COMMUNITY CHEST AND WAR FUND

During the period, Monday, Oct. 8 to Monday, Oct. 22, East Haven residents and those of the Greater New Haven Area, will be called upon to Give and Give Generously to the Community Chest and War Fund.

East Haven's campaign organization has already been set up and, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Haesehe, will be ready to do yeoman work in the drive ahead. East Haven has good reason to give generously as a community. We share in the organizations which receive from the Community Chest. We have many in the Armed Forces who will require the services rendered so well by the War Fund. We are interested in combatting hunger and disease abroad.

Many of our citizens will contribute through their places of business in New Haven. Others not reached in that way, will give through our own local organization which is a part of the Community Chest set-up covering the Greater New Haven Area.

With the war over there are many new reasons why this annual Community Chest and War Fund campaign must not fail this year.

A BIT ABOUT A WEEKLY

The other day a subscriber called up to tell us down. She told us that unless she could receive THE NEWS "on time" she would be obliged to cancel her subscription. She didn't want a "late" paper she said, and seeing that THE NEWS carries a Thursday date line, she couldn't understand why the paper didn't reach her until Friday, and on two or three occasions the past year, not until Saturday.

This complaint made us wonder if there may not be others who do not understand the ways of the weekly newspaper.

It is true that THE NEWS, like most other weeklies, does carry a Thursday date line. But it could just as well be dated Friday, or Saturday or even Sunday. It is the NEWS of the current week, not of any given week day. In that respect, as well as in many others, it differs from the familiar daily. The Thursday date line is more or less habit and custom. We know how the Saturday Evening Post carries a Saturday date line, yet goes on sale several days in advance. The same is true of the New York Sunday papers. Dated Sunday they nevertheless are on the newsstands by midweek.

Some people also look to the weekly for what we in the newspaper profession refer to as "spot" news. That is largely what the daily paper is made of. Material for publication in a weekly must be prepared well in advance of publication. Such handicaps preclude the playing of "spot" news. Instead the function of the weekly is to serve as a review, a compendium of local features, a forum for local discussion and a builder of community spirit. We try to fulfill that function. If "Thursday's" issue reaches you before Saturday night, you're lucky.

SHE SINGS NEWS' PRAISES

From our mail box this week came a few verses which we are passing on to our readers. This little poem by an East Haven lady, whose welcome contributions have appeared from time to time in our pages sings the praises of the town newspaper. Here 'tis:

GRANDDAUGHTER AND THE VICTORY MEASLES

Granddaughter, now two and a half years old, had her first tussle with a childhood disease last week. It was, of all things, the German Measles, or should we say Victory Measles, and while they or it were or was coming on granddaughter was a sick baby. She scorned her playthings, and most of the time lay, pale and forlorn in her little crib, with her temperature jumping up to the high spots and mother and grandmother vying in their efforts to soothe and encourage. Then after three days of a household in furor a mild rash suddenly broke out, the temperature dropped to normal, and granddaughter seemed her own lovable self once more.

These childhood diseases, and there are a lot of them, can certainly raise havoc with fond adults and keep the overworked doctors on the jump and go. The new sulpha drugs have been of great aid to the medical profession in keeping some of the illnesses in line, and the inoculations and immunizations have been life-savers. But measles, German measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and whatnot, seem to be the lot to which childhood is ever heir to. And parents (and grandparents) will have to continue to grin and bear it.

It is not pleasant to see a little one stricken from care-free, happy play, nothing so disheartening as watching a wee tot, fever-gripped, tossing in her little crib. We don't know really who had the worst time of it with the German, or shall we say Victory, measles, Granddaughter or "Gampa".

Foxon Grange 57 Years Young

Is One Of Town's Oldest Civic and Fraternal Organizations

By Mrs. Peter J. Damen
Perhaps no organization in our town has had so long and honorable a record as Foxon Grange, Patrons of Husbandry No. 84. Organized in 1888, the local grange has weathered the storm and last month observed its 57th anniversary with suitable exercises.

The Grange was organized and met for perhaps a year or a little less in an old dilapidated building known as the Culver house, which stood about where the house of Mr. James Cannon now stands. Then they moved to a hall at the corner of River Road and monthly meetings were held there for perhaps another year. From there they met in the Foxon Church where they stayed until 1929 when they moved to their present quarters in the Community Hall. One of the Charter Members, Mr. Elsworth Thompson, recalls that when they were meeting at the Church, some of the children in the neighborhood were a little inquisitive and one little girl volunteered to climb up and listen at the window and report back to her followers as to what was taking place. (Perhaps some good Foxon matron will blush with shame if she happened to be that little girl.) At any rate, after a long session at the window the little girl reported back that all they seemed to be doing was "reaching for their hearts".

