Tuttle Memorial Chapel May Become A Reality After Long Litigation

Building Memorializing Mother of Dwight W. Tuttle Will Be Erected In East Lawn Cemetery 41 Years After Her Death.

A Connecticut statute of 1885 has been resurrected by Judge Patrick B. O'Sullivan in Superior Court to decree as valid a trust established in the will of the late Dwight W. Tuttle, wealthy East Haven lawyer, for the erection of a memorial chapel in East Lawn Cemetery in memory of his mother.

Under a revision handed down by Judge O'Sullivan, David E. FitzGerald, trustee of the chapel trust, is allowed to turn the fund over to the East Lawn Cemetery, Inc. for a chapel to be known as "The Tuttle Memorial Chapel."

Plans for the memorial have already been drawn by Alfred W. Boylen, architect.

The chapel will be built just 41 years after the death of Mrs. Tuttle and 17 years after the death of her son, Dwight.

Judge O'Sullivan's decision was a construction of one chapter of Tuttle's will which bequeathed the sum of $5,000 to his wife, Bertha E. Tuttle, for the erection of a chapel in the East Lawn Cemetery in memory of his mother and an addition.

Summer Theatre Attracts Film Representatives

Stony Creek this week is buzzing with Hollywood activity. Photographers and talent scouts are rampant at the Stony Creek Summer Theatre scanning the actors colony.

Ellen Schwanneke in Wesley Townner's play, "Not For Children," has attracted much attention from theater agents in all parts of the country. Every review of her superior performance in the play which was written especially for her, has been laudatory. Critics have been amazed at her splendid expression in a language which was until two months ago foreign to her.

Hollywood film companies have rushed representatives here. Executives from the motion picture industry include: Mr. Walter Marks of Columbia; Mr. Donald Lurie of Paramount, head testing agent in eastern United States; Mr. Lew Altman, Warner Brothers; Mr. J. Helman, Twentieth Century Fox; and Boris Kaplan of Metro Goldwyn Mayer productions.

Mr. Jacob Stessel, theatrical lawyer, and Mr. Roger Kennedy, prominent theatrical agent, are here from New York. Other well known visitors have been Mr. A. P. Turner, recently retired head of the International News Bureau, Mr. Theodore Baumfeld, member of the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange, and Miss Florence Elson, Minneapolis psychologist.

Talented Group Presents Guild Reciprocal Show

The first reciprocal show to be held at the Silvermine Guild's Main Gallery is the very progressive and talented group of the Da Vinci Art Alliance of Philadelphia. A selection of forty paintings will include the works of: Emidio Angalo, James Bonelli, Michael Capuzzi, Nicola D'Ascenzo, Vincent La Badessa, Nathan Margolis, Antonio Martino, Giovanni Martino, Justin Pardi, Salvatore Pinto, Jules Saelella, Charles Taylor and Francesco Paolo Lielni.

It is with great anticipation for the art circles around here are looking forward to this exhibition which will open to the public July 30th and will remain on view until August 11th.

A varnishing night, reception and dance is scheduled for the Da Vinci Group and the members of the Silvermine Guild.

Good Fellowship Play Presented For Boy Scouts

The Goodfellowship Dramatic Club played to a full house in Riverside Hall Monday evening when it presented "School of Blueberry Corners" for the benefit of the Short Beach Scouts.

Through the kindness and efforts of the dramatic club the entire money raised will be given to the scouts for equipment. The hall was donated by the firemen.

The next presentation by the club will be given by the players in October and will be sponsored by the Short Beach Parent Teacher Association.

The last summer social will be held August 15 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hutchinson.

Night Must Fall Stage Success At Playhouse

A thoroughly scared but completely fascinated audience witnessed Emlyn Williams' great mystery play, "Night Must Fall," last night at the Chapel Playhouse in Gullford. This famous Broadway and Hollywood success lost none of its power and illusion in the Playhouse's production, and kept its spectators always on the edge of their chairs, sometimes biting their fingernails, occasionally relaxing for a hearty laugh at some welcome comedy relief, but continually absorbed.

