Warning Service Very Essential Writes Officer

Army Personnel And Equipment Follows-Up Reports Of Ground Observers.

The following story is from the publicity officer of the local observation post: As publicity officer for an Aircraft Warning Service Ground Observers Corps Observation Post in Connecticut, I am in a position to hear rumors and complaints. In conversation last week with my Chief Observer and in cooperation with the ideals of Major Robert B. Cate, State Liaison Officer of Aircraft Warning Service in this state, I hope to free the minds of the dubious observers, as well as the civilians generally, of their dishevelment.

Aircraft Warning Service has had all sorts of publicity in the past and the appeal for volunteers will be lost unless there is a clarification on the Service in general. The following excerpt from the "Air Force," official service journal of the U. S. Army Air Forces seems to be the most enlightening and interesting story and bears repeating. As follows: We may not all appreciate the fact that one of the Air Force's most important units is made up of some 1,500,000 civilian volunteers, attached to our Fighter Command.

These volunteers are the backbone of our Aircraft Warning Service. Almost all of them serve as ground observers (they object to "aircraft spotters") in the Ground Observers Corps.

General Arnold recently stated: "The service rendered by ground observers in our system of National Defense is frequently misunderstood."

Union Memorial Service Sunday

The annual union Memorial Day service will be held in the First Baptist Church Sunday evening at eight o'clock. The Rev. Valentine Wilson of the Montowese Baptist Church, North Haven, will be the preacher. Because of the holiday coming on Sunday this year it is expected that a capacity audience will attend the service. A special invitation is extended to the patriotic organizations of the community. Although persons living within walking distance of the church are urged to walk, others living longer distances are permitted to use their cars to attend church services. Ample time will be left between the exercises at the monument on the Green in the afternoon and the hour of the service in the evening to make attendance possible.

The minister of the church, Rev. A. W. Jones, extends a cordial invitation to all people of the community to this service which honors our soldier dead. Mr. Jones would appreciate hearing from the proper officials of the various organizations as to the number of seats to be reserved for each.

The resignation of Karl B. Reynolds as vice president, treasurer and trust officer of the Wallingford Bank and Trust Co. has been announced.

A native of Branford, Reynolds has been connected with the bank 15 years.

Town Collected Small Quantity Of Waste Fat

Connecticut, with collections of household greases and fats totaling 160,500 pounds in April, reached only 45 per cent of its quota for the month, Walter K. Heim of the State Salvage Committee has announced.

Hartford and Tolland Counties were the only counties to attain 50 per cent or more of their quota, Hartford County collections totaling 53,877 pounds, or 57 per cent of its quota and Tolland County, 2379 pounds, or 50 per cent of quota.

Hartford led the cities of more than 99,000 population with 66 per cent of its quota, West Hartford led the towns between 25,000 and 99,000 population with 67 per cent and Wethersfield, with 108 per cent of quota, led the towns for communities with population between 8000 and 25,000.

The communities between 2000 and 8000 in population produced three towns with collections equaling or surpassing their quota, Saybrook with 133 per cent, Wilton with 117 per cent and Sprague with 100 per cent. Cornwall's 91 per cent led the towns of less than 2000 population.

Official estimates of quota attainment: Branford 38 per cent; East Haven 33 per cent; and our sister town, Guilford collected 97 per cent of its quota.

"Post-War" Being Glibly Voiced

Pastor Asks What Happens When "The Post-War World" Will Have Become Reality—Anticipating That Stormy Day, What Shall The Church's Attitude Be As We Face Inevitable Problems.

By Matthew G. Madden
Pastor, First Congregational Church
The magic of a word! It has a fascinating grip on the American mind. The public is quick to leap on a sky-rocketing word and ride it to glory. And believe it or not, we convince ourselves that that particular word is the panacea for all our religious, social, and economic ills.

I recall a few years ago hearing that pleasingly coined word "Technocracy!" It was the last word of the century, probably a forgotten century. It was the term that was causing the waters to ripple. It was sounded from pulpit and platform. High School students were giving it a semester's study, and then appearing before the public as "one who speaks with authority." It was the magic word of the day. Words are catching. Logan E. Smith, in More Trivia, was expressing the psychology of minds when he wrote: "Self-determination," one of

Bending Energy To Bring Drive To Conclusion

Realizing the additional need for the assistance of the Visiting Nurses because of the shortage of doctors and nurses, the workers on the annual drive for funds are bending every energy to bring the effort to a successful conclusion.

