Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Erlerson of Terhuene Avenue have been entertaining the Rev. Karl Martin of Ridgefield Park, N. J. and Mr. and Mrs. Porfors of Bridgeport who were here for the 25th anniversary exercises in Tabor-Lutheran church

East Haven's town meeting Monday evening turned out to be a political debate between Town Counsel Edward L. Reynolds and Democratic Town Chairman James F. Hines.

At the conclusion of a two-hour session the Board of Finance adopted a tax rate of 22.5 mills for the coming year instead of the proposed raise of five mills. The measure was passed after Hines attacked assertions by Reynolds that the increase was made necessary by expenditures of the previous Democratic administration.

County Commissioner Robert H. Gerrish, also a former selectman moved that the tax rate be set for 22 1/2 mills, the remaining difference represented by a $50,000 tax anticipation note to be borrowed or, to be sought by applying at the next session of the General Assembly for aid in floating said loan. The note runs until April 20.

By figures of the administration the rate should be raised to 27 1/2 but the Board of Finance parred where ever it was humanly possible figuring a 85% collection of taxes when the best ever collected has been 74%.

Judge Arthur Connor rose to say that voters were simply putting off the evil day "Why not face the facts as we have them? We are not interested in who is to blame. We are interested in how and what we are going to do about it."

Mr. Tipping asked how much increase had been made in the salaries of town officials and Mr. Hines quoted these figures paid to officials:

1936-1937	$5,108.18
1937-38	$5,508.60
1938	$5,085.00

The increase being obviously slight.

Mr. Hines on several occasion took the floor to offer statistics defending the town's financial status at the end of the Democratic administration and to make criticisms of the present administration.

He charged over-expenditures on WPA costs and materials saying that the WPA and state buy stone bid .70 a yard but East Haven pays 1.00. On 13,000 gallons of gasoline the town paid full posted price.

Criticism was leveled at the fire-house projects and the failure to purchase the Tacy property.

Hines defended the high school cost with figures secured from (Continued on Page Seven)

POLITICS BY RADIO

If we are not greatly mistaken, the present political campaign is going to result in a reevaluation by political strategists of the usefulness of radio in their campaigning.

One virtue the businessman can certainly hold to possess when it is apparently lacking in other quarters is the ability to sit down around a conference table and dispassionately try to solve the problems of the day.

We are not crying down the usefulness of radio in capitalism. It has become, quite obviously, a major element of the political life of the nation.

Coach Johnny Knecht's Branford High School football team opens its Housatonic Valley League season at Hammer Field Saturday afternoon at 2:30 facing a strong Stratford eleven in what promises to be a desperate struggle for both school outfits.

The Branford Laurels went down to defeat against the much heavier and more experienced Fair Haven All Stars, composed of all Shelton Ends players who have played the other big Laurel teams of recent years 14-0.

Join Laurels Membership

The Branford Laurels Association has a pressing need of members to meet the expenses incidental to equipping each man with a football uniform this season. Since this money must be added to a few arials to their smooth running attack and pushed over the hills.

The enlarging of the East Haven High School athletic schedule by the organization of a football team in 1939 is being advocated by enthusiastic members of the student body and the newly organized club.

Coach Knecht will depend upon Barba, Svenson and Tamalovich for his running offense and will depend upon Olson and J. Ward contribute on the ends as pass receivers.

At Wellington tomorrow evening an official Housatonic Valley League meeting will be held at the Alumni basketball gymnasium.

Probable lineup:
Stratford
J. Ward D. Smith
J. Johnson Ox

For football fans who don't give a hoot about machine-like football offenses, the Dartmouth 1938 football promises to have it nothing more, a crowd pleasing attack that packs plenty of potential thrills in the line of long runs and passing brilliancy.

The Housatonic league games are with Stratford, Shelton, Derby and Milford. All games start at 2:30 P. M.

With Tony Mott, Branford's high school brilliant, in the Yale backfield offense, the Dartmouth 1938 football promises to have it nothing more, a crowd pleasing attack that packs plenty of potential thrills in the line of long runs and passing brilliancy.

