the past three years, said this week Under the editorship of Erskine Caldwell a series of books on that the outlook for the party lo-"American Folkways" is now being published. Twelve have already cally is most optimistic. He praised the good harmony within the American Forkways is now being puonsned, Twelve have inready come from the presses. Seven are now in preparation. These books tell, for instance, of "Golden Gate Country," "Blue Ridge Coun-try," "Mormon Country", "Ozark Country", and so on. The latest, written by Clarence M. Webster is entitled "Town Meeting Country." It is especially interesting to us because it deals with Yankee Land. Mr. Webster spotlights the group of towns lying in the region starting at the mouth of the Connecticut River, follows it to East Haddam, and then going north to Ludlow village in Massachusetts. The line runs due cast to the southern limits of the City of Worces-The line runs due east to the southern limits of the City of Worces-ter. From there it goes to the Rhode Island line at Slatersville; then it drops south to Block Island Sound at a point just west of Man-tunuck. His book is the story of the development of Yankee Folk-ways within these boundaries, but it is also the story, actually, of towns such as East Haven, which although outside the region de-lined have much with it in common. One of these folkways, brought down from the used and wat still strong in the writer points out down from the past and yet still strong, is, the writer points out, most significant of all. At least once every year the voters, or perhaps the voters and also the property owners ,come together in more or less solenn conclave. Now and then they meet twice a year and, if suitable petitions are presented, as often as they wish. The town meeting has the dignity of an event created by some deep-rooted desire in the people. It is an assembly born of the spirit of the people who come to it.

For all those who want a back ground of the "Pure Democracy" of the New England Town Meeting, and the way which Yankee towns of the New England Town Meeting, and the way which Tankee towns have developed and changed, we recommend the reading of this book. It is written with keen humor and has a wealth of salty and robust yarns about the early days as well as of the present generaforward to building a strong ortion that will bring both entertainment and a better knowledge of why we of the Town Meeting Country are as we are.

Appointment of an elementary supervisor to watch over the work among the children through the sixth grades is another step in the right direction. Not only will it relieve some of the heavier burdens from the superintendent of schools, but it will be a boon to the elementary teachers as well The School Board has chosen the principal of the Consolidated school in New Fairfield for this latter task. She will come to East Haven with a fine background of specializedwork in elementary supervision.

of merchandise that a country town required. Upstairs was a big hall which was used by the Sons Temperance and any other groups that wanted to hold a meeting, a dance, or a minstrel show. On the night of June 1, 1892 fire of incendiary origin broke out in the Kirkham store and when morning came the establishmen with all its stock and equipmen was in ruins. And the town hall next door had been destroyed bu only after the valuable town rec ords had been taken to safety The fire brought home to the taxpayers of the community the woe ful lack of fire protection and Mr. rkham, Mr. Isaac Hagaman and a few other leading lights set about the work of organizing a company fire fighting volunteers. Sometimes today at Firemen's parade the little hand-drawn fire truck which was trundled by the eager olunteers of that first company is eeted by hoots and laughter. But then the trim little fire truck with its red body and polished brass fittings was the pride of the firemen For years it lay forgotter mid rubbish and cast-offs until its discovery and rejuvenation by one f the well-trained firemen who man our modern fire-fighting oranization today. The fire department, which had ts inception after the disastrous Kirkham fire, grew slowly, but did yeoman duty whenever the church ell gave the alarm that a fire had proken out. Fires were infrequent n the village in those days. Well do I recall the gala night when the East Haven firemen tried out for the first time their trim shining, red vehicle propelled by motor nower, which 30 years or so ago marked the dawn of the aut notive era. There was a real dres narade that night, no mistaking ke Hagaman had a place of hone n the driver's seat along with Chief Harry Page as well befitted one of the pioneers. Calvin Kirkham was no longer with us, but his son, who had in his turn become one of our leading townsmen was on hand occupying a place of honr among the volunteers who filled all available space fore and aft as the new apparatus sped down Mai treet on its first demonstration. I wish I had the space now to tell about East Haven's telephone company which was started by George Kirkham and his neighbors and for years had its offices in the old house that is now being rolled off Main street, but I must put of this interesting episode of old East laven until a later issue.

TALF a billion dollars ... $59 for every man, woman and child living here . . . that's what the vacation business was worth to New England in 1941.

In the five years just before the war, The New Haven spent $300,000 promoting New England in the great travel market that lies between New York, the Mississippi and the Ohio River where 78% of all New England travel originates.

As a result, we not only brought many of the 2,500,000 vacationists a year who come to New England but our freight trains helped keep them fed and supplied during their stay.

Good business for us? Certainly! Good for you, too!