Mrs. John H. Waters, chairman of the drive, urges that captains and workers cooperate in making a final effort to finish the visitation of their lists by the end of this week. The large number of blue and white stickers in the windows of the homes and business houses expresses the wholehearted cooperation of the citizens of Branford in this worthy cause.

The Visiting Nurse Drive for funds follows the many other appeals for funds of a national character while theirs calls for a full expenditure of money collected within the town itself. Appreciating this as a peculiar local need the community as a whole is rallying to assure its final success. In order to assist the canvassers funds collected may be left at the Blackstone Memorial Library with Mrs. Harriet L. Palmer, treasurer of the organization.

Chairman Urges War-Time Habit Of Collections

"We'll never have too much of anything until the war is over," Mr. Harold Tousey, Chairman of the Branford Salvage Committee said today in urging every citizen to develop the war-time habit of bringing salvage items to the red, white and blue official salvage bins. Branford now has one of these Official War Production Board Salvage Depots ready to receive scrap iron and all metals, such as copper, bronze, brass, aluminum, zinc and lead. "Special compartments are provided," Mr. Tousey pointed out, "for rubber tires and tubes, wool and cotton rags. The salvage committee has announced that all of these materials are critically needed in war industries."

The bin in Branford is located on Main Street, at the site of the old Center School.

At other points in nearby vicinities there are bins as follows: East Haven, 556 Main Street, Center Parking Station, Momauglin (2 bins), Foxon (2 bins); North Branford, Northford Store in Northford Center.

The bins in this area are part of a national program to quicken the pace of salvage flow. Official War Production Board signs designate the bins. "These bins, Mr. Tousey said, "are an integral and important part of our war effort."

The minister has been credited as one of the most brilliant preachers in America; pastoring with success some of the largest Negro churches in the United States the Rev. Spottswood now ministers at

Postmen Give Out Book No. 3 Applications

Should Not Be Returned To Hartford Until June 1 And Must Carry Postage.

Unlike the issuance details for War Ration Books 1 and 2, the program for the third book will be handled entirely by mail and nobody will need to wait in line at a registration center to make application for it.

About 3500 books have been distributed here and in North Branford.

Application cards for the new book are now being distributed throughout Connecticut by postmen, and should be filled out for the entire family by one member of the family. In order "to be sure that everyone understands just what he is to do to get these new war ration books for his family, Chester Bowles outlines the following steps:

1. A single application card should do for the whole family, and need to fill out a separate card for each member.
2. Use ink or indelible pencil in filling out the card.
3. Print in spaces where you are directed to print and write your name in long hand where the card requires your signature.
4. Don't mail the card to the OPA mailing center until June 1 or thereafter because the mailing centers are not yet fully organized to handle them.

5. Depending on where you live, the card requires a two-cent or a three-cent stamp. A three-cent stamp is required for any card mailed outside the Hartford postal area.
6. If your postman hasn't delivered you an application card by June 5, go to the general delivery window of your local post office or your local OPA Board and ask for one.

All cards will be "processed" at the OPA mailing center by June 20 and the third war ration books will start flowing out to Connecticut citizens at that time, with distribution completed early in July, Bowles said.

LEAVES CHURCH

Postmaster Joseph H. Driscoll addressed members of the Branford Rotary Club at the meeting Monday on routine duties of a postmaster, 30 attended including the following Rotarians: Robert Hodgkinson of West Haven, F. H. Holbrook of Madison and F. W. Diehl of East Haven.

LADIES NIGHT

Associated Business of Branford will hold a "better-half" party next Thursday night at Howard-Johnsons.

Connecticut dairymen and representatives of milk producers' organizations yesterday told State Milk Administrator Donald O. Hamnerberg and representative W. Harrison Carter of the Office of Price Administration that unless they are allowed to charge higher prices for their products the state's milk supply, the best, cheapest, wartime food commodity, stands in danger of serious shortage as farmers will be forced to go out of business. Draft boards, they agreed, had been generous, but factory competition with its higher wages cannot be met under present regulations.

At the request of the New Haven County Farm Bureau, Eugene Rodney and Sam Botwik presented maintenance costs and figures from the books of Sagal Farms Inc., which is the largest single producer of Grade A milk along the Atlantic Seaboard. Mr. Rodney said, "If we are an essential industry we should be treated as an essential industry, and if we are not, then we should fail by the wayside—just another war casualty."

