"ON THE SPOT"
Do you know how it seems to be "on the spot?" Well, I do. I suppose it might in some cases, be a disagreeable experience. But in this case it seems like a good joke. It just happens that I have won the disapproval of some of the people who are interested in one of these projects that are supposed to be a sure cure for all of the ills that society now suffers under. Its advocates are sure that it is the one sovereign remedy that the world has been long waiting for. It seems that their legislative bill is slow in coming out of the committee (I presume there are several hundred more bills that are having the same experience). This particular party wished my help in getting it out of the committee. In the conversation I told him that I had no objection to its coming out of the committee, but that I would not vote for it in any case unless I happened to have a lapse of consciousness. Then he acted mad. "I would never be sent to the legislature again," and various other threats and excited remarks. Yes, I know how it feels to be "on the spot," and be threatened.

Incidentally I wish to say that no political leader has ever tried to coerce me. I will listen to friendly advice from any one, and gladly get it. I will try to accommodate any of the people of East Haven when it is in my power to do so, regardless of party. But when it comes to bullying methods, and silly threats, well—it is a mighty weak cause that needs that sort of help.

Poppy Time Is "Giving" Time

Once again Poppy time is here and no doubt there are still a few who do not know just where the money received from the sale of them goes, and just why they are on sale in the first place. Disabled veterans in hospitals throughout the country make these poppies to help support them and their families. The poppies are made during the whole year and then are purchased by Legion Posts and sold by either them, their Auxiliary or the Sons of the Legion. Not one cent received ever reaches the general treasury of the post. The original cost of the poppy goes to the Disabled Veteran who made it, and the entire balance goes into a special fund reserved solely for the welfare of the sick or disabled local veteran. Therefore please contribute generously.

On Sunday morning Memorial Services will be held in Short Beach Chapel and the Reverend Ernest Carpenter has extended a special invitation to veterans to attend this service. Veterans will meet at Bradley store at 10:30 for this 10:45 A.M. service.

The evening Memorial Services will be held in the Baptist Church this year at 7:30. All veterans are specially requested to attend and will meet at Bradley store at 7:15 P.M.

On Tuesday morning Legionnaires will assemble at the Armory at 8:45 sharp to decorate the graves and blow tapers in all outlying cemeteries and to participate in the Stony Creek parade as usual, after which they will then meet at the Armory at 9 A.M. for the local parade.

S.A.L. Chairman Hansen requests all Sons of the Legion to take their boxes and Poppies with them on Memorial Day.

Richard Brewer Makes Statement

More than a third of million dollars a year is turned into the town and city treasuries, from the liquor permits which are held by the drug stores of Connecticut, it was stated today by Richard Brewer of the Brewer Pharmacy, 42 Main Street.

Mr. Brewer is one of the 840 members of the Connecticut Pharmaceutical Association, representing all the drug stores of the state. The Association is opposed to the passage of the bill, now pending in the House of Representatives, which would eliminate the Druggist Permit to sell liquor by the package under restrictions, and give a monopoly for such sales to the package stores.

"There is no group of establishments in Connecticut that has a more honorable record in connection with the sale of liquor than the drug stores," Mr. Brewer said. "The drug stores comply with the law, without providing any enforcement problem whatever. There have been fewer suspensions or revocation of licenses of drug stores, because of infractions of regulations, than any other class of permit."

er day over the matter of forfeited rights restored. But as the matter some serious crime his citizenship rights are forfeited. They cannot be restored without a two thirds vote of the legislature. That is an amendment to the constitution, and was in tended to be a safe guard against an easy way of getting such rights restored. But as the matter has finally developed it has become a very easy way to get them restored. No one likes to publicly oppose a committee's report, and no one likes to get up in public and protest against any one personally. So the custom has developed of letting any case go through perfunctorily if it has a favorable report from the committee in charge. Some

HELP—NOT WANTED

Five kinds of high school or college graduates are definitely not wanted when it comes to employment in a business organization. First are the kids with swelled heads. The sort who makes an early success and then rests on their laurels.

Second, there are complainers, kickers or grippers; those who are never satisfied despite the most favorable conditions.

The third is the natural born quitter. They couldn't stick to a job in a give factory. The tendency to give up too readily may be observed in every phase of human endeavors. The quitter is one who wants to be employed, is willing to be paid well, but does not wish to give satisfactory service.

The fourth boy or girl destined to be not wanted is one who wastes time in dissipation, either mental or physical. He who eats and drinks things he should save, stays up late nights, etc., is not a good employee in any business. Jealous, hatred, etc., are emotional dissipations that make poor employees.

The fifth and last is a youth with an inferiority complex. Get rid of it at once and get a superiority complex. The kind of help wanted in business is an employee whose confidence in his own powers are not constantly afraid that they will fail.

