Central Stores Close At Governor's Request To Conserve Fuel Oil

Many Local Establishments Were Closing Mondays Each Week Before Request Was Made—Object Is To Conserve Fuel—Essential Places to Remain Open.

Branford's central merchants are complying with Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin's request that all except essential stores close on both Sundays and Mondays until further notice.

It is understood that some of the business establishments are not burning fuel oil but are complying with the request. Several stores here closed on their own accord on Mondays for several weeks previous to the announcement. The Branford Theatre closes Wednesday.

In this connection Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin says:

"The response to my request for closing 'non-essential-to-the-war' places of business on two consecutive days has been most gratifying. Through voluntary cooperation we are not only saving much needed fuel but are also saving gasoline which workers might ordinarily use in getting to and from work. The more we can reduce our demands for gasoline, the more tank and barge and truck space can be made available for transporting oil for heating our homes. I want to thank Connecticut people for the splendid manner in which they have cooperated to meet this grave emergency."

"It is a grave emergency—and the men and women who have been without heat, the parents of children, old people and sick people—those who had little or no heat during the cold spell of last week, they know what it is to be cold. And because we knew that people were going cold, we worked night and day—and we're still doing it—to get sufficient supplies of oil into the State to meet the needs of our people."

"In normal times we in Connecticut produce about one billion, three hundred million dollars worth of manufactured products in a year. Our estimated production last year was nearly four times normal—or about five billion dollars worth. This was a dream come true—a dream which meant much to the successful prosecution of the war, to the expansion of our fighting forces—yes, and to our Connecticut boys who, together with those from other states and other nations, are

Rescue Slowed When Motorists Drive To Crash

Motorists who drove to the scene of the plane crash Sunday afternoon are likely to be asked to explain their presence. Not only was it a question of waste of gas, but the motorists were so parked on the narrow dirt road as to completely block some of the fire apparatus which was trying to get through to the burning plane. With the arrival of state police cars, the state police ambulance from the Bethany barracks, and an army jeep, most of the motorists lost their curiosity in a desire to extricate themselves quickly from a situation where they were unmistakably not welcome.

Motorists who violated the ban against pleasure driving have not yet been reported to the rationing office but police were busy taking numbers.

Clubs Discuss Charter Night

The leaders of the clubs comprising the Branford Christian Association met at the home of Mrs. Doris Weeks last Wednesday evening to discuss the procedure that will be used at the Charter Service of the Association to be held on Monday evening, February 8. This service is held annually to recognize each club as an official division of the association. All members of the community, especially the parents of the club members are invited to attend this ceremony. It will be held this year in the Blackstone Memorial Library at 7:30 P.M. Leaders present were Mrs. Doris Weeks, Wendell King, Robert Maars, Ross Bunce and Rhoda Griffin.

Lieut. Charles G. Salem of Hempstead, L. I., bailed out of his burning army airplane near Cherry Hill Farm Sunday and parachuted safely a half-mile away. He had been flying alone, but another flight of planes was in the vicinity and the pilots apparently saw him bail out. The other planes circled twice around the spot where he landed, observed him to be safe, dipped their wings in acknowledgement of his successful landing, and went on their way.

James E. Cosgrove, Jr., George Barba, Casimer Johnson and Joseph Flinta were the first to arrive at the scene where they assisted the pilot and also extinguished flames which threatened New Haven Water Co. property where the plane crashed. When asked if he received injuries, Salem said that he was OK but wanted to be taken at once to the crash.

Capt. Waldo Johnston and enlisted men from the army detail base at the Municipal Airport arrived in an army jeep and took charge both of plane and pilot. Salem went to the airport with them.

Chief Observer Robert G. Cate, who chanced to be at the Branford observation post at the time of the crash, together with Miss Frances Johannes and Miss Marion Edgerton, were on duty as spotters at the time. Mr. Cate said, "We heard the plane's motor sputter, saw black smoke coming from it, and that it was losing altitude fast. It nosed directly down and the pilot bailed out. Immediately I put in a Red Flash call to the information center. At the same instant I got the control officer on the phone, the plane crashed and apparently blew up in flame. After completing the Red Flash, I called the local police, the fire department and the state police. This was all a matter of routine and would have been done by any plane spotters on duty."

The local observation post report was as follows: "A routine patrol flight going East over Long Island Sound met with difficulty. The pilot noticed engine trouble and changed his direction in hopes of making the New Haven Airport. Unfortunately he didn't make his destination and was forced to bail out over the vicinity of Cherry Hill Farms in Branford. The observers on duty, Frances Johannes and Marion Edgerton, had reported the regular flight when they noticed the motor skipping. By following the flight closely they saw smoke start to pour from the plane. The Chief Observer, being present at the time made a comment on the possibility of a crash, when suddenly the pilot bailed out and the plane nose-dived to the ground. Upon hitting the ground, the plane exploded and was consumed by fire. A Red Flash Message was put in immediately and the Chief Observer was ordered to the scene of the crash to locate and interview the pilot. Through the C.O.'s Red Flash Message and the report of the interview, the First Interceptor Command in New York was able to complete the report of the accident. Fortunately the pilot was only slightly injured. While all the details of the report are not published, the observers can readily see the importance of being alert and on duty 24 hours regardless of weather. Also the necessity of following a flight through and watching for direction changes and unusual events that might take place."