There has been no increase in the established price of milk since December, 1941, it was pointed out at the special hearing held at the state capital for New Haven and Fairfield County producers. Producers said that wages of farm labor, cost of feed and bedding, machinery and the cost of cows have all gone up rapidly since that time. Wages of industrial workers have increased, it was said, and the income of farmers in other lines of production have been allowed to rise.

It was a rainy day when little planting could be done and over 300 farmers from all parts of the state packed the old Senate chamber to hear and present testimony in the hearing which will be continued today for other counties.

It was brought out that purchase prices in 1943 have increased 30 to 100 per cent. Protein content of grain has been reduced from 20 to 16 per cent, thereby reducing the quantity of milk. Cows selling at $140 to $250 in 1941 cannot be purchased now for less than $250 to $375.

There was some talk of a cent-a-quart increase for the producer, but it was not determined if acceptable to OPA how the increase would be divided between producer, dairy and public or whether the difference would be taken care of by government subsidy.

Ken E. Geyer, manager of the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association said in a written statement:

"Farmers are saying, apparently our government wants munitions above all else and is not particularly interested in whether the people of Connecticut have fluid milk or not. Were it not for the fact that we are at war, we would have had a milk strike some months ago. In fact, many dairy farmers have already struck permanently by selling off their cows and refusing to produce any milk at all until the war is over."

However, he farmer has held on in a greater part by his desire to perform an important home front patriotic activity. At least one half pint of milk a day is the military ration for all the armed forces in places other than the actual battle area.

IN SOBRIETIES

When many of us were kids in school, we begged lilies of our neighbors, gathered wild flowers, washed behind our ears and joined up with the Memorial Day parade in a somewhat gay spirit. So cheerful was it in fact that it was published as Decoration Day. At church and school, it is true, speakers, grand old Civil War veterans, tried to impress upon us the seriousness of the holiday and the hope for everlasting peace.

But the first remained, that it was Decoration Day. We were allowed to enter cemeteries and place bouquets on sunken graves over which waved an American flag. Band music, unless memory fails, was spirited and triumphant. It was a holiday, Decoration Day. No small wonder the term "memorial" is used in Memorial Day, for there is little to be cheerful about this Memorial Day when veterans of the World War soberly place flags on less-sunken graves or watch a memorial wreath sink into the waters as it drifts to these lost at sea.

Let us never forget for a moment that this democracy, that the Government of the United States, the State governments, and the local governmental bodies are servants of the people and not their masters. The American people will submit to controls during an emergency but they will never "goose step" to any tune nor will they ever "heel" any dictator.

When we threaten and national unity is paramount in defense against a common enemy, the America people will go over the top, all-out, willingly, enthusiastically. But with victory behind them they will return to their homes, their farms, and their jobs as free men with the knowledge that their government is by the people and for the people.

DANGERS OF DEFICIT SPENDING

A new concept held by some government officials, and now coming into the public eye, is one which considers continuous deficit spending by the government essential to the economic security of the nation.

In an appraisal of this concept which both explains and refutes it, Harold C. Moulton, President of the Brookings Institution, warns us that if the United States chooses the path of deficit spending we can avoid disastrous inflation only by regulation and control amounting to complete regimentation of our economic life.

Completely ignored in this theory is the experience we are now gaining in the war. For one thing, the war is showing us vast new fields for investment, in synthetic fibers, textiles, plastics, television, electronics, etc. Furthermore, the government is now spending far in excess of what it has ever spent before, and as a consequence, we see that inflation has to be guarded against with such measures as rationing, production control, and general regimentation.

the opinion of minorities should be respected.
"Or perhaps you would prefer to contemplate an edible can of whipped cream. Try to go with preserved strawberries. One could then chop a can to pieces in the salad bowl and use the contents on home-made biscuits. The union of rhubarb and cream appeals as a happy possibility. A can flavor of baby onions to accompany potato hash (you remember potatoes) has definite possibilities, and a tomato ketchup flavored container to surround canned baked beans should appeal to a wide public. The whole field needs thorough exploration."

QUIT KIDDING

In spite of the apparent success of the last war bond drive, in Branford and elsewhere the ominous fact remains that of the billions of dollars worth of bonds sold only a small proportion went to individuals. As usual banks, corporations and other institutional investors with accumulated reserves absorbed most of the obligation.

