Temporary Clerk Named For New Probate Court

The appointment of his wife, Mrs. Josephine Reynolds, as clerk of the East Haven Probate Court to serve on a temporary basis and without compensation, was announced this week by Probate Judge Edward L. Reynolds.

Judge Reynolds said that the appointment, effective January 10, was "strictly temporary" and was made partly to give his wife legal status in serving as an assistant in establishing the local court. Mrs. Reynolds will serve until the court is on a financial standing which will permit the appointment of a permanent clerk.

The new court, established in quarters formerly occupied by the town prosecutor in the basement of the Town Hall, is operated on a free basis.

Announces Hours

Judge Reynolds also announced a schedule for operation of the new court. It will be open daily, Monday through Thursday, from 9 a. m. to 12 noon. In addition to these hours, appointments may be made through Judge Reynolds' law offices in New Haven by telephone.

Judge Reynolds said that the schedule is designed to serve the convenience of the public and compares very favorably with schedules observed by probate courts in surrounding communities.

Contractor Told To Fill Existing Commitments

A local building contractor has been advised that plot plans for future developments will be held up until existing commitments to the town and to home owners are taken care of, according to Jerome Grady, chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Mr. Grady revealed that the Commission had voted to inform the Yedlin Construction Company that it must finish work on its existing High Ridge development before further construction is permitted.

He said that the commission had received "communications" from town officials and from private individuals with respect to certain problems developing in the High Ridge development. One of these referred to the condition of roads laid down in the section.

However, First Selectman Frank Clancy indicated yesterday that the Yedlin Company had reported it has repaired roads which had been damaged by traffic as well as by weather and that they were ready for inspection by the town. He said he thought the company would provide satisfactory facilities.

Mr. Clancy said that the town would inspect the roads today.

Mr. Grady also revealed that the Commission had voted to approve "minor changes specified in development plans and that these were entered on maps filed with the town clerk.

Local Man Named Assistant Editor For Yale Press

The appointment of David H. Horne, of 7 Ellen Pl., Foxon, as assistant editor for the Yale University Press was announced this week.

At the same time, Mr. Horne will assume the post of acting editor of the Yale Historical Publications, formerly under the editorship of Lewis P. Curtis, associate professor of history at Yale.

As editor of the Yale Historical Publications, he will supervise the editing and see through the press the manuscripts selected for the series, to be published by the Yale University Press.

As assistant editor of the Yale University Press, Mr. Horne will work with authors on editing, styling, indexing, and related matters.

He is editor of the first volume of "The Life and Minor Works of George Peck" published in 1952 by the Yale University Press, and is preparing an edition of "The Tempest" for the Yale Shakespeare.

He is a former member of the English departments of the University of Missouri and Yale, and was awarded his Ph.D. at Yale in 1949.

Pot Holders For Polio

Dora and Elena, daughters of Judge Vincent Fasano, have embarked on a project to raise funds for the local March of Dimes. Both received little looms for Christmas and they are using these to make pot-holders which they are selling to neighbors.

The net proceeds of the sales go to the polio drive. Eleven-year-old Dora gives you the idea as she drops some of their profits into the polio collection jar, while Elena, who is eight, works on another pot-holder.

The two girls cooked up the project on their own after watching their father working on publicity and preparing the coin-collection jars. Judge Fasano is chairman of the local drive.

He reports that his activities whetted their curiosity. To answer their questions, he gave them a little talk on why it is important to raise funds to combat polio. The result was that, both girls decided to start their own project to help out. They've sold a couple dozen of the holders already.

Biddy Basketball To Open Official Season Saturday

First Selectman Frank Clancy and Francis Walsh, chairman of the Board of Education, will toss the first ball in two simultaneous games which will open the official East Haven Lions' Biddy Basketball League season Saturday morning at 10 o'clock according to Anthony V. DeMayo, program chairman.

The town heads will participate in brief ceremonies which will mark the official opening of the season which will last until April 16. They will take place in the High School gym, where the games will be played.

The Rev. William O'Brien, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul church, and the Rev. James D. Glasse, interim minister of the Old Stone Church, will give the invocation and benediction for the ceremonies.

Members of the Board of Selectmen and the Board of Education have been invited to attend the opening program along with other honorary directors of the League including, Carl Garvin, principal of the High School.

League officers headed by Dr. George Steponkus, League president, and area Director Sal Tinari will be on hand to see the preparation of many months finally bearing fruit.

Teams scheduled to play Saturday morning will be: At 10 o'clock High Ridge vs. Melcalf's and Chappies versus Corner Store; at 11 o'clock, Pahlert Foods versus P & R Motors, and Tinari's versus Beachhead.

