Combination Gate Lock Intended To Keep Public From Stratton Beach

Following Long Conference Between Counsel Judge Walter M. Pickett Issues Two Temporary Injunctions—Issues To Have Court Hearing In Fall.

Temporary injunctions were granted without prejudice yesterday afternoon in the court of common pleas by Judge Walter M. Pickett, temporarily disposing of the beach squabble between six members of the Sound View Heights Association and Harry D. Stratton, owner of the Oweneo Inn, Indian Neck.

The issues will be actually decided after a full court hearing, probably next September.

A protest was entered by the six over the fact that Stratton recently erected a wire fence which bars them from passing over a right of way to the beach which they claim has been "undisturbed, notorious, open and continuous for more than 15 years." They sought a temporary injunction to prevent Stratton from maintaining the barrier.

Stratton, sought a temporary injunction to prevent the erection of two flights of concrete steps up to a sea wall on his property. He maintains the right of way claimed by the six members of the association does not exist.

Following a long conference between counsel, Judge Pickett issued two temporary injunctions.

One is against the six association members and restrains them from erecting the steps.

The other temporary injunction is against Stratton and requires that he have a gate made in the fence, and that a combination lock be put on the gate to which members of the Sound View Heights Association be given the combination for use. They may use the claimed right of way along a path, but no other portion of Stratton's land. In those places where the hurricane of last September washed out portions

Lenore Ulric Plays In Role At Stony Creek

When George Abbott and Philip Dunning first produced Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur's "Twentieth Century" in the Broadhurst Theatre in New York with Eugenie Leontovich and Elinorne Girardi, the first line reviewers were carried away because it was evident burlesque on the reigning theatrical favorite, Miss Lenore Ulric. Ulric had played over six hundred performances of "Kiki", more than three hundred in "Tiger Rose", and was the nation's major attraction since her New York debut in "The Mark of the Beast". Her producer was the great David Belasco, the apostle, high priest, and supreme potentate of everything even remotely akin to theatre in the United States. And along came two blasphemous and carefully unrespectful newspapermen who wrote a travesty which two other young irreverent men dared to produce; it was if Allah were caricatured in Mecca, or Helen Hayes imitated at Minsk's.

When William Castle decided to revive what has been universally accorded the funniest script ever to be written in collaboration since Beaumont and Fletcher got together to do "The Burning Pestle", he decided there was only one actress who could do the part, but she, Belasco's "Glamorous One" and "The American Bernhardt" was living in comfortable and blissfully unpublished retirement. Castle production Inc. looked their eyes out for someone to attempt to fill the place but the person just couldn't be found.

Lombard, who'd done "Twentieth Century" in the moving picture version with John Barrymore and Walter Connolly had been too colorless, all farce and no depth. Brooding about the possibility of postponing the production for another year, Castle worried all along Broadway past shooting galleries and cut-rate perfume shops. As he walked along, pallidly eyed him apprehensively, since the chances of a taxi hitting him when he crossed streets were too good. He bumped into a very handsome woman instead of the promising taxi. Before an apology jumped from his lips was a smile of recognition exchanged: it was Lenore Ulric.

The next problem was the search for someone with sufficient gift for comedy who had the energy to play opposite a phenomenon like Ulric who had burned out actors like so many fuses. The difficult part of

Gayest, Craziest Play Presented At Playhouse

This week the Chapel Playhouse in Guilford is to use a theatrical expression, "rolling them in the aisles." It is presenting the gayest, craziest, slap-happiest comedy that ever came out of the West—"The Nervous Wreck", by Owen Davis. This is the comedy that kept New York audiences laughing for fifty-two weeks, and thus earned the title of "funniest show that ever hit Broadway". And it produced the same effect on Monday large opening-night audience. All forgot their troubles and joined in gale after gale of laughter which rocked the playhouse from stem to stern.

There is plenty of comedy material in Mr. Davis' tale of the nervous, timid Henry Williams, suffering from a hundred imaginary ailments and terrified of women, who suddenly finds himself in a situation where he has to think quickly and act bravely, and thrown into the company of a very attractive girl under romantic circumstances. Mr. Davis has made the most of this material.