This means that the prosperous masses are still riding the crest of a luxuriant "war" boom, with income expanded in March, 1943, 28 per cent over March, 1942. Taxes and bond buying will barely offset the "new rich" of the billions of the "new rich."
This all adds up to one thing: The people at home are still trying to fight the war the easy way. Instead of sacrificing comfort for the sake of victory as our men are sacrificing their lives, they are so faring this war as a day's vacation in more comfort.

Government seizure of the coal mines is the culmination of class legislation administered by class interests to those lost at sea.

One-sided legislation such as the Wagner Act developed executives who, aided by politicians seeking the voting power of organized labor, threaten destruction of individual liberty and socialization of productive enterprise. No longer can the public afford to sit idly by while powerful agencies of government favor one group over another, merely because it is good public strategy to do so. We have seen the result of that kind of favoritism.

THE MYSTERIOUS STRONGBOX

GOVERNMENT . . . BY THE PEOPLE

No responsible person will object to government controls during the emergency. The American public has accepted the dictates of Washington as they have been handed down, willingly and cooperatively. But nowhere in America are the words "directives," "orders," and "controls" popular. War words possibly, practice words in this country—never!

Under the present tightening manpower controls a man is told what he may carry, whether or not he can have a raise, what he can have, how much he can charge for what he sells, what materials he can have, whether he is to go into the military service or not, whether he is necessary or unnecessary, whether his business is essential or non-essential.

As a result of many Washington controls, millions of people in this country are now in a quandary over their rapidly diminishing rights. Born and reared in freedom, America resents the possibility that a controlled economy may persist, for some indications have pointed to a continuation of such a condition after the emergency has past.

Let us never forget for a moment that this democracy, that the Government of the United States, the State governments, and the local governmental bodies are servants of the people and not their masters. The American people will submit to controls during an emergency but they will never "goose step" to any tune nor will they ever "heel" any dictator.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By James Preston

Every time the administration sets up an inflation barrier someone comes along and knocks it down. First it was the "Little Steel" formula. Then came the "hold the line" order which begins to resemble a sieve. To a great body of legislators the present situation is shaping itself into another inflation spiral.

With labor clamoring for raises and getting them, and the farm forces out to get theirs too, there is little question of the weakness of the machinery that has been set up to control the rising cost of living. The establishment of subsidies to enable the OPA to roll back prices on food and other cost-of-living items, it is estimated, will cost a half billion dollars all of which will have to be paid later on in taxes.

These problems which are now uppermost here because of their national importance are closely connected with the attempt Congress is making to straighten out the muddled labor situation by spelling out a clean cut, practical, and workable national labor policy. Legislation to strengthen the government's hand in dealing with labor abuses tending to interfere with war production now centers around the Senate-approved Connally Plant Squeeze Bill (S. 786) while House approval of the bill is not yet certain.

Under the present tightening manpower controls a man is told what he may carry, whether or not he can have a raise, what he can have, how much he can charge for what he sells, what materials he can have, whether he is to go into the military service or not, whether he is necessary or unnecessary, whether his business is essential or non-essential.

Poison ivy
Poison ivy has three rather shiny dark green leaflets in each cluster. The old rhyme "leaflets three, let it be" is worth remembering if you would avoid poison ivy. Horticulture, May 15 suggests the following method for eradication: "Poison ivy can be killed by spreading ten pounds of borax on each square rod of soil. The borax works slowly, but effectively. It also kills some other kinds of plants—noticeably dogwoods—so it is unwise to place the borax above the roots of shade trees and other desirable plants whose tolerance for the material is not known."

There is nothing easier than getting your first 10 pounds of sugar for home canning this year. In line with its overall policy of encouraging home canning by making regulations simple as possible, the OPA has designated Stamps No. 15 and 16 in War Ration Book No. 3 for fine-point purchases on the "honor" system. All you have to do is go to your grocery store, surrender these stamps and you'll be permitted to buy 10 pounds of sugar.

Later in the summer, if you need more sugar for canning, you may obtain from your local rationing board a certificate for as much as an additional 15 pounds for each member of your family, providing you meet certain clean-cut requirements.

Within the next two or three weeks our Price Division will complete its list of dollars-and-cents prices on 75 per cent of the staples used by the Connecticut housewife. Nearly 100 brands and varieties of canned fruit and vegetables will then be under specific maximum ceilings.

With the completion of this task, the State OPA will issue a full list of these top prices to cover all sections of Connecticut. We hope to have the job finished by mid-June. Then every housewife in the state should know in dollars and cents the very highest price she should pay for all cereals, butter, eggs, meats, poultry, baby foods and canned fruits and vegetables.