In going over the records of the Grange, we find that many of the leading citizens of our community today have served faithfully and well as Masters of the Order. There on the records are the names of Horace C. Woods, the first Master, who served in 1888 and 1889 and again in 1893 and 1896; Charles Grannis; A. J. Grannis; F. W. Prout; George Page; F. M. Sperry; Arthur F. Sperry; Arthur J. Sperry; George T. Fowler; Ellsworth

Editor's Note: Mrs. Peter J. Damen wife of the present Master of Foxon Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, has dipped into the records and produced for THE NEWS readers this very interesting account of the History of Foxon Grange. We hope from time to time to publish other accounts of well-known East Haven organizations.

Thompson, who was Master in 1894, 1908, 1909, 1910; Sidney Bailey who served in 1912, 1924 and 1941; Maurice S. Bailey; George Russell; Clayton Sallows; Harry Juniver; Charles Gordon; Harold Hall; W. Lloyd Gilson; Chancey T. Warner, and the present Master, Peter J. Damen, who is now serving his fourth term. In all those years, the only lady to serve as Master was Mrs. Velma Haley, who had a term of office in 1921.

Forty years ago, according to the old record books, a Committee was appointed by the Grange to submit suitable names for the streets in Foxon. How well they did their work is attested to by the fact that today most of our streets bear the names submitted by that committee. Among some of these are: River street; Mill street; Maple street; Thompson street; and Gay Street.

Foxon Grange is very proud to have on its rolls one of the finest Grange families in Connecticut, a mother and her nine children, and quite recently a son-in-law's name was added. All are National Grange members, and are noted for their fine cooperation and true Grange spirit. One of the sons is represented by a star on our Grange Service flag; another is serving as Overseer, and one of the daughters is also an officer.

Some very splendid entertainments have been put on during the Lecturer's Hour in times gone by, and one of the most tearfully awaited ed was a yearly competitive program, the men versus the women, with the losers cooking and serving a supper to the winners. The men always managed to be dressed in the pink of fashion (ladies' clothes) with inflated balloons appropriately placed, and according to the records, they usually came off first in the contest, although sometimes the ladies had been known to win.

During the recent conflict, most of our young men are in the service and the grange has received many interesting letters from its former boys now living in localities strange to them. Many of these letters tell of the different farming methods employed, and the crops raised, but almost without exception they all express a longing to be back home and be able to "step out" to a grange meeting.

The Grangers who had to stay home are backing their boys to the limit of their capacity in buying bonds to help get them home to Foxon. How well they did their work is attested to by the fact that today most of our streets bear the names submitted by that committee. Among some of these are: River street; Mill street; Maple street; Thompson street; and Gay Street.

Bull Moose Battle Was A Lively Affair

along with them, met in a caucus of their own and named a complete Progressive ticket for the 1912 When Progressives Fought G.O.P.

Last week I told you about Charlie Gramis, the Grand Old Man of Foxon, and of his long career as a political leader in East Haven. When the split came in the Republican party and the dogmatic Ex-President Teddy Roosevelt, one-time rough-tiding colonel of San Juan fame took up the cudgels against Big Bill Tart, the Progressives of East Haven saw their opportunity and grasped it.

For the first time in many a year, from before the annexation took the western half of East Haven, a political campaign the like of which the old town had not previously seen. There were rallies and I remember one night in the old town hall, from New Haven, the late Bill Avisa, came out as the chief speaker. He spell-bound the little group which had gathered to hear him.

But through all this fanfare and bathphoning Charlie and his party men went quietly and serenely along mending their fences, and preparing to weather the rising storm. And weather they did. When election day dawned fair and cool they saw the old party vote drop down alarmingly. The Democrats, a decidedly minority in the town at that time, dropped out of the local picture altogether. The anti-Gramis ticket got places on the Board of Selectmen, on the School Committee and on all the boards and committees where minority posts had gone always heretofore to the Democrats.

It was a hard pill for the Grand Old Party leaders to swallow, this having to put up for 12 months with proying, pessimistic Progressives on the important governing committees of the town. As a matter of fact the insurgents held their posts the next year too and did succeed in bringing about a number of departures from the old ways.

Charlie was a political leader of the old school. Even this experience did not shake him. He was not long in seeing merit in some of those who had forced their way in. Many of them he welcomed back into the party with open arms after the rift healed. He never fought against progress. He did fight the Roosevelt men.