NATIONAL YOUTH

The National Youth Administration is to cooperate with cities and towns throughout the state in the creation of tourist information booths, it was announced today by Richard A. Barrett, Director for Connecticut. The construction of these booths is to be the first step in establishing a statewide information service to be operated by the combined cooperation of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, local Chambers of Commerce, and the National Youth Administration.

It is expected that there will be large influx of visitors to the New England States this summer as a result of the New York World's Fair, Connecticut is the gateway to New England and, according to an estimate made by the World's Fair Committee, should be host to 5,000,000 people. The state has much to offer and this information project is the best practical means of letting the people from other parts of the country know just what is available in every town and city.

Mr. Barrett stated that the booths are to be prefabricated at NYA work centers and then assembled at sites selected by the officials of local Chambers of Commerce. It is planned to make the booths along the lines of the original Connecticut "Salt Box" home, or to construct a simple panel unit that can be readily disassembled. The estimated cost of the booths is about $100, this being only the cost of materials as the National Youth Administration provides all of the labor. The "Salt Box" type, which is considered to be the more attractive, has an inside floor area of approximately 80 sq. ft., and inside height of 8 and one half feet. The booths can be fitted with tables, chairs, cabinets, shelves, etc.

Aside from the construction of the booths, the NYA is to provide the staff personnel. These will be competent youth workers from the immediate locale who will be trained in their duties and will be able to act as guides as well as attendants. This work will be carried on in close cooperation with the Chambers of Commerce who will see that the booths are supplied with maps, directories, and data pertaining to history, industries, educational institutions, scenic points of interest, hotel and restaurant facilities, etc.

Barrett adds that this project will not only make the above information accessible to tourist visitors and stimulate their desire to visit in Connecticut, but will also enable the youth workers to gain practical experience in skill that necessary for both the construction and the staffing of the booths.

A TWO-CYLINDER CAR

Marked interest surrounds the current introduction of an inexpensive two-cylinder automobile to motor-conscious Americans by Crosley radio interests. From an automotive standpoint, the venture will represent a significant test of the sales possibilities said to be inherent in the untapped reservoir of wage earners who cannot now afford the luxuries of individual transportation facilities.

On the other hand, a two-cylinder car capable of fifty miles to the gasoline gallon may meet family demands for two cars, one for office commuting, the other for the rest of the family.

Introduction of the low-priced car at Indianapolis Motor Speedway recently, has revived debates current in automotive circles for the last decade concerning the possibilities of a new car breaking into the existing used car price range. Some experts feel that a new $400 car may kill the used car business. Yet manufacturers have avoided building undervalued cars because the used car had been found too efficient to justify competition.

A big factor in favor of a very light car as opposed to used cars in the same price range is its economy of operation and upkeep. The most difficult hurdle is the education of American tastes for engine power, roomy bodies and streamlined designs. A car must be good competitive automobile market which today has only twenty-seven survivors from a list of 1,000 automobile manufacturers who have tried their hands at satisfying American motorists.—Christian Science Monitor.

THOSE STITCHES WE TAKE—

By Elena Pacifico
Pins, needles, thread and oh yes, thimbles too, for those stitches we take, but do we realize that the "echo" of centuries and countries after are behind those stitches we take. Those dainty feather stitches on baby's things—or oriental stitches on the far east they came from to us.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Washington, so the tourists say, is never remembered for its restaurants. In fact, the lack of good eating places in the Capital City is the subject of much "beefing" by most Washingtonians. Nevertheless, the natives are eating their breakfasts with more than usual vigor these days and the argument now is not over the quality of the beef, but over the quality of the restaurant.

Cause of it all is an argument between the President, the Navy Department and Congress over the relative merits of American grown beefsteaks and the beefsteaks shipped in from the Argentine. The President contends in an official statement that Argentine beef is cheaper and better. So strong does the Chief Executive feel about the superiority of foreign beefsteaks that he has ordered the Navy Department to buy Argentine beef for the sailors. Congress recently felt just as strongly against Argentine beef as the President.

THINK AGAIN

(From the Adams County, Pa.) Independent
If, as some of our politicians argue, the steady and rapid expansion of government control over individuals and businesses marks the royal road to security and plenty for the people, the totalitarian states should be veritable marvels of prosperity.

The fact is, as everyone who has studied the subject knows, that totalitarianism tends to promote a lower, not a higher standard of living; a lower, not a higher wage for the worker; a smaller, not a larger return for farmer and manufacturer.