Henry Williams, the "nervous wreck", is one of the most laughable, lovable characters in the history of the theatre. He is Caspar Milquetoast and Sir Galahad; he endears himself to his audience from the very first, and gets their affection and sympathy as well as their laughter. It was this great comedy part that started Otto Kroger and Edward Everett Horton on the road to fame. In Guilford it is played by the Chapel playhouse's own Robert Crane. A versatile actor, Mr. Crane is far cry from the dynamic Keith Burgess in last week's "Stage Door". In his spectacles and plus fours, he is so completely Henry Williams that one feels it would only be necessary to go backstage after the show in order to meet Henry himself.

The part of Sally Morgan might have been overshadowed by that of Henry, were it in the hands of a less expert player than Olive

Alice C. Walsh, George F. Fair Married Tuesday

Miss Gertrude Clancy was vocal soloist.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, James Walsh, was very attractive in a gown of white silk organza with tight bodice, square neck line, short puffed sleeves, long skirt with deep flounce. Her shoulder-length veil was draped from a coronet of gardenias and she carried a white prayer book with markings of sweet peas and lily of the valley. Miss Margaret Walsh, was her sister's maid of honor and she wore a gown of blue silk organza made similar to the bride's gown with lace insertions. Her chin length veil was draped from a turban. She carried a mixed bouquet. The best man was Frederick Stahl of New York city, a cousin of the groom.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's mother with Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Oscar Stahl, aunt of the groom of New York receiving with them. Mrs. Walsh wore a blue figured chiffon dress with leghorn hat and corsage of deep red roses. Mrs. Stahl wore a dress of cyclamen figured crepe, leghorn hat and corsage of deep red roses.

All In The Day's Work

By F. C. and N. H. CARPENTER

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY
Much of value may be learned by an intelligent and thoughtful study of the Old Testament characters who figure in the present quarter's Church School lessons. Solomon, who made such a wonderfully good beginning in last Sunday's lesson, even though he built up and to many ways strengthened his kingdom and is remembered for his magnificence of his court, somewhere along the way lost the humility and sense of dependence upon God which characterized him then, and slumped disastrously in character. He failed to bring about a closer union of the northern and southern tribes, but by the heavy taxation necessitated by the luxuries of his court and the great building program centered in Jerusalem rather increased the jealousy existing between them.

AT THE SHORE

N. H. C.

SPENDING
With the opening of the new boathouse there will be less excitement than ever for anyone to go dashing through the Main Street at an excessive rate of speed. That new street will take care of through traffic, and speed will not be as dangerous. It is no uncommon thing to see vehicles passing along our Main Street at speeds exceeding 50 miles per hour. Many school children have to cross the street, and a great number of people cross the street to get to the stores. And many people try to park along this street. All of this makes for great danger. Only a day or two ago a resident of Thompson Ave. complained of the speed on that street. A great number of people cross the street to get to the stores. And many people try to park along this street. All of this makes for great danger. Only a day or two ago a resident of Thompson Ave. complained of the speed on that street.

GLORIFIED HASE

A few days ago out in Pond Du Lac, Wis., E. C. Berners passed away at the age of 76.

In his store in Two Rivers 40 years ago he is said to have served ice cream to a little girl.

By accident or intention he covered it with a chocolate coating.

Berners believed that the little girl had the original ice cream sundae.

He said the delicacy received its name when the patron asked what flavor he served on Sunday.

Hot dogs, swimming holes and circus performances have provided pleasure to Johnnie Public no less than has Mr. Berners' ice cream sundae.

Rating 300 to 600 calories, a person inclined to be stout sometimes sneaks at the after-dinner treat but orders one, and a jicky one at that, and determines to count calories the following day instead.

With or without nuts, with or without whipped cream almost any fruit or syrup combination results in an attractive dish and is awarded a worthy name.

Perhaps it's Melba, Royal, Imperial or King's Favorite.

That is the adventuresome part of the whole idea. Everyone goes into it and the more the better.

Glorified hase it is, gloriously delicious and gorgeously refreshing.

after its appearance, is a matter of intriguing conjecture. But printings have continued and it yields a place in literary shelves long after the issue which engendered it has been settled forever.

