BIGGEST PARADE YET

The individuals and organizations which turned out last Thursday for the East Haven Memorial Day Parade, the first since the return of peace, are to be commended for the excellent showing they made. We have heard a great many comments since the celebration, to the effect that it was the best parade that has been seen here. It was gratifying to see so many of our townspeople lining the streets, when the marchers went by, and it would not be exaggeration to say that not only was the parade the largest, but that it was also seen by more people than any other Memorial Day parade held here in the past.

The celebration was in the hands of the younger element. The marshal, his chief of staff, and the aides, were all veterans of World War II. The orator of the day commented upon this fact and truly stated that these younger men have grown in stature and are fully capable of undertaking the leadership in meeting the perplexing problems of the days through which we are now passing. More and more we must turn to this younger element in the shaping of the civic and political affairs of our community.

Sad indeed it is that the 1946 Memorial Day parade will go down in our town annals as the first in which no veteran of the Civil War had participated. The ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic march now only in Memory. But the cause for which they fought lives on and is renewed in each generation.

Coincided with the Memorial Day observance was the announcement by First Selectman Sullivan that he will seek the appointment of a committee to arrange a suitable "welcome home" celebration for our returned servicemen and women. The community will look forward to that coming event and make it a real occasion to be remembered.

HONORS FOR EAST HAVENERS

There seems to be no end to the honors being bestowed this year upon East Haveners by state-wide organizations. From time to time we have noted, in our columns, the election of local men and women to state office in various political, social, civic and fraternal bodies. The list has really become quite impressive.

A short time ago we were pleased to report the election of Harry McLay, a past sachem of Pequot Tribe of Red Men, to the office of Great Junior Sagamore on the State Chiefs' Council of the Improved Order of Red Men; an office which leads upward to the high post of Great Sachem. More recently we were again glad to mention that another East Havener, Matthew Anastasio, had been elected to the presidency of the Young Republican club of Connecticut. Both these elections were unanimous and brought credit to our town.

Our high school faculty has also been honored this spring by the election of two of its members to offices in state educational associations. Carl Garvin, head of the science department, who has done some very fine work in the field of audio-visual aids, was appointed a director of the Connecticut Audio-Visual Education Association and chairman of the Membership Committee. Miss Bernice Hall, librarian at the High School, has been elected first vice president of the Connecticut School Library association.

The young folk of the town, too, are gaining recognition as evidenced by the election of Angela Tinari, secretary of the High School Hostess club, to be state treasurer for the Future Homemakers of America.

Our congratulations to these local people who are helping to put East Haven on the map.

Teachers' Statement On Salary Raises

In response to Editor Stevens' editorial that suggested that the people of East Haven should be acquainted with the facts about local teachers' salaries, the East Haven Teachers' League submits the following, along with other general comments, which they presented in April to members of the Board of Education and Board of Finance.

1. All teachers below schedule be brought up to schedule.
2. A $400 cost of living adjustment be made unless a teacher is below schedule. In such case the teacher be brought up to schedule and then increased by $400.
3. JUSTIFICATIONS FOR REQUEST.
 - a. A flat $400 adjustment for all, not a percentage, is best because—
 - b. It will not create dissatisfaction.
 - c. It will not disrupt the salary schedule in principle or arrangement.
4. Teaching requires extensive training, both before obtaining a position and after. This should be recognized if good teachers are expected to take up teaching as a career.
5. An answer before the close of this school year is necessary because—
- a. If any teachers desire to look for new positions, it is only fair that they know their next year's offered salary before next October.
- b. If any teacher left next October it would be difficult for the Board of Education to fill their positions at that late date.
- c. The cost of living in this area has risen, it is reported, more than 50% and is expected to rise further.
- d. Comparison of salary schedules

Bank Survey Will Precede Solicitation

Following decision of the Bank Committee of the East Haven Business Association to delay solicitation for pledges for bank stock until later, letters are now being mailed out to residents of this and nearby communities in an effort to determine the support the proposed bank is likely to receive. The letter is accompanied by a questionnaire upon which citizens are asked to state which bank services they would use if local banking house were established, whether or not they would buy stock and how much, and whether or not would become commercial or savings depositors.

This information will be used in determining the advisability of going forward with the plan to apply to the State Bank Commissioner for a charter.

