According to the "Young Apprentice" Boardman Trade's school publication Alfred Carleton of the machine department has been chosen citizen of the month. Before entering Boardman, the youth attended East Haven High. A member of the student council, he doesn't have time for sports but expresses an appreciation for football and basketball. His hobby is collecting records. Upon completion of his Trade School studies the youth plans to enter the U. S. Navy.

According to Dechert there are more than 100 Associated Service clubs and operations from Maine to California and Alaska to France, with at least 27 hew operations in the planning stage. "Associated Services," he said, "has grown in the planning stage. "Associated Services," he said, "has grown in the course of a relatively few months from an idea to a functioning organization with far-flung activities for men and women of the armed forces."

Associated Services for the Armed Forces was organized last April by the Y.M.C.A., National Jewish Welfare Board, and National Catholic Community Service, after deactivation of the USO in January 1950. These three organizations wanted to continue serving youth in uniform and A.S.A.F. came into being.

To date most of the funds to operate Associated Services have been raised by Community Chests throughout the country. The recent Red Feather campaign for Greater New Haven proposed to allot $16,000 to A.S.A.F., but with the total goal not being realized, the allotment was reduced proportionately.

gress will convene. Both events reflect important milestones for American Independent Business.

In the first half of this century great monopolies made their longest strides. It was also the period when legal safeguards for small business such as the Clayton Act and the Robinson-Patman Act became law.

Independent business needs little, if any, additional legislalation to prevent liquidation by monopoly.

The problem is adequate enforcement of existing laws. For example, there are adequate laws against larceny. Yet it is easy to imagine the growth of larceny that would ensue if peace officers.

The long established Federal Trade Commission is supposed to take action when Federal business laws are violated.

But the Federal Trade Commission has been almost stranged to death by lack of funds. This fact came out the other day at a joint conference between the anti-monopoly Advisory Committee of the House Small Businers Committee and the FTG yill Chairman James Mend and Commissioners Ayers, Carson, Mason and Springbarn present as well as leaders of organized small business.

Swanson, for despite a bad afternoon last Sunday, all denominations gathered to say farewell.

Nor is there time for tears. Work goes on. Nationally, a bewildered people nervously prepare for war, a preparation born of necessity. But in the world of religions, the preparation over goes forward for Eternah peace. That, say the gentlemen of the cloth, is the real living.

Thus, it was that the door closed rather softly on Wednesday, Within an instant the hubbub of daily living brought new machine sounds to a strangely deadened aft. Swinging up the street, elert in the sense of new responsibilities, Rev. Emil G. Swanson strode out of sight. He made one stop at the bookshop. He always does, for somewhere, even in a small town, someone is alling and cards are always welcome. His deep musical voles bouned in resonant greeting to the proprietor. Busly he notded thing in the parsonage.

Further down the street, a white church was reflecting a winter sun sinking into early willight.

Workers coming home from factories passed the double doors, one pausing to recall that though the Tabor Lutheran Evangelical Church is not on Main Street to Hopson Avenue.

Minutes later, the sun no longer hit the spotless walls but higher still a golden cross mirrored its measage. The worker buttoned his coat tighter for lonesomeness, too, has a penetrating chill.

BRANFORD HIGH CAGERS OPPOSE SEYMOUR AND SHELTON IN HOME TILTS

Branford High's red hot 'cagers after a series of road trips will return to the state armory Friday and Tuesday nights for a pair of Housatonic League contests.

Joe Gesek's in and out Seymour five will be the Hornet opposition on Friday night and next Tuesday, the undefeated Shelton Gael combine will seek to unseat the classy local basketeers who currently share the league's to prating with the Murraymen.

In the week-end tilt, the Hornets will have able opposition with the height about even. The visitors are smartly coached and use a two, three defense featuring a quick break on offense. Jim Hummel is considered the man to defleit of only five points, 34 to 29.

With the opening of the fourth quarter Mautle scored on a long set and Pellegrino tapped in a rebound to make the score 34 to 33 but Karlins measured a free throw to up the Derby total. Eddle Henry's one hander from the side-court tied the contest as the Valley five called time with five minutes to play. An easy lay-up from underneath by Karlins gave Derby its advantage which was 'multiplied when Jack Kiley snapped the cords with a fadeaway shot. Luciano kept the rally allye with a good free throw and through Nick Pellegrino upped the Easte total with a neat rebound effort Captain Bill Duggan closed out the game with a double conversion.

Does Your Dog Eat More Than It Needs?

Many dogs could live a long and healthy life on less food than they are now getting.

When allowed to fill their stomachs at will, dogs under observation at Cornell University atomore than they needed, the American Journal of Veterinary Reseatch has reported.

They got along just as well and stayed healthy when fed on a limited hasis according to their body weight, Drs. W. T. James and C. M. McCay announced in the rescarch journal.

The decision as to how much food a dog should get depends a lot upon whether it is active or lazy. Some easy-living dogs can get along on a ration that provides one dry-weight pound of nutritious food for each 50 pounds of body weight, while highly active individuals may require as much as one pound of food for every 20 pounds of body weight.

Dog fanciers were cautioned not to expect an animal to be active just because it is small. Mrs. James and McCay observed that some of the most active dogs in the experimental group also were the heaviest.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brencher JJr., of Wilcox Place, Short Beach, announce the birth of a son, Mark, December 24, in St. Raphale's Hospital. Mrs. Brencher is the former Dorothy Chambers.