"Night Must Fall" is the story of a murderer, but not an ordinary murderer. Danny—he has no other name—is as charming as he is horribly clever, as friendly, ingratiating and likable as he is cold-blooded and pitiless. He murders partly for worldly gain, but partly from a more deeply motive to prove his superiority over other people. The play is a study of his character, not in a clinical sense, but in a tremendously exciting and dramatic sense. It is first and foremost, good theater—strong, effective melodrama, made more important by its deep and not unsympathetic insight into the many-sided, brilliant and terrible personality which is Danny.

It takes a good actor indeed to do justice to the part of Danny. For-

Rotary Members Of East Haven Enjoy Outing

The Rotary Club of East Haven held its first outing yesterday afternoon and evening at the Clinton Country Club in Clinton. Leroy Perry was general chairman of the affair.

An afternoon of games and sports was the program until dinner was served at six o'clock by Wolfe's Quality Food Shop. Mrs. Fred Wolfe, Jr. won first prize in the games and Ann Thorpe and Tom Relly came in second and third, respectively.

In the evening dancing was enjoyed by the Rotarians and their friends in the club house.

Amongst those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Al Holcombe, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Dohna, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Diehl, Mr. Fred Diehl, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Sullivan, Miss Dorothy Sullivan, Miss Ann T. Thorpe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolfe, Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolfe, Jr.

Also attending were: Mr. and Mrs. W.S. Coker, Rev. Nichols, Dan Parillo, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clancy, Leroy Perry, Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, and Mr. Herman Johns.

Attending from the Branford Rotary Club were Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Leshine and Mrs. Lou Bassett. Carl Knob and Frank Blakeslee represented the New Haven Club, and from Milford were Frank Platt and District Governor and Mrs. Alvin Smith.

Self Service Opens Today In East Haven

First National Stores, Inc., announces the opening today of a new self-service market at 301 Main Street, East Haven.

The new First National self-service market has a particular layout, especially designed and arranged so that it will give the customer every advantage of shopping. All items are on display, with the exception of refrigerated goods. Every item is plainly price-marked to help in the selection of goods. There is an enormous time-saving because there is no waiting—the customer simply helps herself and goes right to the exit. The store is open and roomy.

Of course, all perishables are carefully kept by the most up-to-date methods and willing clerks serve the customers in such departments. In their other shopping purchasers merely pick up a basket glider that rolls along carrying items from various counters.

The market itself is one of the largest of its kind, with floor coverage of about 6,500 square feet. The management has utilized this space in the most attractive manner. The market will carry complete line of quality meats, fish, fresh fruits, vegetables, groceries, dairy products and delicatessen. The store will remain open Thursday Friday and Saturday evening of this week until 9 p. m.

Edward J. Cullom, general manager, and Fred Colella meat manager, join in an invitation to the public to visit the store and enjoy all its advantages.

John P. Callahan Finds Clipping About Hose Co.

John P. Callahan of 23 Laurel Street has resurrected this story Friday, February 21, 1932. The muse of hospitality and good cheer reigned supreme at the celebration of the first anniversary of the organization of the M. P. Rice Hose Company, held at its club rooms last evening. The members of the company invited a number of friends to aid them in fittingly honoring their birthday and a general response to the invitations was made.

A supper, excellent in quality and beautiful in quantity, was served by Caterer Frank M. Averill, whose reputation for preparing tempting collations was thereby materially enhanced.

After the supper the party repaired to the rooms upstairs where a fine program of music and speeches was rendered. Toastmaster Eugene Callahan called on the following gentlemen to speak, and some fine addresses, humorous and serious, were made. Selectmen Rice and Ashman, Representative Callahan, who recited "The Knight's Toast." Chief Bradley; Commis-

Popular Demand Keeps Actress At Stony Creek

Because of popular demand William Castle's presentation of the American debut of Ellen Schwanneke in "Not For Children," Wesley Townner's new comedy, which has every symptom of being a smash hit, is being held over for a second week at the Stony Creek Theatre. The summer audience, critics of local, professional, and national publications, and visitors representing the major theatrical and moving picture organizations of the nation are unanimous in their praise of her phenomenal performance and the undoubted promise of the comedy.