The unique crafts of the cable splicer—whose work plays such an important part in restoring hurricane-wrecked telephone service in Connecticut—is graphically shown in these pictures. At the left, after new poles have been erected, a strong steel wire is suspended on them, and a man "rides the line" placing rings at regular intervals. Then the new cable is piled through the rings. At the right, above, is shown a splicing crew at work; each individual wire must be identified in both the cables that are being joined, then they must be twisted together, properly insulated from each other, and finally all the wires are covered with a lead sleeve and sealed with solder to make the splice waterproof.

First Major Game Test Saturday For 1938 Dartmouth Grid Eleven In 19th Meeting With Princeton

Princeton will field a team capable of putting the untied line from the hills to an acid test. Since 1897 Princeton holds the edge in the series with 12-win against four losses. The contest has twice ended in a deadlock. Last fall when the Dartmouth team picked up a 38-3 victory, it was the first time since 1913 when the school, then called the New Hampshire school, that the Brown and White football team won back to the hill. It was in 1905 that Dartmouth squeaked out with their first win of the series, 6-0. Princeton was also optimistic and could see nothing but bright lights ahead.

Some of our subscribers have asked how it happens that their neighbor's telephone is working while their own has not yet been restored to service.

Your Neighbor's Telephone Service... And Your Own

One explanation is that a single telephone cable serving a neighborhood contains many pairs of wires, and if the cable has been bruised or partially cut some wires may be out of order while others continue to work. Or your neighborhood may be served by two cables one of which was affected by the hurricane while the other was not.

In certain less thickly settled districts, where the separate wires are run on cross-arms, falling trees or limbs may have broken your line and missed your neighbor's line. Again, the service loop from the pole to your house may be broken while your neighbor's is not.

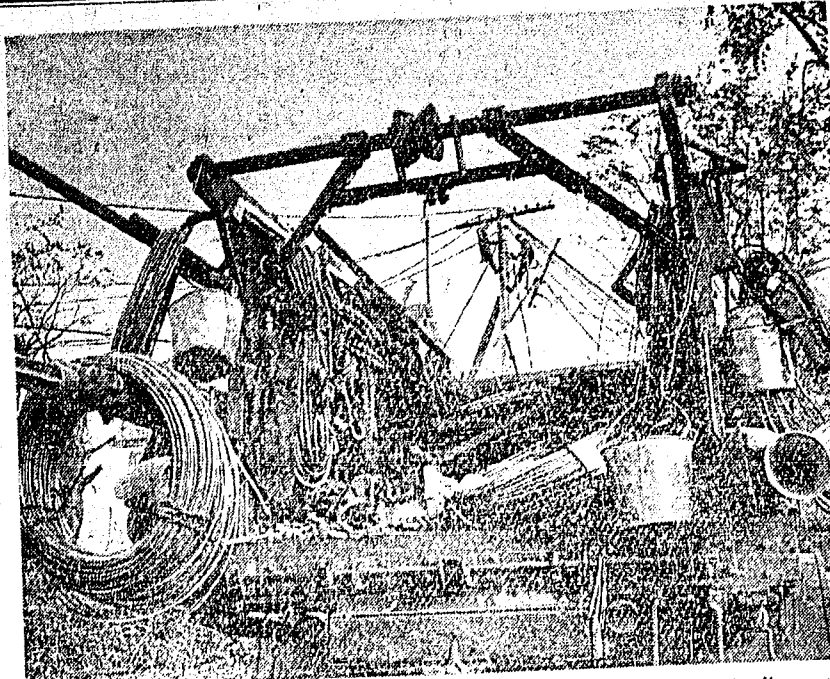

In every case, of course, telephone wires must be repaired one by one. We are bending every effort to put them ALL in working order as quickly as possible—yours as well as your neighbor's.

HAPPINESS PRESCRIPTION
New York (IPS)—Work is the greatest of man's pleasures, Dr. Thomas Darlington, former Health Commissioner of New York City said on his 80th birthday here recently.

Pertrubed lest this country was turning too far toward the left, Dr. Darlington, still spry and alert, warned that the United States was veering from the safe "middle course" upon which it was founded. "We are swinging too far to the left," he said. "We are getting away from the principles for which my ancestors fought. "Every one should work as long as he can," he went on. "If a man retires, as a rule to go to pieces right away. I don't believe anybody should ever give up work. To do so is a great mistake. Man should find his greatest happiness in work."