In Russia, articles that Americans of all economic levels consider almost absolute necessities—such as women clothing, good leather boots, meat and butter for the table, and adequate furniture—are possessed only by the relatively few, the favored ones of totalitarian "aristocracy." In Italy, wages and the standard of living have been consistently lowered by governmental fiat, and even so common a commodity as whole wheat bread is unavailable to the bulk of workers.

In Germany the government-sponsored spread of "ersatz" foods and materials—that is, substitutes for rubber, eggs, butter, bread, meat and other necessities—has become a national disgrace. The national income drops, while the taxes rise. And the standard of living goes down.

History, ancient and modern, tells the story. And if you think "it can't happen here," just consider the expansion that has taken place in our own government in recent years, and its competition with private citizens—then think again.

MORE MILLIONS FOR WHAT?

President Roosevelt has asked Congress to appropriate nearly two billion dollars more for the WPA. The request comes at a time when the WPA is being investigated by a special committee of the House of Representatives.

Also, the request was almost simultaneous with several startling revelations before the investigating committee. One was that the WPA had spent approximately twice as much to construct a building at the New York World's Fair as it would have cost had it been constructed by any other government department or by a private contractor.

Another revelation was that the WPA had spent a considerable sum to publish a voluminous book of nude photographs. And for what purpose? The only explanation offered was that it was for informational purposes.

ONE IN NINE

(From the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger)
Both seriously and cynically, young people have lately been getting advice from their elders that their best opportunities for employment are in some kind of Government work. It has also been said that if present trends continue the time will come when virtually every worker will be on a Government payroll.

THE CONSUMER SPEAKS

By HOWARD PATE

Consumer Notes
Here is a little item on prices to remember: According to "Illinois Labor Notes," a large manufacturer of breakfast food recently conducted a test sales campaign offering identical packages of goods at two prices—a single package at 10 cents, and a two-pack at 20 cents. When sales were added up, it was found that $3 per cent more packages were sold at the two for 23 cent price than were sold for 10 cents each.

Consumer demand for grade labels of packaged food products, was one of the highlights at the hearings before the Temporary National Economic Committee held in Washington this month. Witnesses for the consumer interests led by Donald E. Montgomery, Consumers' Council of the A. A. A. were insistent in their declaration of the need for more informative labeling and the A. B. C. system of grading came in for specific support.

Another complaint of consumers before the T. N. E. C. was the large number of sizes of cans used for food products. Although in recent years the number of can sizes have been reduced to 27, consumers think there still are too many. Standardization of can sizes was advocated.

Dexter Masters of Consumers' Education at tests his organization had made of New York City milk. The tests showed that grade B milk to be very close to grade A milk in bacteria count and butter fat content. This in spite of the fact that grade B milk sells for three cents less than grade A milk.

Miss Persia Campbell, executive secretary of Consumers National Federation, led the committee through a maze of controlled "consumer" organizations which commercial interests have set up in an effort to divert consumers from bonafide organizations.

Consumers again proved that the consumer movement is a national movement when 550 persons from 16 states attended the first National Conference held last month under the sponsorship of the Institute for Consumer Education at Stephens College, Columbia, Missouri. The Institute was founded last year by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation to further consumer education.

The fact that leading business executives and government officials look a prominent part in the conferences prove that consumer education is a major national interest. Kenneth B. Haas of the Office of Consumer Affairs at Washington spoke of the essential conflict between business and consumers. He declared that "peddlers of commodities have harried the patriotic point of view thinking only of the dollar sign—and it is impossible to change this point of view by teaching the consumer to employ the art of merchandising concerns."

Werner K. Gabler of the American Retail Federation expresses the business viewpoint with the statement that "This whole factual appeal is new; it has not penetrated the minds of consumers nor the 1,500,000 retailers we have in this country. These retailers must know what to do when you ask them for facts. What facts do you want? Retailers have not said, 'We do not believe' in the consumer movement."

In admitting that business would have to adopt a new approach to consumer problems, Donald M. Nelson, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Company declared that "the whole period of 'Let the Buyer Beware' is gone forever. Advertising will be more productive if the consumer is educated. I think that when the consumer knows more of the facts, we will take out of advertising a great deal of element that is not as productive as we sometimes think it is."

That was Warner Baxter's conclusion when he gazed at the palms of his hands after an eight hour session with a shovel on location for "The Return Of The Cisco Kid" now showing at the Loew Poll College Theatre for one week only.

The scene was the one which Cisco digs his own grave before facing a firing squad. Every time Baxter completed the scene, two men would step in and fill up the hole again, in order that the set-up could be re-shot from various angles.

"The Return Of The Cisco Kid" features Warner Baxter and Lyn Barl, also in the cast are Cesar Romero, Henry Hull.