The letter points out that aside from Groton, East Haven is the only town in Connecticut having a population of more than 9,000 that does not now have a bank. It states the town's grand list is now $18,500,000, the population is approximately 12,000, and every loan in this town is now held by an out of town institution. It lists the various services a local banking house could offer. These include commercial accounts, savings accounts, night depository, cashing of checks, making of change, safe de-

Help The Scouts

To the Citizens of East Haven: From now until Saturday the Boy Scouts of America in our locality are seeking your aid in securing odd jobs which you may want to have done. Only a nominal sum will be charged and the monies collected are to be put into a memorial fund which the Boy Scouts of America are planning to build for their members who were lost in service. This is a worthy cause and deserves your wholehearted support.

For further information call 7-0197.

J. J. Sullivan,
First Selectman

High School Graduation On Thursday

The tenth class to be graduated from East Haven's High School will receive diplomas Thursday night in the school auditorium. Class night will be held Wednesday.

For both class night and graduation a new plan will be used in assignment of seats for the friends and relatives of the graduates. Boxes, loans, safekeeping war bonds, cashing war bonds, Xmas and Vacation clubs.

Tennis Club Is Organized In East Haven

As a result of exceptional perseverance, fortitude and plain hard work on the part of Floyd Blakeman, East Haven now boasts an organized Tennis Club known as the "Bradley Tennis Club."

After more than a month of repairing, retaping, rolling, and general conditioning, the court which Henry H. Bradley of Thompson avenue graciously offered the use of, is now in top shape. The club elected Floyd Blakeman to the presidency and made Roland Graves, secretary and treasurer.

The roster of members include: Fred Porter, Ray Fairchild, Justin Fairchild, Vincent Balletto, Rev. William G. West, Carl Hansen, et al. In the past there were no reserved seats and it had become necessary for ticket holders to arrive far in advance in order to obtain good seats. This year seats will be reserved and it will not be necessary for seat holders to arrive previous to 7:30 or 7:45. Each ticket will have a seat number and will be reserved until 8 o'clock. There will also be a limited number of seats for standees. Reserved seats not taken up by 8 o'clock will also be assigned to these.

Tickets are being assigned by lot. It is requested that ticket holders enter the door designated on the ticket and in this way avoid confusion.

Col. Moyle's Memorial Day Address

Veterans Of Both World Wars Urge Unity In Bringing World Order Out Of The Present World Chaos.

"Ladies and Gentlemen and Comrades:

"These are familiar scenes. Not too long ago I used to take part in the more arduous part of these annual Memorial Day observances here about. I can remember among other things the East Haven Boys Brigade which formed the main escort for the many Civil War Veterans who were for many years the center of interest when they turned out in their Blues in loving memory of their comrades—those for whom this day was inaugurated. Together we have seen them one by one, pass on to join their companions in the well earned sleep of eternity.

Their places were taken by those by whom the names of Santiago, San Juan, Manila and others of Spanish origin became engraved upon the military records of this nation.

The charge which they assumed of keeping alive the memory of those sacrifices made during the War between the States, that this nation might live in unity, has not fallen by the wayside. The Veterans of a still greater war accepted that charge and also that of memorializing the men who labored in the cause against oppression in 1898.

I recognize many of my comrades of World War I among you today. But there are many of these, too, who are missing. The rank of those who fought in France, Germany, Italy and Russia, to make the world safe for democracy, are being perceptibly thinned by the inexorable ravages of time. That we have already begun to shift some of our responsibilities to a younger group is most significantly attested to in the person of the Marshal of your parade today, Lt. Col. Frank Bissell. Only a few years ago he enlisted in the New Haven Grays. The evidence of his success is a representation to his older ex-servicemen, that our sons have grown in stature and are fully capable of undertaking the leadership in meeting the perplexing problems of the day through which we are now passing.

It is quite doubtful that anything I may say to you today is new. Our libraries are full of Memorial Day speeches. Through all of them, from time immemorial, runs the same trains of thought; respect—most reverent respect for them who gave their lives; sympathetic and practical consideration to those who carry the burdens and awful scars of these wars; honor—all honor to the courage and devotion of those who endured and survived the risks and rigors of battle.

Yes—the thoughts which are being uttered all over this nation today are now and have been the same for a hundred years. We seem merely to change the dates and mention new wars. We parade to the cemeteries and lovingly decorate the graves of our dear departed comrades and then gather on our village greens and for a few short moments compete with an overpowering urge to get it over and done with and be on our way.

I cannot speak for any of you but I can tell you some of my thoughts. Like many others who took part in World War I, I took part in this present mess. In 1919 I hoped, against hope I guess, that I had seen the end of wars. I hoped that as the educational level rose, we as a people would somehow acquire a real appreciation of the senselessness of war. I hoped that my sons could be spared the interruption of their normal lives to again make the world a safe place in which to live. But neither they nor I was spared. I feel therefore, that my thoughts are similar to those of many of you. I do not think they are different thoughts than we had in 1919, they are merely more mature. What is more important, I believe they are the same thoughts as my comrades of both wars who are no longer able to express them but whose eyes gaze pleadingly from thousands of photograph in every nook and cranny of this nation.