At its meeting this week, the board of governors again indicated that any vacancies occurring on the eight league teams will be filled by giving preference to those applicants who could not be accepted because of limited team berths.

The board also announced that purchase of baskets for portable use was still being studied and that the most inexpensive and most practical equipment will be bought.

The department took in a total $1,437 in fees, including $566 for 95 plumbing permits. Seventy-seven electric permits accounted for another $297 in receipts.

Good Government Lead Asks For Public Hearing

Robert Hall, chairman of the East Haven Citizens for Good Government group, said today that he "regretted that the public has not been invited to participate in the discussion on revising the Board of Finance."

"I am sure that this was an oversight by Mr. (Matthew) Anastasio and not the result of a desire to exclude the public," he said, "but there are private citizens, and the CGG is included, who would like to have an opportunity to express their own ideas."

Mr. Hall announced that the CGG will meet at 8:30 tomorrow (Friday) night in the home of Jack O'Donnell, of 2 Arthur Rd., to discuss the proposed revision as outlined in the newspapers.

In addition, he said, the group will take under advisement a letter from D. Charles Bonasolell, director of the Redevelopment Agency, who has offered to speak on the proposed Monaghan redevelopment project.

Mr. Bonasolell's letter praised the Citizens for Good Government, stating that the group could provide valuable assistance in promoting the town's welfare.

Chamber Of Commerce To Consider Change Of By-Laws Tuesday

The East Haven Chamber of Commerce will meet Tuesday evening at 6:30 in the Adam House Restaurant, on Main St. The special meeting will convene for the purpose of considering action upon important proposed changes to the constitution and by-laws of the chamber.

After the meeting the board of directors will hold its regular monthly meeting, according to Herman A. Schaff, secretary.

Included in the changes are an increase in annual dues to $15, except for civic members whose dues are to be eight dollars per year.

To section two of the by-laws defining membership, a paragraph will be added classifying "civic members" as all those who "are not engaged in established business enterprises of any nature within the East Haven boundaries."

All other members are to be classified as retail, professional, services, or industrial members.

Old Newspaper Tells Of Negotiations On Annex Transfer

A first-hand account of negotiations of a town meeting on the annexation by New Haven of a portion of East Haven, came to light recently in a copy of an old newspaper which a local family has had in its possession for a number of years.

The copy, the March 17, 1881 issue of the old New Haven Palladium, a weekly was brought to Miss Zita Matthews' civics class in the High School by Leon Shillinsky, freshman student, of 32 Casey Beach Ave.

The old paper, brittle with age, gives three separate accounts of the transfer which reduced East Haven's territory by about a third and its population from about 3,100 to about 1,000.

For a detailed account, see feature on inside page.

Senate Could Kill Bill Opposed By Local Democrats

A political battle-royal is in the cards if Democrats and Republicans fail to reach agreement on the latter party's proposal to amend the Board of Finance act and make this board elective. Leaders of both parties are due to go into conference tomorrow evening to hash over the controversial proposal.

The Republicans, headed by Town Chairman Matthew Anastasio, are intent on a change which would make the Board of Finance an elective body independent of the first selectman. They also wish to restrict membership on the board to those who are taxpayers as well as voters.

First Selectman Frank Clancy is convinced that the proposed measure is aimed at limiting his powers as the town's chief administrator. He is also convinced that the GOP proposal is aimed at removing from the Board, Leslie Redfield, who has fallen into disfavor with some Republican elements — particularly because of his personal friendship for the Democratic first selectman.

Promises Fight

At any rate, Clancy, who will not attend tomorrow's meeting, has declared that he will "fight this thing all the way." "I'll not let the way in, I'll fight it all the way in," he said.

With a Democratic majority in Hartford and a Democratic majority in the Senate any bill for revision of the Board of Finance that might be introduced by the local GOP state representatives would stand a small chance of success in the legislative mill.

Some Republicans concede privately that a failure to win Democratic agreement on revising the Board of Finance would limit severely the chances of effecting legislation aimed at such changes.

Home Try Not Mentioned

The same changes might be initiated under the so-called "home rule" provisions for amending or replacing charters and special acts by a two-thirds vote of the entire membership of its legislative body" in accordance with Sections 214 c in the 1953 supplement of the General Statutes. Such an action would need to be ratified by a majority of at least 26 percent of the voting population at a special election.

However, this method has not been discussed in a newspaper debate which had broken out after Mr. Clancy labeled the Republican proposal as being "hijacked" on him.