People frequently ask that question, she replied and added that

With the intensification of various campaigns for sending books to men in the armed forces—the Council on Books in Wartime is urging the use of labels on packets, and a new Victory Book Campaign for 1943 is planned, to mention but two outstanding efforts—we hear a great deal of discussion of what books are most suitable for men in uniform. Some people think mysteries, romances, tough westerns and other light books are the answer. Others maintain that by and large service men want the best books they can get. (We're speaking of "recreational" books, of course, not technical books or military books.)

The subject is interesting, so we asked one of the most perspicacious booksellers in New York: "What kind of books does your shop send to the men in camp?"

People frequently ask that question, she replied and added that our world has sharpened their critical faculties and rendered their standards more exacting. Probably less than at any other time does a soldier want to be bored with a book that is not to his taste or which merely plays down his time.

There is a definite reason, she thinks, and her explanation is interesting and pretty convincing. "The man in the armed forces is not a tired business man, she says, "he's an individual facing a crisis. Business men may be tired, but the soldiers are not. They're facing the real thing in the world and they don't want to waste their time." The very fact that they are dealing with the crisis of

BRANFORD DOWNS STUBBORN SHELTO'

Last Friday in the Branford gymnasium Shelton, Conn., which led for a major portion of the game, saw the Branford team put on a sport and capture their fourth of six Homeatic League games winning by a score of 40-33.

The win, marked the return to form of Ed Petela who led all scorers in garnering 18 points. Ed played a remarkably good game and time and time again, when Shelton would take a lead, it was Ed who would spark the drive and keep Branford right in the game.

Shelton started out fast, and at one time led by 10 to 3. They held the lead right up to the end of the half, before a spurt by Branford put the locals ahead.

The third quarter again saw Shelltop grab the lead and match Branford basket for basket. Eddie Petela then engineered the closing drive which saw Branford take the lead and hold it to the end.

It was a fast, high scoring game and the fast action saw many fouls called by Tom Drogan, Commercial High coach, who refereed the game.

Monday evening, in the Branford Community House, the Branford Big Five took possession of second place in the Community League with a 54 to 28 triumph over the favored Blue Devils.

The two teams were battling for second place and the game started out very closely contested. The first half score was 10-14 in favor of the Blue Devils.

Then as the second half got underway, the Big Five put on a dazzling exhibition of shooting and pulled away from the bewildered Blue Devils.

Johnny "Bum" Weted, Levi Jackson, and Captain Stan Lubeski led the attack getting 20, 18 and 10 points respectively.

Dave Clark played a good game for the losers.

FROM STATE REPORT

The following paragraph is found in the 24th biennial report of the Connecticut State Board of Fisheries and Game for the years 1940-1942.

The fishing rights on the Farm River, held under easement by the Waltonian Club, were purchased by the State Board of Fisheries and Game, and it has been operated as a State-regulated stream since that time.

Yankee Kitchen Recipes

Listen Mondays thru Fridays at 2:15 P. M. — Yankee Network

Today, we are indebted for most of our recipes to our generous listeners and friends who have supplied so many good things. We have sorted out those suggestions to give you those that are easy to make, and things that are easy to get in most markets.

We are preparing recipes and menus with the coming point system of rationing in mind; for this coming rationing doesn't mean that we shall not be able to have good and delicious food on our tables. This rationing is insurance that we shall all get the things that we need for sustenance and good health.

Potatoes-in-the-Rain
From Mrs. E. Whitworth, North Chelmsford, Mass.

Boil some small potatoes, enough for your family's appetite, and when done, heat an unfluted can of chicken soup over the potatoes. Cook a short while in order to get the flavor of the chicken into the potatoes. Serve these potatoes as the main course and accompany of cabbage slaw and raw carrot strips.

Baked Egg on Toast
From Mrs. Helen S. Harrison, Auburn, Maine

Mrs. Morrison cooks this for her little boy and we are sure that every little boy would like it. It reminds me of "Eggs-in-a-Fence" that were fried on flat rocks when he was out in the woods. These were prepared by tearing the centers out of pieces of bread and then placing the crust on flat red hot rocks, breaking open an egg and putting it in the open center so that the egg fried right there on the rock.

Pigs' Knuckles with Vegetables

4 pigs' knuckles Small head white
3 big onions cabbage
3 small potatoes 8 baby carrots

Wash knuckles thoroughly. Sprinkle with salt, place in deep heavy kettle. Half cover with water. Cover and boil for 1 1/2 hours. Peel potatoes and onions, scrape carrots, wash and slice the cabbage. Place vegetables on top of the meat. Add salt and pepper, cook 45 minutes longer. Serve on a deep platter with the meat in the middle.

LETTER FROM GOVERNOR
A letter has been received from Gov. He congratulates the community on having such a fine building.

The North Branford Board of Library Directors met on Monday evening in the home of their chairman, Mrs. Alden J. Hill for the transaction of bi-monthly business concerning both the Northford Public Library and the Atwater Memorial Library.