Her feat approaches the fairy-tale kind of story when we realize that eleven short weeks ago Miss Schwanneke was unable to speak any English; this week she yields the language as if it were her own, and communicates more than most English and American actresses have ever been able to express.

Mr. Castle's staging does not permit Miss Schwanneke to completely obliterate the rest of the company, but effects a co-ordination between the performers which displays the respective talents of Maurice Hunt, Marlin Miller, Dorothy O'Hanlon, Harry Sothorn, Allen Nourse, Delma Byron, George Petrie, Alexander Cross, Elizabeth Dinsmore, Warren Young, Louis Nelstat, Brook Burwell, Elinor Praust, Ann Morag, C. Stewart Aggett, and Judith Simmons to excellent advantage.

Branford Rotary Hears Gov Smith

There was a Rotary Round Table Monday noon in the Oasis at which 17 were present. The visiting rotarians were A. J. Sells of York, Pa., D. H. Havens of Atlanta, Ga. Dr. J. D. McCaughy of Wallingford, Austin Phelps of West Haven and R. F. Bailey and Arthur E. Hall, both of the New Haven club.

Alvin C. Smith of Milford, governor of the 200th District of Rotary International made his official visit to the Branford Rotary Club at a meeting held at 6:30 Monday night in the parlors of the First Congregational Church. Mr. Smith addressed the meeting, and later met with the chairman of committees and discussed with them plans for the coming year.

Forty-one attended the meeting, including visiting rotarians H. M. Thayer of East Hampton, Mass., George J. Smith of Milford, Leroy Perry of East Haven and Milton P. Bradley, Ellsworth E. Cowles, Eric W. Dohpa and Floyd I. Newton, all of New Haven.

TO REVISE G. O. P. A committee to revise the rules governing the Connecticut Republican party will meet to transact business in Hartford Thursday.

One of the committee is Col. Ernest L. Averill, lawyer and former deputy attorney general.

Branford Rural Free Delivery Serves Patrons

William H. McNeal writes in the National Rural Letter Carrier that "The R.F.D. Service is the most efficient mail delivery service yet devised by the mind of man. Each RFD carrier is really an Assistant Postmaster operating a moving post office on wheels."

Walter V. Newton on RFD No. 1 covering the western section of the town gives service at 637 boxes, 957 families and serves 2100 patrons. His route is 28.5 miles long and he delivers an average of 1200 pieces of mail per day.

"Each carrier," continues Mr. McNeal "performs every service performed by any post office. All classes of mail are accepted for dispatch or delivery in addition to insuring mail, accepting C. O. D.'s, money orders and selling stamps."

At this point Mr. Newton and

There Is More To Do Than Swim

Sailing And Fishing May Take Up The Greater Part of Summer's Free Time But Summer Is Also Ideal Time To Know Branford.

Scores of summer visitors come to our shores to enjoy a peaceful, restful vacation.

During the morning they take a walk, call at the post-office for the mail, bring home fresh vegetables and settle for a quiet day—sailing, bathing and reading.

Toward evening comes a stroll to the sea wall, a simple summer meal or entertainment and back to the cottage for an uneventful evening following an uneventful day.

But there comes a time when the sun bather seeks more adventure—some schedules and longs to do something or go somewhere.

That sounded so attractive three months ago.

Isn't it a good idea to suggest the summer acquaint himself with Branford?

Ten-to-one the only beach he has visited is his own secluded spot. There's a days fun for youngsters and grownups at Double Beach with a trip across to see the unique colony at Lanphier's Cove.

Short Beach is pretty too if you take some of the side streets leading to the bay, visiting Rockland Park and Johnson's, Killam's Point and Brockett's Point.

Gardeners love the ride past the Montewese House into Pawson Park looking across to the Branford Yacht Club and coming home via Sunset Beach, Sagamore Cove, Malvia Cove and Summer Island.