The first of these thoughts is this; If we can unite in a common effort to win a war—if we are willing to labor and sacrifice and give of our very lives blood to accomplish such an undertaking—then we can unite in the easier and more logical task of uniting a majority of the people of this country in bringing order out of chaos within this country. This thought is at the head of the list. Its solution is in an honest return to the policy of the greatest good for the greatest numbers of our people. It is a decision that we the people shall run the politics of this nation and that the politics of the country will not run us.

And the second thought is this; By precept and example—by fair dealing and the practise thereof among ourselves—by achieving this war time unity in prosecution of our present problems and solving them—our voice shall carry conclusive weight in the councils of the nations of the earth and international bickering and backbiting shall wane. Then and only then may we hope for progress in the just solution of the ills of the world. When we demonstrate that we can put our own house in order, then and only then will our advice and suggestions become potent all over the globe.

The third thought is this; As we labor under the heavy financial load which this and other wars have imposed upon us, we must remind ourselves again and again that the greatest portion, if not all of it, is the cost of being unprepared. So long as the nations of the earth will recognize only the threat of force as a prime obstacle to uncontrolled deprecation, just so long must we maintain that threat as insurance against the forces of international evil. Surely by this time, thoughtful people should know that the failure to do otherwise has been a fundamental fact in military considerations of those nations who have started the last two wars.

Are these thoughts beyond reasonable attainment? That depends upon all of us as individuals. For a group of people to pass a resolution on this or that subject for the purpose of impressing some other group with its strength is of course spectacular. Fortunately or unfortunately, I doubt if there exists such a thing as a voluntary unanimity of expression in any group of people. Group action will always embarrass some members of the group. Thus the solution of these questions depends fundamentally upon the action of the individuals. I am prone to believe that our elected officials are more often impressed by the reactions of the individual citizens. I believe, therefore, that we as individuals can exert the collective influence necessary to shape the national actions of the United States into a sound fulfillment of its destiny.

TOWN TOPICS

FROM OUR REPORTERS' NOTEBOOKS

What is so rare as a day in June? Everybody hopes rainy season is now over.

Much of planting had to be done over again, but how the green grass grows.

Harry Bartlett post softball team playing West Haven Elks on High school diamond Sunday at 3 P.M.

High school commencement next week with class day exercises Wednesday and graduation Thursday night.

Death of Miss Ellen L. Thompson, whose funeral services were held Monday afternoon, removed one of town's oldest residents and oldest member of Stone church. Miss Thompson was 92 years old and lived most of life in homestead on Main street which was razed few months ago to make way for march of business.

Father's Day set for Sunday, June 16, and stores are gay with gift suggestions for Dad.

Summer season getting underway at East Shore but was dampened to considerable extent by rainy weather.

Everybody enjoyed "Haymakers Illarities" for benefit of Foxon Congregational church Monday and Tuesday nights in Foxon Community Hall. Variety show in hay-loft setting was replete with laughs from start to finish. Local talent and guest artists won much applause. Big share of credit goes to director, Mrs. Lillian Hurder, who was presented with gift on stage at conclusion of two-night showing.

We learn that Martin Olson has purchased from Fred Wolfe, Jr., property adjacent to new Olson block opposite Library in Main street and has plans drawn for six stores to be built when ban on business buildings is lifted. Land has frontage of over 150 feet.

Tommy's Furniture Shop in Main Marcell Tremblay, Monroe Andrews, Floyd Blakeman, Russell Miller, Frank Flag, Howard Snyder, Bill Tittle, Ray Lawson, Lyent Russell, Alfred E. Holcomb, Frank McDonald, Leon Taylor and Roland Graves.

Plans are now in progress for regional tournaments to be held during the summer months and if the enthusiasm prevails in these matches, as it has in preparing the court, they will be well worth seeing.

Down Memory Lane 25 YEARS AGO

June 7-13, 1921
Cards were out for the wedding of Miss Eleanor Bishop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Bishop of Forbes place, to Avery Toohy of Short Beach.

Dr. G. Welcome Ellsworth was building a new home in Bradley avenue.

Children's Day was observed with baptism and concert in the Stone church.

The body of Harry R. Bartlett, first East Havener killed in the recent war, arrived at Hoboken and plans were underway for a military funeral here.

Miss Bessie Lewis and Edna Slade were hostesses at the Young Ladies' Mission Social. Entertainment was in charge of Miss Marion Day.
