained considerable support in the outlying sections of town by including in their program the giving to these sections of a larger voice in town affairs. The placing of Daniel C. Walden of Sachem's Head on their ticket is a recognition of the fact that the shore community pays large taxes to the town, although it has heretofore been unrecognized politically.

The outcome of the caucus is awaited with particular interest, since Guilford is normally a strongly Republican town, and nomination on the G. O. P. ticket is equivalent to election.

"I started in the business when the movies started in 1896 and they surely started very slowly. I, at that time, showed the first moving pictures that were shown in Connecticut or in the New England States.

"During my time I have seen the importance and expansions of the movies increased from that commencement, when it was so limited it could practically all be carried around in a suit case, until now it has become one of the greatest branches of business and probably one of the greatest money-making lines of

"The Daddy of Them All" Purchased First Films Personally

From Thomas A. Edison—Showings Were 50 Feet And Advertised At $15.00.

In it he says that he had a complete line of all the films first made by Thomas A. Edison, which he purchased personally at his phonograph factory at West Orange, N. J.

"As to the subjects (and I have some of these old first films yet) they were necessarily mostly very simple—yet at that time were thought very wonderful, as they were a great novelty."

In an interview with Mr. Edison, the latter stated that he made no money on the sale of films, because his lawyers bills were so heavy. In his many suits defending his patents and copyrights, he had to fight for his rights in the courts, and his expenses were very great. "But," said Mr. Edison, "I wasn't so anxious to make money. I only wanted to break even."

Mr. Edison expressed the hope that some day the movies would be shown as cheap as two or three cents. Continued on page eight

Major Compton Guest Speaker At Luncheon

The state feels it must demand remedial action of the pollution of public waterways in and around Branford according to the following letter from the State Water Commission, S. H. Wadhams, director. The letter was received by First Selectman Gurdon Bradley.

"I have seen the result of the vote on the sewerage system in the Hartford Courant of this morning. Naturally, it was a disappointment to learn that this urgently-needed improvement is not to be voluntarily undertaken. It has been the policy of this commission to issue mandatory orders in matters of this kind only when all other means have failed.

"I regret that I could not have had an opportunity of placing before the meeting the position of the State Water Commission. I wish to assure you that there is no personal resentment because of the refusal to permit me to speak. Rather, it seems to me that sympathy should be extended to the taxpayers of Branford, because they were denied an opportunity to have the state's view of this matter explained to them. That view, briefly, is that pollution of public waterways in and around Branford has reached such a stage that the state feels it must demand remedial action.

"It is unfortunate that this action by the voters appears to mean the loss to the town of $191,000 gift of funds already allocated by the federal government. Even more unfortunate for the taxpayers than the loss of this sum is the necessity that they must now assume the whole burden of financing a sewerage system locally.

"It seems possible, if the citizens present last night had realized before the vote was taken that the final determination as to whether or not raw sewage is to continue to be discharged into the state's waters does not rest with them, the result might have been different. The real question before the meeting it appears to me, was whether the voters wished to accept a grant of 45 per cent of the cost of remedying sewage pollution from the federal government, or whether it should all be borne locally.

"Another matter which I particularly wished to make clear to the citizens of Branford was that the project has been initiated and pressed by the state and that the officials of the town have acted only as they were required to do by the order issued to the town by this commission on September 22, 1937.