First Connecticut Auto Theatre Opens In Milford

Tremendously popular in other cities throughout the United States, the much-anticipated Open Air Drive-In Theatre came to Connecticut, with the opening of the Milford Drive-In Theatre on the Boston Post Road and Cherry Street on Friday, May 26th.

Residents in this vicinity and from all of southern Connecticut looking forward with keen interest to the first showing of this latest innovation in the world of moving picture entertainment.

Feature attractions, shorts and newsreels will be viewed by the audience as they sit in their parked cars. The "auditorium" is constructed in the form of semi-circular terraces, each terrace raised above the one in front, so arranged that the occupants of every car will enjoy perfect vision and hearing from every part of the vast theatre. Behind each terrace is a road leading to the outside of the theatre, allowing for cars to enter or leave at any time during the evening without the slightest disturbance to others.

Occupants of each car will enjoy the privacy of their own car, smoking or talking among themselves without disturbing others. One may dress entirely to suit himself, a welcome feature during the warm summer evenings. Patrons will enjoy all the advantages of a feature picture showing right in their own homes.

The inclemencies of New England weather will have no effect whatever on the crystal-clear showing of each picture. The projection mechanism is so designed and constructed as to remain completely unaffected by rain, fog or mist. Patrons may sit in the comfort of their own cars whether it be a rainy or moonlight night, hot or cold.

Shows are continuous from 8 p. m. to 2 a. m. and are presented every night in the week including Sunday. It is expected that the Milford Drive-In Theatre will become the climax to the evening's drive as it has in other cities, patrons dropping in to see a show at almost any hour. Admission is 35 cents per person. No charge is made for cars.

Located conveniently at the junction of Routes 1 and 1A, or the Boston Post Road and Cherry Street, the Milford Drive-In Theatre is expected to take high rank among the many popular summer entertainment features that serve the residents and vacationists of southern Connecticut.

Our marshes and meadows are by far the things of most unique beauty that we have in Branford.

When once we have our eyes open we can see them in their calm beauty with many a wooded peninsula and island.

We think the marshes have been even though there is a back country of rugged beauty and a shore line broken into every fantastic shape and wooded and grassed to the waters edge.

Unfortunately the tides draw many a carelessly thrown can and paper into the middle of a fair meadow vista and the stumps from the hurricane heaped in many places on the banks are now eyesores.

George Marsh frequently adorns a rocking chair on the porch of the Yacht club. We can't see any good reason why he should not admire a yacht returned from Florida, and some one has got to produce a chart to show what this has to do with George's work in general.

We see George and chart on the road with patterns for the foundry and wish the pieces required, ran into the thousands instead of being in the dozens.

We have a lot of jokes handed in about John Carlson. We wonder if he is a good fellow or a bad one. All his movements seem to interest someone intensely, whether he is looking at boats on the bridge or examining someone's auto. We think he must be all right on the whole as questions about other shopmates seem to be referred to him.

We hear a lot about rollers and can't tell whether Dominick Bonatibus pushes the roller or pulls it or whether it pushes or pulls him. Has this anything to do with the superman at Pine Orchard who has one weighing 1500 lbs?

Here is John Carlson again—he says he spends lots of time in Hartford. Can it be love?

The writer prowled through the whole shop recently and was struck with the good order and arrangement of all utensils and tools. Flasks neatly piled and sorted and no mixtures of sand with refuse or foreign material and every moulder's bench ready for action in the morning. We hope the premises will look just the same when better times come again.

One passes foundries on the train or by auto and what a disorderly place the inside of some of them must be if one can judge from the outside.

WE FIGHT DUST, TOO

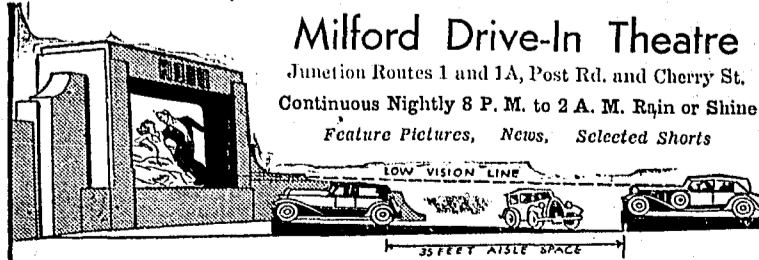

Tiny bits of dust can cause no end of trouble in the delicate equipment housed in our central office. So "good housekeeping" is our watchword. We use our vacuum cleaners constantly and wrap our brooms with damp cloths to raise as little dust as possible. Little housecleaning tricks with which most women are familiar play a part in our effort to give you the best possible telephone service. Too, this constant fight against dust keeps repairs at a minimum and helps offset the rising costs of doing business. By the way, have you a telephone? The Southern New England Telephone Company.