James F. Gartland, Democratic town chairman, has agreed, however, to meet with the Republicans on the proposed revision. This, after objecting to those provisions which would separate the first selectman from the Board of Finance.

A committee composed of Town Counsel Richard Reilly, Charles Copeland, Salvatore Longobardi, John Simon, and James Milano will accompany Mr. Gartland.

On the Republican side are Judge Vincent Fasano, Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Taylor, Jr., Deputy Judge Clifford Sturges, and Probate Judge Edward L. Reynolds, who have studied the proposal.

No Draft Exists

Apparently there is no ready draft of the proposed new act. For this reason Democratic leaders have been reluctant to make more than general comments on it.

However, it is believed that what the Republicans have in mind is patterned after the seven-man elective board which Guilford has recently acquired by special act. Instead of the seven-man board, however, they would favor a five man body.

Restore Harmony

The Planning and Zoning Commission is in some danger of being torn by differences which arise, probably, not so much out of political considerations as they do out of personal feelings of pride.

The new chairman, Jerome Grady had evoked, unwittingly, feelings of resentment from the now minority members by a statement which implied criticism of the retiring chairman although Mr. Grady had privately indicated that he had not intended such criticism.

In addition, the Democratic members may have created further resentment in their actions by which they assume control of the board at a moment when it reads for final approval the town plan and zoning regulations which had been under preparation for some time.

The reaction of the Republican members is a natural one. For whatever criticism might be leveled at the Zoning Commission in the past, it must be admitted that those things that have been accomplished have taken a great deal of time and effort on the part of the few who took the commission's business seriously.

With respect to that, no one can match Mr. Miller's record for devotion to duty. Therefore it would be wrong to expect any more than a membership with a large amount of credit for what has been accomplished up to this time.

There appears to be no basic disagreements between the majority and minority membership on the board with respect to actions to be taken to improve the town's zoning plan and code. In fact, there appears to be a wide outgrowth of a general agreement about what must be done.

The news is confident that the new chairman will find a means of welding the feelings of the entire board membership into a general policy of concerted effort. He can do this as expeditiously as possible. This can be done by the simple device of giving credit whenever and wherever it is due, without regard to party labels.

Reader Voices Opposition To Elective Board Of Finance

An Open Letter to Mathew Anastasio, GOP Town Chairman

January 11, 1954
The anxious attention of the Board of Finance to amend the Board of Finance act deserve scrutiny and analysis in view of his announced purpose of obtaining more basic, less ineffectual administration of town finances. His purpose is deserving of praise but his conclusions and recommendations are basically and inherently unsound.

Winning the New Haven Board of Finance is an application of the type of an application to amend the Board of Finance act deserve scrutiny and analysis in view of his announced purpose of obtaining more basic, less ineffectual administration of town finances.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

As Ed Wynn once said, "In Hollywood the difficult to tell the difference between a genius and a guy in the midst of a nervous breakdown." And there are innumerable instances in life which illustrate the difference between the two.

At the same time it was not necessary for the town to liquidate this debt but in fact arguments were presented in this direction.

But it is both useless and silly to argue from hindsight. What East Haven might have been had it followed the lead of other municipalities is a matter which remains a mystery.

What has often been reported and commented upon before has now been investigated and summarized by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. That international communism had for the past 15 years worked to arouse the American Negro, incite him to revolution, and hold out the prospect of a "separate state" to be located in the Deep South; and that the Negro had been misled by the communists' blandishments, confided that his problems could be worked out within the framework of American institutions.

Coming as it does from an investigating body which during most of these years has been concerned primarily with the dangers of communism, this report has added force. The communists' endeavor and the Negro's refusal make an episode in history the significance of which can hardly be overestimated.

Where in the United States would there be found a seemingly more fertile field in which to operate than in the area of Negroes? Here, with a few spectacular exceptions the seed has failed to sprout.

It would be a great mistake to think that communism has never in its attempt to reach the Negro—just as it would be a fatuous error to assume that, particularly come a time of excess unemployment, the Communists would refrain from trying again to control organized labor.

But the story of both attempts gives evidence to the faith that the opportunity for evolution, even though less than wholly realized, exists a stronger appeal than does plotting for revolution. And it pays a fine tribute to the leadership of Negroes have had since they set free. From The Christian Science Monitor

The composer, whose efforts in that direction have been pursued as an avocation, first tried his hand by writing "Stars Over Manhattan" for the High School Glee Club.

James J. Hamilton, the National Commander of the Jewish War Veterans, asserted this week that the Ladejnsky case "just scratched the surface of cases where anti-Semitism has been the prime factor in the removal of certain individuals as security risks."

