Open Official X-mas Season; Plans Set For Annual Festival

The Christmas season was opened officially here last night by First Selectman Frank A. Barker, who closed the switch lighting the town's entire down-town district with the holiday lights strung along Main St. from Pardee Pl. to Hemingway Ave.

In addition the opening of the annual Christmas festival with a huge parade Friday evening, next week, was announced last night by John Metz, chairman of the festival program.

Elwood Seoble and Robert Schirmer, of the Christmas lighting committee, opened the lighting ceremony which illuminated the lights along Main St. and a special display on the town hall. The building front is decorated with a "pealing bell" actuated by a switch which lends the illusion of a giant red bell swinging to and fro and two large lanterns on either side.

The addition, two evergreens planted in front of the town hall have been dressed with colored lights. On the block of buildings to the east, long streamers of laurel decorate the store fronts.

The present lights, consisting of more than two dozen cross arms, are part of a permanent stock of holiday equipment being built up by the local Chamber of Commerce.

The decorations will be supplemented with new material each year.

Christmas Festival
On Friday, next week, the Christmas festival will open at six p. m. with a giant parade of local, civic, business, school and church group participants, led by the Bradford Manor Drum Corps. The East Haven Exchange club is sponsoring the entry of a float, and Santa Claus will also pass in review down Main St. from Pardee Pl. to the town center.

The opening of the festival will also mark the beginning of hours for local merchants who will remain open until nine p. m. every night until Christmas.

For several days preceding Christmas Santa Claus will be on hand at the town hall at a Christmas party held for children of the town and will present them with free gifts from the local Chamber of Commerce.

A letter inviting all local organizations and business establishments to take part in the parade by sending delegates or entering a float has been mailed out by the Chamber festival committee. Interested persons are requested to contact Dominic Ferrara, parade marshal, at HO 7-3735.

Members of the committee in charge of the Christmas Festival include: John Metz, committee chairman; Mr. Ferrara; John Zyc, publicity; Brent Barker, church activities; Gene Skrlanski, businessmen's chairman; Thomas McMan, Foxon activities; and Herman Scharf, Momaugun activities.

Dayton's Presents "Mens Night" For Shy Male Shoppers
East Haven men who prefer to do their Christmas shopping for that there uh sheer stuff for the wife or sweethearts away from the curious stares of other females have been invited to a Men's Night party tonight from seven until 10:30 at Dayton's store, 301 Main Street.

Printed invitations, together with small cards printed with "Her Size Chart" have been mailed to Dayton's regular clientele, while a general invitation has been issued to the male public. All purchases are confidential, the store managers advise, and in this case mum is the word (and not a declaration).

Male customers will be treated to various refreshments and presented with complimentary gifts for the "one and only."

This is Dayton's third year in presenting this special shopping night, and it is expected to be as great a success as it has been the two times previous.

Local Man Hit By Car Last Night In Fair Condition

Joseph Papuga, 45, of 87 Tyler St., was reported "resting comfortably" in New Haven hospital this morning after he was struck by a car at the Thompson Ave. - Tyler St. intersection at 9:45 last night. Attendants said his condition was not serious.

Papuga received compound fractures of the right leg and right arm when he was struck by a car driven by Ferdinand N. Ahlberg, 16, of 83 Kensington St., New Haven. Young Ahlberg, who was driving a car owned by his mother, Mrs. Evelyn Ahlberg, was charged with violation of motor vehicle laws, and released without bond.

Ahlberg told Officer Walter Marjus that Papuga suddenly crossed the street before his car, which was moving south on Thompson St. just as a bus began pulling away from the curb at that point.

Patrolman William Mahoney reported that Ahlberg had swerved the car in an attempt to avoid the victim but had struck him with the car fender.

Winter Pays Early Visit Here With Three Inch Snow

Winter paid an early visit to East Haven, Tuesday morning and blanketed the town with exactly three inches of snow by Tuesday morning, according to weather officials at the New Haven airport.

On Monday the mercury dropped to 21 degrees, to hit a low for the season, and turning the snow cover into ice so that travel Tuesday evening and Monday morning was extremely hazardous.

The local street department trucks were out early sanding, and no accidents were reported for the town; although, Police Chief Edward B. Priest sounded a warning for continued caution during icy weather.

First Selectman Frank Barker also requested residents not to park on streets during snow storms in order not to hinder the work of street department plows.

The weatherman predicts cold weather for the rest of the month, with "moderate precipitation" meaning that poor driving conditions may be expected generally for December.

First Selectman Frank A. Barker issued an appeal to motorists this week not to park cars on the streets during storms so as not to block operation of snow plows.

Cars Blocking Hydrants Are To Be Tagged

Parking of cars near fire hydrants has been a growing concern with town safety heads so that Police Chief Edwin Priest yesterday warned local motorists that motor vehicles will be tagged for failing to observe the ten-foot clearance required by state law.