Picnics at Beaches and Parks, Horseback Riding, Visiting Pub- lic Buildings and Shore Resorts May be Included in Program home through Pine Orchard.

Each and every beach has its identifying bit of beauty or unusualness.

Churches are rather interesting if you haven't been in one for so long you are just a bit ashamed. Vacationers are welcome.

In no time at all one can spend an hour or two at the various docks for there are always boats coming and going and pleasant exchanges to while away the day.

Probably summer renters visit the Yacht clubs but do we ever suggest they visit the boat yards?

The Community Council arranges soft ball, horseshoe contest all summer. So the restless vacationer

In bringing to the screen the Broadway stage success of last year "On Borrowed Time," M-G-M's latest hit which is held over and now playing at Loew's Poli College Theatre, is launching its new season with one of the most thought-provoking, inspiring, heart-warming stories ever filmed. With a flavor partly of fantasy, partly of folk-tale, partly of homespun, earthly drama, it rises to heights of imagination and beauty rarely before attempted as it tells the simple tale of a grandfather fighting death to protect the young grandson he adores from falling into the clutches of a scheming and unscrupulous aunt.

The cast of "On Borrowed Time" comprises of Lionel Barrymore, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Beaulieu Bondi, Una Merkel, Bobs Watson, Nat Pendleton, Henry Travers and Frank Mitchell.

tunately, the Playhouse has one in Edward Franz. Superbly talented, experienced, versatile. Mr. Franz gives a masterful performance. Those who saw him as the film manager in "Stage Door," the Soviet Commissar in "Tovarich," the priest in "Seventh Heaven," already know his ability and will not be surprised that he can do so nobly by his tremendous assignment this week.

A no less difficult role is that taken by Jean Platt. She plays "Olivia," the girl who suspects Danny from the first, accuses him, tries to expose him, but cannot escape his charm and in the end does her best to save him. She too has a deep and elusive character, which Miss Platt, like the fine actress she is, has been able to understand and interpret clearly and dramatically. Eda Helman, a famous character actress, does an eccentric old lady who is Danny's last victim. She supplies the play with some of its comic moments and many of its most terrifying ones. If anything can be called a high spot in a play composed chiefly of high spots, it is her scene alone on the stage before her murder.

Outstanding among the rest of the cast are Jane Bancroft and Peter Van Buren in comedy parts. Miss Bancroft as a family retainer who does not mince words, and Mr. Van Buren as a stuffy Englishman who wants to marry Olivia and cannot understand why she finds him dull. Hardie Albright's direction has kept the suspense well sustained and continually mounting toward its final climax, and Peter Wolf's set does successfully its important job of creating the right atmosphere.

Next week's production will be George Abbott's "Primrose Path," fresh from its Broadway run. It will open on Monday, July 31.

Zion Episcopal Church Rev. Francis J. Smith, Rector, Mrs. Paul R. Hawkins, organist and choir director, Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 10 o'clock.

North Branford Congregational Church, Rev. G. Dillard Lessley, pastor, Mrs. Douglas B. Holabird, organist and choir director, Miss Ethel Maynard, assistant. Morning worship will be at 11 o'clock.

Rev. Francis J. Smith and Mrs. Smith have been enjoying a vacation at Cape Cod.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Wharton of Totoket Road entertained Rev. and Mrs. Julian Hart and daughter, Beverly Ann, on Sunday.

Miss Rebecca Griswold of Niagara Falls is spending some time with her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Miller of Great Hill Street.

Miss Jeannette Wharton of Totoket Road has returned from a vacation spent in Hamden.

Mrs. Leslie Brindley and daughter, Ethel, of Totoket Road have returned from a visit with Mrs. Herman Schelle of Torrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nagel of Foxon Road are vacationing at the J-A-C cottage at Lanphier's Cove.

A bus load of Grangers with their families enjoyed a trip to the World's Fair on Sunday. The group left at six o'clock on Sunday morning and returned during the wee small hours of Monday morning.