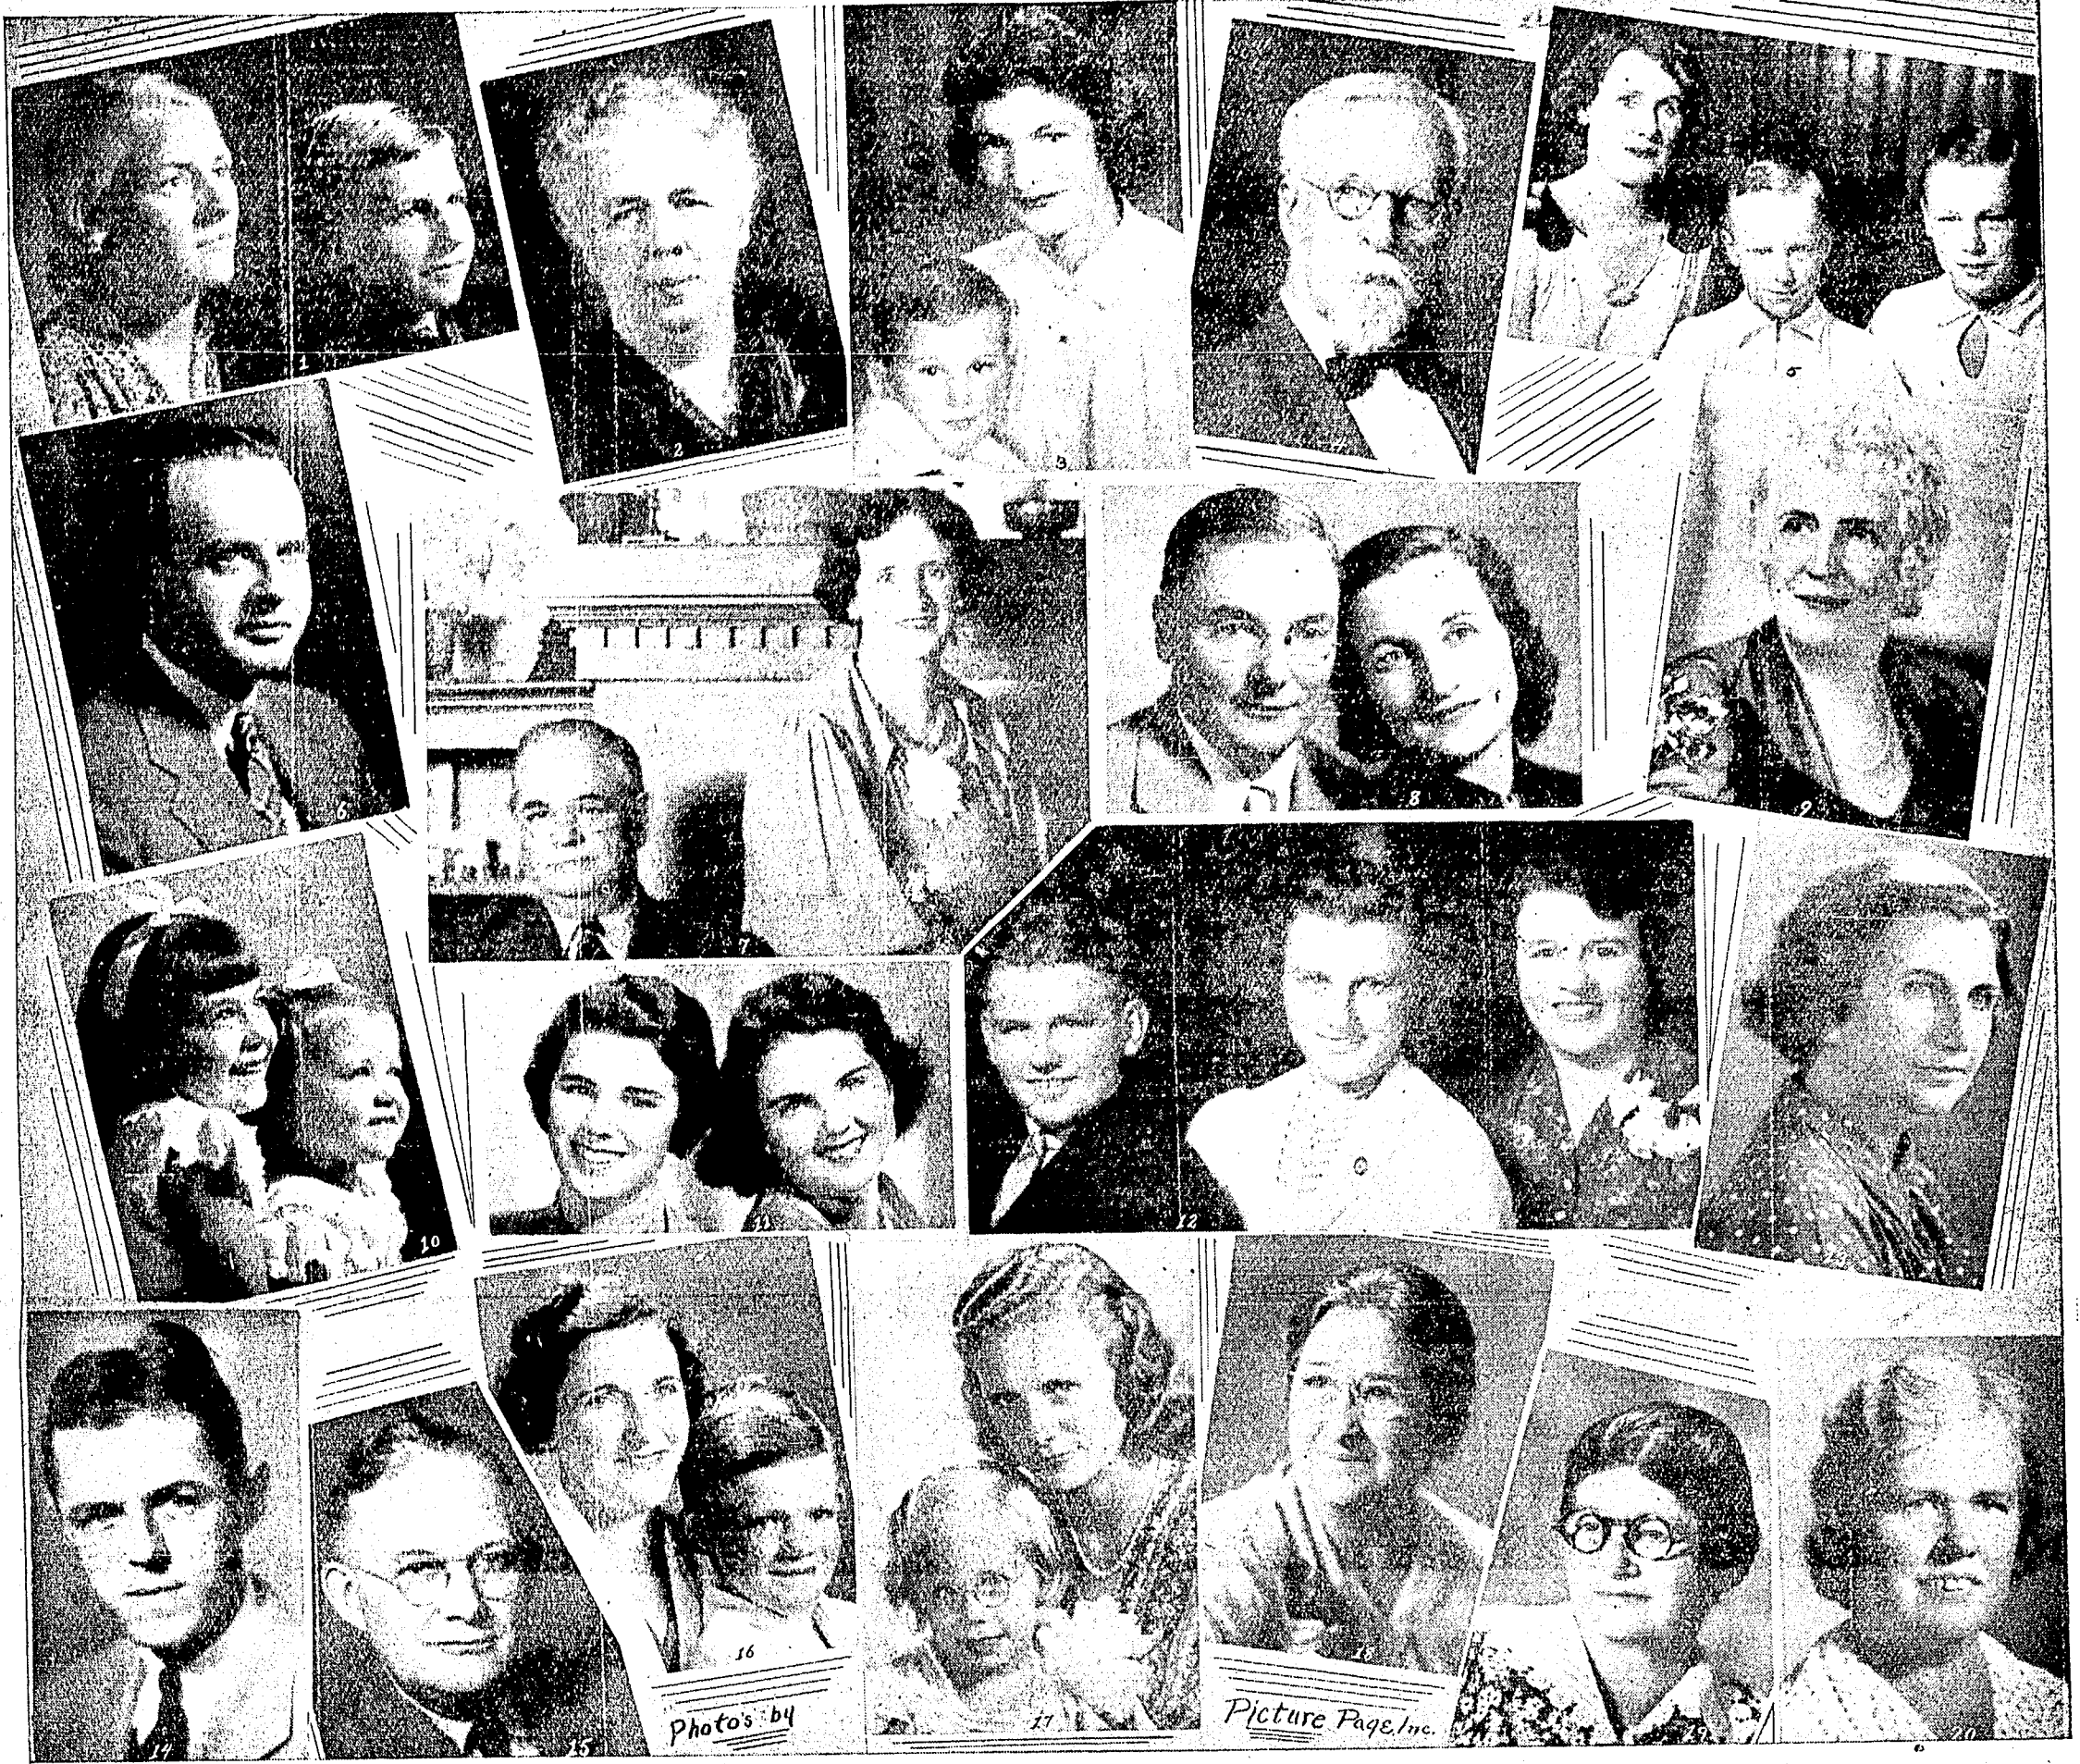

"Certain questions have been raised regarding Chapter 33A of the Revised Statutes and whether or not under the provisions of this chapter, Branford has authority to expend funds on sewerage works. Some hold that, if a town acts under the authority of this chapter, it has no choice except to finance the work by means of revenue bonds. These questions will be submitted to the attorney-general for opinion. Not until his views are known will it be possible for this commission to decide just what the next step is to be.

"It should be the opinion of the attorney-general's office that a special act of the legislature is necessary before Branford can legally expend funds on sewerage works, the matter will of necessity be held in abeyance until the next session of the General Assembly."