The warning was issued after a conference between Chief Priest and Fire Chief Thomas J. Hayes following Monday's fire on Main St. Hayes issued a statement pointing out the importance of having clear access to hydrants in order that firemen may not be delayed in connecting hoses during fires.

"Every second is precious when we have a fire to fight," said Hayes. "We want to be fair with the public, but we also want them to be fair with us," he said.

The fire chief also asked that residents keep from covering hydrants when clearing walks of snow. Valuable time may be lost in searching for, and clearing, snow-covered hydrants, he said, adding that each home-owner ought to remember he may, himself, be the victim of fire.

State regulations require that motor vehicles park no closer than 10 feet on either side of a hydrant in order to leave sufficient space in which firemen may work. Chief Priest said that members of the police force have been instructed to put a violation tag on every car improperly parked.

Pete's Diner Now Open Under New Management Here

Reopening of Pete's Diner on the Salticrall Parkway under new management was announced this week by Albert D'Andrea, of Hamden, who purchased the diner building and accessories from Peter Kozlarczyk on Nov. 24.

The land on which the diner is located has been brought up by the State Highway Department in preparation for the relocation of Route One. The state is renting the land to the proprietors of the diner on a month-to-month basis. However, the new owners expect to operate in their present location for about two more years because delay in the progress on the road.

Albert D'Andrea and his brothers, Edward and Gene also operate the D'Andrea's Drive In on Dixwell Ave. in Hamden and another restaurant in Woodbridge.

The East Haven diner has been transferred to the name of Assunta D'Andrea, mother of the restaurant operators. It will be operated on an around-the-clock schedule.

Chamber of Commerce Meets Tuesday Night

The East Haven Chamber of Commerce will hold a regular and director's meeting Tuesday evening, beginning with dinner at 6:45 in the Annex House, Herman Scharf, secretary, announced.

Forget Jetty Proposal In Concern Of Other Issues

Almost forgotten in the excitement of the recent political campaign and election and now submerged in the debate over the town's school plans is a resolution authorizing the town to build a jetty protecting a number of shore dwellers.

The resolution, passed at a meeting last October 21, instructs the Board of Selectmen to investigate the legality and possibility of constructing a jetty near the Bradford Cove outlet to protect a group of houses being undermined by the tides.

Submitted by Attorney Thomas Reilly, who acted as spokesman for the home-owners making the request, the petition has been referred for study to Town Counsel Vincent J. Fasano. An informal survey of the site was made by the Board of Selectmen in the company of the town engineer, Charles Miller, and Judge Fasano. However, no action has been taken to date, pending the securing of information from the Army Engineers who made a survey of the entire coast-line.

Town officials are agreed that the homes in the area east of Cambridge Court are in very serious danger.

A "News" reporter visited one of the homes during a recent storm when the high tide waters lashed at the remains of a cement and stone wall built at the base of one of the homes. Large swells of water, rolling in from the sound swept against the abutment to break into a certain spray and deluged the exposed side of the house. Underneath, the back and forth movement of the water could be seen sweeping away the beach sand from under the foundation.

Four homes are affected by the serious erosion which has been wearing away the beach in that section at a phenomenal rate. The rapidly erosive action is believed due to the collapse of a jetty at the eastern end of the section, and also to a switch in the course of the neighboring tidal creek.

Shore erosion has been a serious problem affecting most of the Connecticut shoreline, and the Federal government has a program of aid to towns which undertake corrective action of public beaches. Under this program the national, state and local governments share the cost of constructing improvements to protect the beaches. However, the federal program applies only to public beach areas.

The principal factor responsible for beach erosion is the littoral current, which flows along the shore picking up sand where it flows rapidly and depositing it where it is slowed. To check this, groins are constructed consisting of concrete-soaked piles driven into the sand side by side, and extending out to sea, at right angles to the beach. These serve to slow the shore currents causing them to deposit sand in desired places.

Such a structure has been proposed by the Momaugun shore-dwellers at their estimated cost of four to six thousand dollars.

One of the objections raised at the recent town meeting was that the construction would not be proper because it was to the benefit of only a few residents. If such a jetty were built, it was said, other owners of property could claim similar protection or request for reimbursement for similar improvements undertaken privately.

In answer, it was asserted that the town would lose valuable, taxable property if it failed to act. Also, it was implied that the property owners would give up their rights to the shore property so that it would become a public beach. However, cessation of shore rights to the town was not provided for in the resolution voted. All four property owners have riparian (shore) rights.

Talk of budget-cutting under the coming Republican administration of General Eisenhower has cast a gloom over the local Redevelopment Agency which has been awaiting approval of a plan for the redevelopment of a large part of the Momaugun area. The plan has provision for construction to protect the stretch of beach which would extend from the present portion owned by the court to about Second Avenue.