Travel over the State Highways which has become extremely light at best, resembles travel over rural roads in bygone days during such icy spells.

Bicyclists were lured to Branford by the reports of a plane in distress. Motorists curbed their curiosity in most instances, remembering the recent driving regulations.

Aircraft Warning

Service

By Charlotte Pfeiff

January 10th Donald Sawtelle and J. A. Gell stayed from 2 a. m. through 6 a. m. because their relief was AWOL. This was just discovered as these observers didn't bother to phone their Supervisors they just continued on through till the next shift came. We seem to be having a lot of AWOL lately, I wonder if it is necessary?

Wednesday A. M., Muriel Pierce and partner found the telephone box door frozen shut and the light fixture over the bulletin board damaged. While Mrs. Cate volunteered to send a man down to fix these things up, Muriel said she could manage. So with the aid of a key, which she used for a screw driver and her pocket mirror which was converted to a knife she managed to fix these things up very nicely and continued on as though nothing had happened.

Friday of this week the Chief Observer, Robert Cate received a telegram from Commanding General Willis Taylor stating that The War Dept. had completed a special form to be used by observers to apply for gasoline rationing for duty. This doesn't interest us particularly because of the complete cooperation of the local Rationing Board. It does show however that the War Dept. shows a high regard for The Aircraft Warning Service.

Another order received from Gen. Taylor, was to the effect that the Chief Observer is to ask the local Police Dept. to relay to the Observers on duty at the Observation Post any information they might receive or have on any Red Flash Message material. They are to call the post in incidents such as the plane crash of Sunday or any such incidents as—Information on Submarines—Paratroops—Signaling—Shelling or bombing—objects dropped from planes or any unusual incidents that may come to their attention, so that these reports may go thru as Red Flash Messages and save time and confusion in trying to contact the proper ones at the headquarters.

There is an interesting broadcast from WBRV, Radio Station in Waterbury, on Aircraft Warning Service. Our observers may enjoy listening to these broadcasts on Thursday evenings at 9:15 p. m.

Warmer Clothing Only Antidote To Colder Buildings

Making the best of the present fuel situation, which may result in lower temperatures and colder houses, by reverting to the old time habit of using warmer clothing was the theme of the current weekly bulletin of the State Department of Health. It emphasized especially the need for protecting the children against the winter cold both indoors and out, night and day.

In lighter vein, the bulletin recalled older times when what fuel was available was poorly distributed, the family gathering 'round the stove or fireplace toasting one side at a time, the use of feather beds and warming pans and the "red" flannels which were as inevitable accompaniment of old time winter. It went on to remind us that when we jumped to artificial heat, thus raising indoor temperatures to summer heat, customs changed. Flannels and extra layers of clothes disappeared and abbreviation became the style, for there was heat plus in home, school, church and even our motor cars.

With "share the fuel" demand, their record as observers and know they will do as good a job in the new career.

we must again revert to type, said the bulletin. Warmer clothes and more clothes, especially more under wear, will save the day for young and old. Especially for the children, this should be well selected. Whatever the material used, it should be light and well-constructed to allow freedom of movement. It should be absorbent to keep the body dry and warm. Night wear as well as day wear should be warm, and since it is hard to keep youngsters covered, their night clothing should be long-sleeved, long-legged and come up well around the neck. Older people, too, will find this sort of clothing more comfortable.

MOVIE GUYED

Red Skelton is supposed to know all the answers.

No sooner do Abbott and Costello finish their picture, "Who Done It?" than Skelton comes up with his "I Doot It."

Joan Crawford is completing the knitting of an elaborate "dinner sweater." It is fashioned of fine fuschia-toned yarn in an intricate "butterfly" stitch. When it is completed, tiny golden sequins will emphasize the knit butterflies. Miss Crawford plans to wear the sweater with a long, fitted skirt of sky blue.

Ann Sothern is now a "community farmerette." Latest addition to the east of vegetables, the Metro Goldwyn Mayer star with the aid of her neighbors and friends, is busily utilizing her spare time away from the "Swing Shift Maizie" set, turning a large vacant lot she owns in Beverly Hills into (she hopes) a thriving vegetable garden.

Latest addition to the east of Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's musical fun-fest "Right About Face" is New York stage comedian Howard Freeman.

Wallace Beery finishes role in "Marines" film.

The U.S.O. drive hasn't ended, as far as band leader Tommy Dorsey is concerned. The popular orchestra leader now appearing with Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland in Metro Goldwyn Mayer's "Girl Crazy" has turned over all the royalties from his band recording "Free For All" to the U.S.O. Fund.

Asplendid double feature picture program is now showing at the Loew Theatre with Lewis Stone and Mickey Rooney in "Andy's Double Life" supported by an excellent cast which includes Ann Rutherford, Cecilia Parker and other notable artists.

The second big hit of the program is the first New Haven showing of "Underground Agent" starring Bruce Bennett, Leslie Brooks, and Frank Albertson. It is a fast action drama with plenty of thrills, and speed. Other features on the same program are the March of Time and the News. The College is closed on Thursday, but opens on Friday.