Whatever literary rating may be accorded the somewhat sentimental story of "Uncle Tom," it is hoped immeasurably in forging the moral weapons to wipe out slavery.

STILL DETERMINED

The administration still is determined to go on spending, of course, but the President still is basic in Washington.

What will be the eventual outcome, only a seer could forecast, but it is an interesting battle between the executive and the legislative branches of government.

It is not surprising that the Congress, mindful no doubt of the results of last November, is determined that it shall be boss at least of appropriations, as the constitution intends.

CLEARING THE WAY

It is not surprising that the Congress, mindful no doubt of the results of last November, is determined that it shall be boss at least of appropriations, as the constitution intends.

CONFESSION NOT ENOUGH

Having been caught sucking eggs, the National Labor Relations Board quite consistently announces (with reservations) that it will go and sin no more.

It is not surprising that the Congress, mindful no doubt of the results of last November, is determined that it shall be boss at least of appropriations, as the constitution intends.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP:

Three special police guard on "The Women" set keeping eagle eyes on $50,000 worth of jewelry worn in a single scene by Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell. Ann Southern signing a brand new M G M contract, the prize for her performance in "Maise." Lew Ayres concentrating on a study of foreign languages in preparation for his next European trip. Robert Taylor and his bride Barbara Stanwyche, spending spare time shopping for homesites. Robert Montgomery getting ready for his cruise to England where he will appear in two pictures for the studio. Judy Garland nervous over the test she must take to procure her first drivers license. Mickey Rooney preparing for a fishing trip to Catalina as soon as his work in "Babes In Arms" is completed. Robert Young trying his luck at inventing effective scarecrows to keep the birds away from loquats on his San Fernando ranch. Lionel Barrymore working on a musical composition originally written as background music for the poem, "The Shooting Of Dan McGrew."

HOT-TIP FOR THE WEEK:

When a honky-tonk showgirl gets stranded in a cow town like Big Horn, Wyoming, anything is liable to happen and does in "Maise" being held over for a 2nd week at the Leow Poll College Theatre now showing, with Robert Young and Ann Southern at the head of an excellent cast.

Her invasion of the wide open spaces, in the person of the personable Miss Southern, not only ups the romantic appeal of Young but eventually finds him on trial for murder. "Maise" is a comedy set in the west, but is not a western of the so-called horse opera variety. Rather, it is a smart story of men and women from sophisticated strata of America and laid in a background of cow ponies and round ups.

Feminine intrigue and a man's caution run a comedy and dramatic gamut as two women, the other played by Ruth Hussey, play their hand for the affections of the Westerner. That one is married results in tragedy, which ends in a dramatic trial for the life of the man.

The balance of the comprises of Ian Hunter, Cliff Edwards, Anthony Allen and Art Mix.

The 2nd big hit on the College Theatre program is "6,000 Enemies" with Walter Pidgeon and Rita Johnson and Pauly.

As an Extra added attraction the "Louis - Galento Flight Pictures" Round by round - Blow by blow.

An usual an interesting, healthful and educational program will be maintained throughout the eight weeks. This will include all kinds of Scout crafts and games, rowing, sailing, canoeing, and swimming. All water activities are carried on under the careful supervision of qualified lifeguards. The resident physician, Dr. Charles A. Tucker, will safeguard the health and safety of the campers throughout the season.

A striking feature of this years program will be two, two-day trips to the World's Fair from Camp. The first trip will be July 12 and 13, the second trip August 22 and 23rd. There will be also two interesting pack trips through the surrounding country, one starting July 25, the other August 8th, which will be open to all Sequassen Campers.

According to recent information carrots have iodine needed by the thyroid gland.

Services in the local churches on Sunday will be North Branford Congregational Church, Rev. G. Dilhard Lessley, pastor, Mrs. Douglas B. Hjalbrd, organist and choir director, Miss Ethel Maynard, assistant, morning worship at 11 o'clock.

St. Augustine's R. C. Church, Rev. William Brewer, pastor, Mrs. Edward Daly, organist and choir director, Mass will be celebrated at 8:15 a. m.