Economy measures by a Republican-controlled Congress may also trim funds available for control of beach erosion, so that funds may be difficult if not impossible to obtain for local protection.

Shoe Store Guttled By East Haven's Worst Fire In More Than 20 Months

The first serious fire to occur in East Haven's business district in the past 20 months broke out suddenly in a small shoe repair shop at 279 Main Street, early Monday evening, causing damage, unofficially set at several thousand dollars.

Engines one and six and Truck one responded immediately at 6:30 on the first alarm which was received from the cashier at the Capitol Theater, a few doors away from the fire, which was brought under control before it could spread to other shops.

Several persons spotted the smoke pouring out of the building and ran to telephone to sound the alarm. One of the first to see the smoke was GOP Town Chairman Matthew Anastasio, who relayed the news to the Capitol Theater.

Officer Louis Torello spotted the excited activity of several other witnesses and sounded another alarm from the desk in headquarters.

As the fire apparatus pulled up at the store front and firemen began laying down hose to connect at the hydrant on Kirkham Avenue, they first saw flames from the store blow out and the interior burst into flames.

The regular firemen, aided by arriving volunteers, fought the blaze for several minutes before gaining control so that they could reach the source of the conflagration - an overturned oil space-heater which had apparently overheated.

According to Fire Chief Thomas J. Hayes, the fire started at the heater, spreading first to the floor and then to surrounding walls. Firemen worked furiously to get a flames which had crept into the wall separating the shoe store from the adjoining Wel-Worth variety store.

In addition to the damage to the interior of the shoe repair shop, the Wel-Worth store received some smoke damage and water damage to goods stored in the basement.

Proprietor of the store, Anthony Zampano, of 157, Pardee Ave., Hamden, told firemen that he had replaced the store after taking over from a previous owner and had resumed business about two weeks ago.

It was reported that Zampano, who was unavailable for an estimate on damage, was not covered by insurance. However, the building containing both stores affected by the fire and owned by Mrs. William Fischer, of 23 Malby Place, New Haven, was protected.

It was the second building fire for this area in the past week. On Friday at 6:45 p. m. Campana's one and six were called to the home of Joseph Oswald, 64 Charter Oak Ave., where a fire had broken out.

English Living Conditions Better Says Foxon Woman

English living conditions have improved noticeably since the war, according to Mrs. James Berridge, of Foxon Road, who returned recently from a trip abroad after visiting her family in Nottingham.

She reports that general conditions have improved since her last visit during the war, and that work is plentiful. The English have more things to buy and the people are hopeful of continued improvements under the Churchill government.

Mrs. Berridge says that the people are now in a state of cheerful excitement in anticipation of the coronation.

Nottingham is the center of the lace industry, and is located in the Midland Forest section of the Midlands. Manchester and Sheffield are the nearest large cities to Nottingham. Mrs. Berridge says that President-Elect Dwight Eisenhower is very popular with the people in this area.

She reports that rationing is still in effect. Some of the allotments per person each week are: three oz. of butter and two of cooking fat, 25¢ worth of meat and two oz. bacon, one or two eggs, according to production. Only eight oz. of sugar is now allowed, but sweets are expected to be removed from the ration list in time for the coronation. Tea came off the list while she was there. This is quite a comfort to the English people who love their tea. Fish, tripe and liver are unrationed but allocated by alphabet to aid in fair distribution. Fresh fruit is not too plentiful, but a good supply of dried fruit is expected for the holidays.

Television is quite common and the programs are very good. There are no commercials, however, every owner of television or radio has to have a license. Fees are $6 yearly for TV and $3 for radio.

When Mr. and Mrs. Berridge last visited England he was detained for the duration of the war and had to work in the Rolls Royce factory in Crewe which is about 125 miles from London. Mr. Berridge, who is waiting for his American citizenship papers, did not make the trip this time, he says, because he did not care to risk the possibility of another detention. Mrs. Berridge went back to visit old friends in Crewe but had a good time recalling the war days and experiences in the bomb shelters which are now entirely restored.

State Board To Review Sites For New Schools Here

The State Board of Education will conduct an inspection tour Monday and Tuesday of proposed new school sites, George Letts, chairman of the School Sites Committee, announced last night.

Letts' announcement followed the disclosure that options have been obtained on three pieces of property as possible future locations for new school buildings. The latter announcement followed a meeting Monday night between the committee and the Board of Education, with First Selectman Frank A. Barker and Selectman Ernest Anthonis in attendance.

Options have been taken on the Caprio property in the Gerlach Avenue section, on land owned by the Connecticut Company at Momaugun and on premises known as the Zuckerman place on Route 80 in Foxon.

The Board of Education and the School Building Committee have arranged an inspection tour next Sunday of the properties concerned, and a vote on the report is to be taken at a meeting of the school board on Friday next week.