DEFINITION OF A GENTLEMAN
A Gentleman is a man who is clean inside and outside, who neither looks up to the rich nor down on the poor, who can lose without squealing, who can win without bragging, considerate to women, children and old people, who is too brave to be too generous to cheat, and too sensible to loaf, who takes his share of the world's goods and lets other people take theirs.

One of the great "sights"—at the New York Worlds Fair 1939 is to be the model of a human eye so large that it will permit several visitors to enter it at the same time. It is too look out through its huge lens—the pupil—upon an ever animated part of the Fair grounds.

Phone Repairs Crews Face Difficulties

Immediately after the storm, a maximum of 800 telephones in Branford were out of service, 32 per cent of the total of 2,401 telephones in the exchange on September 1. By last Monday, October 3, the telephones out of service had been reduced to 295, or 12 per cent of Branford's total.

Telephone repair crews in many parts of the state are still forced to fight their way through fallen trees, high water and washed out roads as they carry on the gigantic task of restoring the state's telephone service.

Damage to both local and long distance lines as a result of the devastating hurricane and flood of a week ago was the most severe in the history of the Southern New England Telephone Company, and even now officials are unable to estimate the cost of reconstruction or to predict when service will be normal.

Poles and overhead wires felt the full fury of the hurricane, while underground cables suffered the ravage of the flood. As a result, approximately one-fourth of all the telephones in the state were out of service for some period after the storm, and approximately 40,000 are not working now.

The end of the hurricane did not work the end of causes of telephone trouble. As the streets were cleared cables which although resting on the ground were in working order were bruised or broken, thus cutting off service to many more telephones. For example, officials explained that as late as Monday of this week 2,082 telephones were restored to service within 12 hours in one area alone, but there was a net gain of only 500 back in service because of the constant stream of additional trouble reports.

Commenting on this subject, A. F. Brooks, vice-president and general manager of the Company stated: "We are forced to face the fact that in certain cases such as that of a community connected by cable over a space of considerable distance, the delay in restoration is likely to be more a matter of weeks than of days, since the task to be accomplished is that of building a pole line, hanging the cable and the splicing of wires therein."

Very few exchanges in the state were completely isolated from telephone communication with outside points at any time, although for several days there was delay in reaching certain points because only a few emergency toll circuits were available. These circuits are being restored daily. Because of the disaster the volume of both local and toll calls in every exchange was greater than ever before in a similar space of time.

Telephone service was restored first to police and fire departments, to hospitals, utilities and in large measures to individuals whose service is important to the health and safety of communities. Many cases of individual need for telephone service occasioned by sickness or other emergencies were met insofar as was humanly possible.

Augmenting the Company's own forces in the reconstruction work are 33 telephone line crews, with trucks, tools and equipment, 53 cable splicing crews and 250 installers and repairmen from other telephone companies in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio and the District of Columbia. More than 2,000 men are now clearing wreckage from the wires and cables, replacing some 2,500 broken poles, hanging and splicing miles of cables, stringing millions of feet of wire and restoring lead-in wires to subscribers' premises.

Supplies of poles, wire and other necessary equipment were rushed into the state by train, motor truck and airplanes as it became evident that more than a year's normal supply of some materials would be needed in a few days. Through the country-wide resources of the Bell System, supplies are readily available for everything that goes into the make-up of telephone plant. Moreover, the materials and methods are so standardized that their use is familiar to men of all telephone companies, officials stated.

Official Song Suggested For Connecticut

There isn't a Connecticut official song as far as is known but there is one that comes close to it.

The words are from the pen of Frederick W. Orr, of Hartford and New Haven, executive vice-president of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce. The melody adapted to the tune of Auld Lang Syne.

This song is being recommended by the Connecticut Publicity Commission, investigating to find which which have come from all parts of the country asking about an official state song.

It came to light when the commission, investigating to find whether the State ever adopted a tune, found Mr. Orr had written his piece two years ago.