Zion Episcopal Church, Rev. Francis J. Smith, Rector, Mrs. Paul R. Hawkins, organist and choir director, Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 10 o'clock

The Parish Guild of Zion Episcopal Church held a very successful food sale on the church lawn on last Saturday afternoon. Miss Carolyn H. Smith was general chairman.

Large numbers of guests were entertained in town over the Fourth.

Traffic over the week end was particularly heavy with Sunday afternoon and evening find Route 80 handling a steady stream of out-of-state cars.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bean of Church Street announce the birth of a son, Donald Edward on June 25.

A delightful birthday party was held for little Miss Ethel Brindley in honor of her second birthday. Decorations were pink and green and the little guest of honor received lovely gifts from her playmates. Little folk in attendance were Barbara Linsley, the Whitney Twins, Louise and Lorraine, Elaine and Diana Brindley, Harry Juniver, and Bernard Armatrudo. The mothers of the children were also in attendance.

The Board of Selectmen met on Saturday afternoon for the transaction of routine business.

The Northford Public Library was open on Wednesday rather than Tuesday in observance of the Fourth of July.

The annual Grange picnic will be held on July 11 at Lake Quonnapaug. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock and members and their guests are invited. Each member will be solicited for food for the table.

The Grange is also sponsoring a party to the World's Fair on July 23. Those wishing to attend should get their tickets at once as they are going fast.

The Tapping Union and Coupler Department's combined effort for a picnic was a great success. It was staged in the country on Dominic Leprie's grove, which district used to be known as "Comeup" and the grand, sunny, but cool day, helped to make a large gathering.

Soft ball was one feature and it was linnaxed by a duel between two picked teams of which the batteries were Jack Salvin and Eddy Kamb, and Harvey Royden and Frank Brada. Brada proved his worth as a back-stop, some times sitting down on the running board of a car parked around the ground. Everyone agreed that the final score was 9 to 7 but both teams claimed to have won. Umpire Jimmy Bontatibus was quick, accurate and diplomatic in all his decisions, except to settle the winning side.

Incidentally there were some pretty horse shoes pitched during the afternoon, and some of the boys knew the game with plenty of form. Joe Donadio has the worst form, but his tosses seem to make ringers about as often as any.

The food and refreshments went well and fast. It was a swell party and it is hoped to make it an annual affair.

Rocco, Danadio, Bill Kremser, Ernie Johnson and Tote Hammer, as foremen, etc, were invited guests of the occasion, and enjoyed the day immensely. Oh, but the day after such activity for those guys is bad! Bill Kremser is said to have spent Sunday in bed.

Mrs. Maob Palmer of the Main Office has lately completed a course in First Aid Treatment and Hospital Care, and is available for emergency calls in the First Aid Room when Henry Holsenbeck is not available. Our record for few injuries is exceptionally good. May it so remain.

Mr. Williams, since his arrival last month has completed four or five new items which will be immediately introduced by the pole Hardware Department Bill works on new items much the same way that stock company actresses work on their plays; i.e. act in one play, rehearse another, and study the third one in the same week.

One remarkable feat in development that gives good hopes for activity in production was the conception of an improved device for concrete highway construction. Bill whittled out a model, cast a sample, presented it to the State Highway Department and before the end of the week was sitting Commissioner Cox's office seeing it accepted and written into specifications. Patents have already been applied for, and now comes the most difficult part, selling it to the contractors. It is interesting to know that this article, to be made in malleable iron, received ready approval because of the fact that malleable iron, by nature, rusts very much slower than fabricated steel, which material is used in all competitive devices of this sort.

We have nothing against the PWA Workers, but some observation of their operations, got from one of our collection boxes: "If all the WPA workers should happen to lie down in a row, they would reach from anywhere to the Treasury Dept. in Washington."

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith motored to their Camp on Lake Winoposaukee, this weekend to spend the Fourth. Accompanying them was Mr. and Mrs. George Agnew. We have it that the arrangement was only made possible by a guarantee on the part of the ladies to drive the tired business men.

It was with deep regret that we learned of the news of Mrs. Charles Phillips' death, on Monday morning. Our sympathy to the Phillips family.

We understand that Mr. and Mrs. Phillips had arrived at their son's home in St. Paul, Minn. at which place they were to spend most of their vacation. Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips let Tuesday Reading, Penn. where the services are to be held.