Hope is expressed by committee members that the whole matter may be ready for a town meeting, which it is expected may be called before Christmas, possibly on Monday, Dec. 22.

It was also announced this week that the Board of Education will meet tomorrow with Roger T. Thompson of the State Department of Education, when he will go over with the board members and advise with them concerning the problem of selecting a new superintendent to succeed Supt. William E. Gillis, who retires at the end of the current school year.

Hundreds Attend Sunday Dedication Of Gillis School

Several hundred East Haveners attended the official dedication ceremonies Sunday afternoon for the William E. Gillis School on Tainbridge Ave., which was completed this fall after several years of planning and construction. The dedication was opened by a coronation flag-raising by a color guard composed of members of the Harry R. Bartlett Post 89, American Legion and AMVETS Post 14. The flag was presented by Second Selectman Ernest M. Anthon, an official representative of the town. Indoors in the building's general purpose room and before an overflow crowd, a symbolic ceremony was conducted and a key was presented to Superintendent William E. Gillis, in whose honor the new building was named.

Mrs. Raymond Freed, president of the William E. Gillis PTA served as mistress of ceremonies and introduced the honored participants in the program. Harold F. Davis, new Haven resident who designed the building, presented the ceremonial key to the school to Andrew Barducci, president of the P. Francis Company of Derby, the contracting firm who constructed the building. Superintendent said he was "very pleased" that the town had decided to start a policy of naming buildings after local persons while they are alive. "There are many others here to be honored," he said, naming J. Woodward Thompson, who contributed a large sum of money to the Union School, and Miss Mary Irwin, a teacher at Stearns for many years.

"I appreciate the fact that this school is named in my honor," he said, "but I would like to point out that any work being done is the product of many working together. I think this school is a monument to the fact that many people are organized to work together."

Mr. Davis and Mr. Vetrono praised the contractors for the excellence of their services; and the building committee chairman also praised the members of his committee for contribution of their time and effort to make the school possible.

In the closing remarks before reading the benediction, the Rev. Virgil Wolfenberger, pastor of the Paxon Congregational Church, said he concurred heartily with Mr. Gillis' suggestions on naming schools. The Rev. Thomas Furey, of St. Clare's Church, Monmouth, read the invocation at the start of the ceremony.

During the flag-raising ceremony the East Haven High School band played under the direction of Mrs. Wilhelmina Strandberg. As part of the dedication program, the seventh and eighth grade pupils at the school sang a choral number under the direction of Miss Hilmar Svensen of the teaching staff. In addition, Marie Pistelli, seventh grade student, performed on the piano and Salvatore Callegari, of the fifth grade, played a melody of songs on his accordion.

Pupils of the school conducted parents and other guests on a guided tour of the school's classrooms and other facilities. The structure, which cost approximately $225,000 to build, seats 230 pupils and contains eight classrooms, a kindergarten and a general purpose room. The building is equipped with a medical room, a kitchen, reading room and other necessary facilities.

Those assisting Mr. Vetrono on the Building Committee include: Hugh J. Blakely, Charles M. Copeland, Robert H. Decker, Henry De Lucia, James Ematruolo, Lawrence Madison, Martin Olsen and Joseph Rotenski. Also active in the planning and completion of the building were John H. Corbett, secretary to the Board of Education; Henry A. Pfisterer, structural engineer and the firm of Hubbard Lawless and Blakely, mechanical engineers.

Refreshments were served by the Gillis School PTA members. The committee assisting Mrs. Freed were Mrs. Sigurd Anderson, Mrs. Stanley Sandquist, Mrs. Albert Torino, Mrs. Alvin Thompson and Mrs. Fred Ringstrom.

Postmaster Sees Record Mailing, Says: Mail Early

Postmaster William J. Hedges forces a record job for the U. S. Postal Service this season and has urged the public to mail cards and gift packages early.

Time of mailing is especially important, and the earlier the better. The Postmaster emphasized it is "everybody's business" to follow this time-table for all Christmas mailings.

Mail Parcel Post By Dec. 1 for Overseas. By Dec. 5 for Out-of-State. By Dec. 10 for Local Delivery.

Mail Christmas Cards By Dec. 1 for Overseas. By Dec. 15 for Out-of-State. By Dec. 18 for Local Delivery.

Yuletide mail for overseas has been going out in a steady flow for several weeks now. Moreover, there's still time for delivery in most foreign countries. But after Dec. 1, all gifts going abroad should be sent by air parcel post and all Christmas cards by air mail.

"Just keeping one eye on the calendar, however, isn't enough," continued Postmaster Hedges. "Here's how to avoid disappointing your friends and loved ones. 1. Visit the Post Office this week, while the crowds are still small. Buy all those extra stamps you'll need for mailing, and ask any questions possible."