Teen-Agers Have Fun At USO

"DON'T forget us! We want a share in the war too!" This is the plea of local teenagers. When the 18-to-21 year olds were drafted, many of the younger boys and girls felt neglected. "We're the forgotten people," they say. "We haven't forgotten glances, but we haven't forgotten glances." Miss Richardson says with a smile. "At USO dances for the youngsters, there are pretty rocks, soft lights, nice table service and a fine atmosphere of sophistication which they love, these young men and girls. They are being urged to study and understand the needs of youth in wartime and to help their children adjust themselves. Other useful services being carried out by these youngsters are the collection of books, magazines and puzzles, and the making of hats, planting victory gardens, and leading a band in community projects wherever needed.

ON ALERT IN NEW GUINEA—The highest degree of agility, coordination and teamwork is demanded of members of an anti-aircraft gun crew. In addition, its members must have the kind of nerves that will stand the protracted periods when nothing happens. Once something does happen they must snap to the alert. Every man has his appointed task and it is timed to the split second with the tasks of his fellow crew members. The work is fast and furious until the last enemy plane is downed or routed. These pictures show a gun crew and installation in New Guinea where the combination of accurate anti-aircraft fire and daring flyers has kept Japanese planes losses high. Gun crew alerted and ready for action. Note precautions taken to camouflage the position. When the battery is inactive the netting with the populating strips of colored material is pulled over the equipment, effectively concealing it from prying aerial eyes.

THE POCKETBOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

Warning Service Continued from Page One stood and generally underestimated. They must realize that their part is a VITAL one in the National Defense.

Now and then the Air Force gets an opportunity to appreciate in full the role being played by our ground observers. This was emphasized recently when ground observers saved a flight of nine fighter planes lost in bad weather over an isolated section of the Allegheny Mountains.

Peculiar atmospheric conditions prevented the flight from maintaining contact with the base. The flight could receive messages but couldn't send any. Ground observers in the area didn't know that, of course. All they knew was that planes were circling overhead. But continued and accurate reporting by several observers furnished reports on the location of an information center and charted an operations board, led to only one conclusion: the planes were lost; something was wrong with their radio.

In the hope that the ships might still be able to receive messages, a controller at the information center radioed position on the prearranged frequency for that night and gave instructions on how to proceed. Almost out of sight, planes immediately straightened their course. Shortly after they all landed safely.

The church can do much toward meeting this post-war demand. The church can acquaint itself with the magnitude and scope of this post-war problem by making the members of the church post-war unemployment conscious, through sermons, discussion groups and literature.

It is possible, conduct an industrial survey of your own community. What is the gross output of the local factory? How many people are engaged in war work?

How quickly can a turn-over from a war-time to a peace-time basis be accomplished? If the reverse will produce unemployment, "post-war unemployment."

"Post-War" Being

recent production of war goods. The gross output of 1943 is estimated at one hundred sixty billion dollars, of which more than eighty five billion will go into war work. The employment figures are equally impressive and significant. In 1940 approximately forty six million six hundred thousand people were gainfully employed. Of these, less than one million were engaged in the production of war goods or were in the armed forces. It is estimated that by the end of 1943 that more than sixty two million will be working, with some twenty million directly in war manufacture, and an additional nine million in the military service.

It seems rather obvious that when America turns back from a war-time to a peace-time basis our government will no longer be in the market for eighty five billion dollars worth of war goods. This means that the twenty million now laboring in war industries will be reduced to peace-time peacetime jobs.

This is a tremendous task for commerce and industry to tackle. To be able to create jobs for twenty eight million persons is no easy undertaking. To offset the eighty five billion dollars of war production which incidentally will be reduced to a total output of about one hundred fifty billion dollars will be required, which incidentally will be reduced to a total output of about one hundred percent over that of 1940, is my candid opinion that it will take many months to achieve this goal.

Sensing the immediacy of this problem, the Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones called together a group of the nation's businessmen a few months ago, and suggested that representatives from the country's businesses be organized. The result of that conference was the birth of the Committee for Economic Development, of which Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Standard Oil Corporation chairman. These men are accepting the responsibility of assisting commerce and industry in meeting the problems which our country will be confronted when the war ends. This service is controlled by the government. It is this committee is attempting to find a solution to the devastating plague of unemployment in the building post-war era, now can the East Haven on Monday, June 7 at 10 a. m. in St. Mary's Church.