Recently the National Industrial Conference Board invited all of the foremen of its membership companies to participate in a prize essay contest. Foremen were asked to discuss "What can a Foreman do to Build High Morale in his Department." The Malleable Industry should be proud to learn that the winner of this contest was a foreman from the Belle City Malleable Iron Company. Fourth prize was won by a foreman in the Berger Bros. Co., New Haven. The prizes ranged from $100.00 to $5.00.

John Alex, ex M.I.F. has returned from the New Haven Hospital and is making a swift recovery from an operation.

Oswin Warner visited us briefly on Saturday. He is enjoying the intensive technical course given at Rensselaer College which is being sponsored by the Malleable Foundry Society. He says there are eighteen others now taking the course, and some of the men come from far distant points, such as Texas.

Bernard Baldassarre of the Malleable foundry has been advised by his doctor to rest up for a few weeks. He expects to be with us soon, however.

Charles Gell was burned slightly on his left leg on Friday while transferring molten steel from a large ladle to a smaller one.

Mr. John Knudsen intends to drive to Reading on Thursday to attend the funeral services of Mrs. Phillips.

Congenial Eddie Kamb attended a party recently at the home of one of his neighbors. As the evening passed along Eddie developed one of his long enduring appetites. He was told to go to the refrigerator and make himself a sandwich. This he hastily did, and a few moments later Eddie started barking. An investigation was started by the hostess and it was discovered that Eddie ate the dog food that he thought was canned meat for sandwiches.

Mr. Guy Barker, purchasing agent, spent the holiday at his Camp at Groversville, Vermont

Mr. Milton Hart, spent the week end at his home in Trenton, N. J.

Mr. Raymond Wright of the Cost Department, is having a vacation from his duties.

Miss Mary Reiner of the Fittings Department is spending the week in Vermont.

More than 10,000 samples of soil from gardens, pastures and orchards were analyzed for farmers and other residents of Connecticut during the past year. The method used was devised by Dr. M. F. Morgan of the Agricultural Experiment Station at New Haven. Circular 131 describes the use of analyses and how to submit samples.

Enamled bedsteads may be cleaned almost instantly with a few drops of turpentine placed on a cloth.

After cleaning your rugs with the vacuum cleaner, wipe them off with warm soap suds, with a little ammonia in the water. Then wipe off again with a rag dipped in clear water. Then wipe off again with a rag dipped in clear water.

If you rinse out your new hosier before wearing, it is less apt to have runs soon. This rinsing takes out any dressing that might make the silk brittle.

"Sally" Meiss

and a half she acts like a puppy. "My mother takes singing lessons. Whenever she practices singing, Peggy sings too. She comes out from under the piano (where her bed is) or wherever she is resting. She braces herself, stretches her neck as far as she can toward the sky and howls. She sounds in a way like an alto singer. She never sings to any music except singing music. Today is my mother's birthday. As I played the piano, and Harriet, my little sister, and I sang greetings to her, Peggy chimed in, very loudly and clearly. It sounded very pretty. We are all devoted to Peggy. Mother gives a singing lesson to a lady. When the lesson begins, Father has to take Peggy out and put her in the car. Peggy evidently thinks she is going for a ride. Sometimes after the lesson is over my father drives up to the mailbox with Peggy. Peggy loves to ride in the car.

"Sally" Meiss is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Meiss who, for several years, made their home in Short Beach where "Sally" and Peggy were constant Companions.

STARFISH SEE WITH THEIR ARMS

Some starfish may wear their hearts on their sleeves, but the starfish carries its eyes on its arms, according to the Better Vision Institute. Little clusters of light-sensitive cells, known as "eye-spots," are on each arm. These cannot focus or distinguish form, color or motion, as far as is known. They are able, however, to distinguish between light and shadow.

Any one of the arms of the starfish can be used as a leader, or head. This "boss" arm apparently does the work of seeing and the eye-spots on the other arms seem to be dormant. If the starfish wishes to move in another direction, the eye on another arm gets on the job.

The work in breeding hybrid field corn in Connecticut is advanced by a fellowship of the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange. The "fellow" combines graduate work at Yale University with research at the Experiment Station at New Haven.