Guests were royally entertained at Open House at the City Mission Camp on Tuesday. Guests were present during the afternoon, and again during the evening. Entertainment and refreshments were prepared for the guests by the campers. During the evening the North Branford Fife and Drum Corps gave a concert.

The marriage of Miss Mary Louise Lytle, daughter of Mrs. Louis Lytle of South Bend, Indiana, and John Albert Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hart of Totoket Road will take place on Saturday July 29 at 10 o'clock in Bernini Chapel at the University of Notre Dame.

The Ladies Sewing Society, Congregational Sunday School, and Church Brotherhood will hold a combined picnic at Branford Point on August 2. Each family is requested to bring a dish of food for the picnic table, and their own table service. Supper will be served at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, and it is planned to have the supper hour definitely on time.

Rev. Francis J. Smith will officiate in Trinity Church, Waterbury but will be in town all during the month on call and doing parish work. Mr. Beecher, layreader, will read the services on Sundays.

We deeply regret the loss of James Braze, who was killed in an automobile accident. Braze worked in the Brass Foundry and was well liked by all his fellow-workers. His career at the Plant started in January 1930 and was quite varied in that he had worked in the malleable foundry, stock room and annealing department.

In behalf of his friends at the M. I. F., we express our deepest sympathies to Mrs. Braze and Jim's family.

The annual outing of the office and foremen held last Saturday at Harrison's Point, Lake Quonnapaug. A clam bake under the masterful direction of Frank Quinn and George Hansen proved that few can resist good sea food, and the few absent ones, we understand, were only absent by direction of their family doctor.

Sixty or so bright red lobsters arranged en masse on one of the picnic tables under the trees was certainly a sight to remember—but only a few of the more hearty eaters ever got that far, with the foundation of clams, fish, chicken, etc.

Ossy Warner, as reported last week, brought eighteen boys down from Rensselaer, and they added greatly to the day and contributed a few new ideas in sports. The boys seemed weak in soft ball, however, and the M.I.F.ers gave them such an uneven score in the first few innings that finally a complete M.I.F. second team took the field. Harry Brazeau knew too much about the game as an umpire, so Ern Genrich finished the job. Dom Bontalibus wound up his bat and let fly a ball that not only gave him the freedom of the bases, but never came down. It was in the next inning when this great athlete was playing third base that he has a lapse and was seen to steal a wide lead and slide home upon the first hit ball.

George Agnew missed the clam bake but managed to find another way to get sick. He was ordered to remain in bed for a few days, but Ray Wright looked across the street from his porch and saw him shaving. How about it? George's doctor, we understand recommended a long trip after he left his bed, but George told him he had just returned home from one, and that was the cause of his exhaustion. We wish you a speedy recovery, George.

Vincent Pailleo, electric truck operator has left to become a carpenter in Wallingford.

Anyone attending the Machine Tool Builders Convention in Cleveland this Fall will see M.I.F. pipe union parts being machined as a demonstration.

Leander Hendrickson of the Steel Dept. has had to give up his position for the time being, and is working outside the shop until his health improves.

Stephen Burcyak, who has been with us since February 1937 and has proved himself an able mechanic has resigned his job to move west for the good of his wife's health. Steve has been making good progress in his apprenticeship course which he started in Sept. 1937 and we are sorry to see him leave. Our best wishes to him, and hopes that Mrs. Burcyak's health is soon repaired.

The Malleable foundry had another bad mark against them when Salvatore Aceto burnt his leg with hot sand last week. We are glad to hear it was not at all serious.

SHORT STORY

by Mary Paul

ON THE LONE PRAIRIE

"Old Friends Meet"

Synopsis

After an unhappy marriage of twenty seven years Grandma Jen's daughter, Sal Colvin, Widowed, has returned home to stay. Her son, George, had come west before her as Postmaster of Plainville.

Mother and daughter spend a joyful evening together. Sal has hopes of making the farm one of the leading dairy estates of the Midwest. Grandma Jen has suggested Garret Lowe, widower and Sal's girlhood beau, to manage the rebuilding details. (The story continues.)