Just to the right of the gun a shell is going into the fire-eater which sets the fuse to burst at a predetermined altitude. Sitting at either side of the gun are the men who match powder on the dial of the mechanism which keeps the muzzle of the gun on the intruders.

... And especially fit for a hungry half-dozen Americans, gathered expectantly around your board. Nourishment in part and parcel of this dish—and so is appetite appeal.

ESCALOPED SPAGHETTI, SPINACH AND CHEESE

9-ounce pack. Salt and pepper
1 1/2 cups spaghetti 1 1/2 tablespoons
1 1/2 pounds butter
spinach 3 tablespoons
2 teaspoons flour
chopped onion 1/4 cups milk
1 1/2 cups grated American cheese

Break the spaghetti into short lengths and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and place in a buttered baking dish. Cut off spinach roots, remove any wilted leaves and tough stems and wash thoroughly. Place in a saucepan, add the onion and sprinkle with salt and pepper. (The water that clings to the leaves is usually sufficient for cooking.) Cover and cook until tender. Do not drain. Melt the butter in a double boiler, add the flour and mix well. Add the milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add the spinach liquid and 1/2 cup of the cheese and stir until the cheese is melted. Season with salt and pepper. Add the spinach and pour over the spaghetti. Sprinkle with the remaining 1 cup of cheese and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for about 25 minutes or until the cheese is melted and the mixture is heated through. Six servings.

From the Governor's Office
By Governor Raymond E. Baldwin

Last Friday I received a telegram from Prentiss M. Brown, OPA administrator in Washington, requesting my cooperation in the enforcement of the most recent ban upon pleasure and non-essential driving.

Our armed forces are on the offensive everywhere and they will need all the supplies of fuel that we can send them. We are sending it to them now in ever-increasing quantities and the gasoline supply situation along the eastern seaboard is serious; and the need for restricted driving is most urgent, so urgent, in fact, that we must all make further sacrifices in personal pleasure, and we must drive our cars only for absolutely essential use.

Included in Mr. Brown's telegram to me was a request for the immediate enforcement of the pleasure driving restrictions. This included stopping cars on the highways, policing amusement areas and other regulatory measures. Mr. Brown also telegraphed mayors and the chiefs of police in cities and towns throughout the state asking for similar enforcement.

Now you all remember well the difficulties we endured last winter. We struggled desperately to get fuel oil and kerosene and gasoline into our state... we even went out of state, to Albany, and brought it in ourselves. Buildings were closed, neighbors cared for neighbors without heat; thousands of cars were put up on blocks, and the reports of violations of the non-essential driving regulations were relatively few. The oil and kerosene and gasoline we were able to obtain were distributed fairly and equitably through the emergency system we set up. We all worked together and we pulled ourselves through by our own bootstraps.

That was a great emergency and, having seen the way in which the people of Connecticut cooperated, I sincerely feel that we can see this present emergency through the same way—voluntarily. Because I know that we in Connecticut are fully conscious that this is a war of oil and gasoline and ships, and because I know that there is hardly a home in our state which doesn't have a son or a close relative in the service of our country, sacrificing personal pleasure driving is a very small contribution for us to make to the cause for which they fight.

I studied the telegram from the OPA headquarters in Washington very carefully. I found myself in hearty accord with supplying the need of our armed forces with

Following the parade there will be exercises at the monument on the green. every drop of gasoline and oil that any additional sacrifice on our part would make available to them. I believe that the people of the state to a man and to a woman feel likewise. I could not believe however that it was necessary that our state and local police go out on the highways and other places and question every citizen about his or her particular business. Such a plan assumes that our people will not cooperate and that they will not conscientiously comply with the regulations in order to save gasoline before they have been given an opportunity to show otherwise.

And so, in my answer to Mr. Brown I pointed out that Connecticut people had proved their ability to cooperate upon a voluntary basis in the past, and I expressed the opinion that "until the conduct of our citizens indicates otherwise" I did not believe it necessary to institute any plan of state-wide inspection or interference with the free movement of our people by either state or municipal law enforcement authorities.

We have compared traffic on Sunday, May 16, before the ban was announced with traffic on Sunday, May 23. On the main trunk line highways there were decreases ranging from 23 to 57 per cent. Most of the large centers of population have reported substantial reductions in traffic. These reports indicate that the great majority of the people can be trusted to do the right thing and the necessary thing. I hope that I can report to you next week even more encouraging indications of compliance.