Following is Mr. Orr's composition:

"CONNECTICUT"
(To the tune of Auld Lang Syne)
Dedicated to the 37th Annual Meeting and Banquet of The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce

My thoughts are ever with you as around the world I roam,
I find no place of beauty like Connecticut my home,
Her sparkling rivers flowing gently onward to the sea
Oft bore me on their bosom back in childhood's memory,
Her hills, her pleasant valleys and her meadows rich with dew,
Gave priceless strength and courage while from boy to man I grew.

CHORUS
Connecticut—Connecticut—the land that gave me birth,
Connecticut—Connecticut the grandest spot on earth,
Thy hills and vales, thy age old tales, thy sacred history,
Thy priceless pearls, the boys and girls, we live again with thee.

I've wandered down in Dixie, California's golden shore,
From pole to pole and tropic isle
I've wandered o'er and o'er,
But ever in my dreams I see Connecticut so fair,
The song of old Connecticut is with me everywhere.

I long to roam her hills and vales, to hear the bluebirds call,
Connecticut my fairy land, the fairest of them all.

CHORUS
Connecticut—Connecticut the land that gave me birth,
Connecticut—Connecticut the grandest spot on earth,
Thy hills and vales, thy age old tales, thy sacred history,
Thy priceless pearls, the boys and girls, we live again with thee.

Federal Old Age Death Payments Due To Storm

Every facility of the New Haven field office of the Social Security Board is available in connection with death payments of Federal old age insurance to close relatives of hurricane and flood victims, it was announced today by Raymond E. Elliott, Acting Manager. His statement was as follows:

"Many wage earners and family breadwinners whose jobs were covered by Federal old-age insurance lost their lives in the recent hurricane and flood catastrophe in this area.

"The widow, widower, or close relatives of such wage earners would be entitled to file a claim for a death payment of Federal old-age insurance, amounting to 3 1/2 percent of wages received by the deceased for employment after 1936 while under the age 65.

"During the past month, death and lump-sum payments of Federal old-age insurance in Connecticut averaged $69.50. In many cases, families where death has taken the breadwinner may be in urgent need of the cash represented by this type of payment.

"Any person eligible to file a claim for one of these payments will receive immediate cooperation by the field office of the Social Security Board, 1044 Chapel St., New Haven, in completing a proper claim. The average time required for certifying one of these payments after the claim is received in Washington is only about ten days. Every effort will be made to give the best possible service to potential claimants.

"This announcement is directed especially to ten communities, including East Haven.

After fifteen days he arrived at what are now called the Hawaiian Islands where he gathered a native crew and again set sail. Fate again intervened when two days later he was captured by the British aboard the Cherub, who eventually put him ashore at Valparaiso. Months later he reached New York, leaving behind him adventures even more exciting than those which followed the famous mutiny on the Bounty.

South Seas Adventure

Stranger than fiction is the story of Lieutenant John M. Gamble of the U. S. Marines, who in a few brief months experienced more excitement and adventure than most men find in a lifetime.

This gallant officer fought under Commodore David Porter aboard the Essex in the Pacific during the War of 1812. Several British ships were taken, and with a few men Gamble was left to guard three of the captured vessels in the Marquesas Islands. Porter then sailed aboard the Essex for Valparaiso with one of his prizes, renamed the Essex Jr., while another vessel left for the United States with some of the spoils of war.

No sooner had Porter departed than trouble broke out among the natives. Gamble quickly subdued the disorder and lived in comparative peace for a few months while he waited for Porter to return. Meanwhile, the commodore had reached Valparaiso, and the Essex was subsequently defeated by the British ships Phoebe and Cherub in an unequal sea fight.

Unaware of Porter's mishap, Gamble finally decided to abandon the Pacific base. His plans were upset when a mutiny broke out among some of his men, and he was badly wounded in the foot. Again the natives rebelled, and at the conclusion of a desperate encounter he found himself with eight men, only two of whom were able-bodied.

Mutineers had seized one of his three vessels; he burned a second ship, and with the sole remaining privateer taken from the British he sailed for the Sandwich Islands with his tiny crew two-thirds of which were invalids and with only one man who knew anything about