Sal was about to blow out the candle when she heard a rap on the door.

"Mother, may I come in?" "Of course, George."

When they had seated themselves by the window George spoke tentatively: "I'm sorry I didn't come home then, but I couldn't. I wish I had seen Father before the end."

"That was impossible, George; it was horrid, ghastly. A neighbor rescued them from the flaming building. How only God knows. Their charred bodies were burned beyond recognition, but I knew it was they. The limousine too had burned."

"But how?" "The police believe it was by a short circuit, but they couldn't find the cottage was burned to the ground."

"How did Dora's mother take it?" "Very badly. She had a stroke and is still in the hospital. She knew of Dora's affair with Jock, but her sudden death was a horrible blow to her."

For a while they were silent, tense with the memory of tragedies and sorrows past. To her he had once been a dashing and handsome youth; then her husband. To him it brought twofold sorrow; he had been his father; she a sweetheart and friend led astray.

"I'm so sorry, George; you loved her so."

"Yes, mother, but that is all past. That love has long ceased to be. I've met the one I will marry."

"I'm so glad, George, who is she?" "Aura Lowe. You know her father, I believe—Garret Lowe?"

"Yes," she replied tremulously; "we were good friends."

George took his mother's hand, holding them gently. "Now, Mother, don't grieve so about the past; it is a closed chapter in our lives so we mustn't let it spoil our future out here."

He released her hands and kissed her affectionately. He walked to the door and stated, "Better get some sleep, dear. Good night."

"I will, George. Goodnight."

Sal sat at the window staring out into the moonlit, starry night. The crickets were shrilly chanting in harmony. "It was good to be home again. It seemed as though she were just awakening from a frightful dream. Her life with Jock had seemed that. And now she was thankful that the Lord had given her the opportunity to pick up the threads she had left behind and begin a new life. Already, she had hopes of making her girlhood home one of the best dairy estates in the Midwest.

She lay on the bed and a few minutes later, restless and unable to fall asleep, arose, donned slippers and robe, and noiseless stole outside.

The moon was shining brightly; a breeze caressingly stirred the leaves of the trees. She slowly walked to the lower pasture by the spring, the tryst of her girlhood days with Garret. How carefree and happy she had been; how foolishly she had thrown her happiness away. No, it wasn't all so terrible; she had George. He was the priceless jewel of her unhappy marriage. She had sat down on a mossy stone when a masculine voice startled her.

"Sal!" "Garret," she exclaimed happily; "it is good to see you again."

She had arisen. He was standing before her, holding her hands gently but firm. They were both silent; looking at each other as if to reacquaint themselves once more. Garret had changed considerably. She had left him years ago an ambitious, carefree, youth, but now he was a man older, wiser and settled.

Invitation to all their fellow workers of the M.I.F. Co. to attend their wedding on Saturday, August 5th which will be held at 3:00 o'clock at the Tabor Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Winifred Lacey of the Purching Department, Miss Arlene Peterson of the bookkeeping dept. and Frank Bigelow of the Cost Dept. are all enjoying their vacations this week.

Both were speechless; they were engulfed by an overpowering feeling where speech was unnecessary. It was a careless moment of youth one had made a mistake thereby shattering the happiness of many, and now Providence has brought them together again. Each was thankful and happy to see his loved one again.

"I've been looking forward to seeing you, Sal. It has been so long. Memories brought me here in hopes of meeting you. I know I shouldn't say this now, but my love for you is the same only more intense. There never has been anyone to take your place. I did a great wrong to Aura's mother; I never loved her, but she was kind and very much in love with me, and I was so lonely and heartsick."

"I was a very foolish girl, Garret; I'm sorry for the grief I've caused you."

"Tell me, Sal," he entreated gently; "Tell me that you'll be mine some day."

"Yes, Garret, I will in a year or two. Please be patient a while longer. The past is still too vivid in my memory."

"I'll do anything for you, Sal. Anything. I know our future will be happy; we've been like driftwood carried away by the rushing swirl of water only to meet again farther down the stream in its calm flow."