That Youth Problem Again

Editor Stevens: Recently you very generously allowed me space in this paper to take issue with you on the subject of the town's "bad boys". In that article, considerable criticism was aimed at the adolescent parents, especially at the "DAD". Now it is Mother's turn for her share of the blame, so draw up your chair, Dad, put on your best "I told you so" expression and read on. I find there is still in existence a popular fallacy that the Mothers should be directed in dealing with their children, while the Fathers devote their entire parental abilities to the up-bringing of the boys in the family. This subject alone could lead to lengthy arguments both pro and con. However, for the purpose of this discussion of "bad boys", I shall assume that this "up-bringing" should be a fifty-fifty proposition with both parents bearing an equal share of the burden of properly raising their children. This is what a recent article, that Dad's efforts had and salts merrily along to

This is the Power Trust

Bill and Mrs. Johnson believe in looking ahead. They're preparing now for the day, still far in the future, when young Barbara Ann will go off to college. The Johnsons aren't particularly well-off—they might well be the family next door. But they are typical members of the "power trust" which owns The Connecticut Light and Power Company.

You see, your light and power company isn't owned by a snug little group of wealthy people. It belongs to 19,883 men and women who invested part of their savings in the Company's common stock.

Each of these men and women owns an average of only 58 shares and most of them are people like those you know and meet every day—policemen, stenographers, soldiers, mechanics, bus drivers, nurses, business men, sailors, doctors and employees of the Company.

We're pleased that the ownership of your business-managed light and power company is so widespread and that most of its 19,883 direct owners are people who work for a living. That's real public ownership.

Branford's News — Review

Adjourned Town Meeting Expects To Cut Budget To Escape Tax Boost

Incoming Democratic Party Obligated To Slash Appropriation Asked For By Out-Going Department Heads—Board Of Finance Adopted Budget Without Reservations

Branford holds its breath until after the adjourned town meeting in the Community House, Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Department heads of the out-going Republican party presented their budgets for appropriations for this year's running expenses, to a Board of Finance meeting a few weeks ago. Meeting later that same evening the Board of Finance approved the appropriations. "For the good of the community" those who prepared the figures look to the townspeople to get out Monday to vote their acceptance.

A surprise meeting of the Republican Town Committee has been called for this evening the object of which has not been made public but it can be surmised that it has been called by Chairman Irving C. Jacobs, Jr., to establish a policy on the budget question.

Democrats have made every effort to impress upon the voting public that "for the good of the community" the budget should be reduced beyond recognition to avoid a ten per cent tax increase. To fulfill pre-election promises they are obligated to cut the figures.

Roads and bridges account will be one most likely to be slashed. Democrats have also voiced disapproval of such items as increase in salaries for superintendent of schools, Branford Yacht Club matters, public building inspector, town hall janitor salary, police radio, welfare department.

Irving Rohinsky Buried Yesterday

Irving Rohinsky (Rohin) of the Shore Line Bedding Co., Main Street, died yesterday in New Haven after a lingering illness. He leaves his widow, Frances Schnapp Rohinsky of 93 Norton Street, New Haven, a brother, Milton, two sisters, Frances Stock and Sarah, also his parents, Bessie and Louis Rohinsky.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday from Robert E. Shure funeral home. Interment was in B'nai Israel Cemetery, Hamden.

RESULTS OF AMENDMENTS

Very little interest in the Constitutional Amendments was shown in Monday's election. 503 voted in favor of increasing legislature's salaries and 256 voted "no". On the annual session question 493, yes, against 248 no; 687 voted for the Lieutenant-Governor technically with 93 no.

Little interest was shown, many disregarding the questions altogether.

The school, planned at the request of several Chiefs of Police throughout Connecticut, will be held from October 24th to October 28th at Room 115, William L. Harkness Hall, Yale University.

Topics pertaining to budget preparation, departmental inspection, report systems, police communications and similar subjects will be given by Assistant Directors and Inspectors of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. At the present time, thirteen regional police schools are in operation in Connecticut dealing with criminal investigative techniques. Approximately 1500 Connecticut police officers have attended the general police schools during the past and present year.

In announcing the school, FBI Chief Gleason stated, "The school was planned in response to requests of many of the Chiefs of Police in the State of Connecticut who were interested in a course covering police administrative matters and I hope that this type of instruction will be of value to the Chiefs in their past war problems."

Chief Clark of the New Haven Police Department has been a prominent supporter of police training programs in the state. He was the first Chief to inaugurate a full time course for patrolmen. Invitations have been extended to local Chiefs of Police and police executives in New Haven county.