Hamilton made the statement in a letter to the members of the American Legion in New York City, which was held in a hall on Monday night.

Old Weekly Tells Of Annex Negotiations In 1881

Selectmen Came Under Fire

East Haven officials who took part in negotiations leading to the transfer of the Annex to New Haven came under fire although their actions were later sustained at a special vote, according to items appearing in an old newspaper dug from a private collection.

The paper, a copy of the old New Haven Weekly Palladium dated Thursday, March 17, 1881, carries several accounts of meetings connected with the annexation. The transfer is mentioned in order to give New Haven to assume the $180,000 town debt which had accrued (other accounts say from the building of five bridges and from the "liberal" payment of the town's quota of soldiers for Union forces in the Civil War).

Assumed Entire Cost.

According to "History of East Haven," New Haven subsequently assumed the entire cost of the debt which amounted to some $200,000. "This was after East Haveners voted, in a special election, 301 for to 85 opposed, in the unaffected portion and 123 for to 9 opposed in the annex portion on the transfer. This election was held on May 2, 1881.

The negotiations brought criticism from several prominent persons in the town at a "citizens' meeting," the previous Monday afternoon, according to an account headed "Annexation Agitation - Lively Times in the Town Hall at East Haven Center." The chairman becomes disgusted and leaves the Hall - "The Meeting Announces Its Ultimatum."

Lyman Grannis said that what the people wanted was light and he wished that Selectman Childsey, who was present, would inform the meeting.

Mr. Childsey, in continuing, mentioned the scene before the joint board last Friday evening. "I sit on the left," he said, "and was placed in a pretty situation. When the vote was taken on the annexation proposition, there was no use for me to say anything, as all the others were against me, so I said 'yes,' but in five minutes I cursed myself for doing it. Although it has since been said by some that I was bought, I deny it. There ain't no man in East Haven got more money enough to do it."

John W. Thompson said he was not in favor of annexation. He was sorry the town had sunk low enough to wish to sell off a portion of its (sic) fair heritage and leave an obligation.

Selectman Childsey wanted a committee appointed to go before the legislature and object to any boundary except the one reaching to Morris's Creek.

The question being put there was none in favor, and only three or four voted no.

ever heard of a single New England town being sold out to another town like 100 slaves. God forbid. I wish a motion would be put objecting to the negotiations being carried on by the selectmen.

William Jacobs spoke in regard to the several propositions that had been made. "One half, if not more, of the town people," he continued, "are in favor of annexation to the promised land. They have already their ascension robes on, and seek the kingdom coming." They will not be satisfied to stay. "I certainly oppose New Haven's helping herself to our territory."

Chairman Thompson addressed the meeting. "God knows," he began, "what we've come together for. I was opposed to this measure from the first. One of our selectmen has said that he would not let the territory go if New Haven would take our whole debt and give us $50,000 more."

Negotiations On Annex Reported

On page two, under the head, "Annexation In Earnest - New Haven and East Haven Selectmen Meet and Make a Long Stride" an article describes the negotiations which took place the previous evening on an agreement for transferring the territory which consisted of a third of East Haven.

All the selectmen of East Haven and all those of East Haven met together last evening to talk over the proposal to annex a part of the town of East Haven to the town of New Haven. The questions were concerning the division of East Haven's indebtedness (sic) of about $180,000 and the boundaries of the proposed annex.

East Haven's original plan was to have New Haven take $100,000, leaving $15,000 to the annex and $5,000 to what remains of the old town. This was answered by a suggestion from New Haven that this town take $155,000, leaving $33,750 to the annex and $11,250 to the old town. New Haven subsequently suggested a compromise of having the annex take $4,000, the old town $5,000, and New Haven $135,000.

Mr. Andrew of New Haven

Thereupon Chairman Thompson took his hat and marched down the aisle, crying out three or four times in an excited manner "Let's go home!" and he stalked out the door, and William Jacobs was appointed chairman in his place.

After more discussion William Jacobs, Lyman Grannis and S. W. F. Andrews were appointed a committee to act with Selectman Childsey in all matters concerning the annexation project.

The account ended with a report that it was finally voted to consent to "no line east of a line running from the mouth of Morris's creek to Thompson's bridge."

In an adjoining story titled "A Line Agreed Upon" and subtitled "The Selectmen of the Towns of New Haven and East Haven Agree Upon a Plan of Annexation - The Line Described and a Map of the Proposed Annex Given." The paper carried an account and map of the final agreement which was signed by F. S. Andrew, James Reynolds, Franklin H. Hart, selectmen of New Haven, and Hudson B. Forbes, J. C. Bradley and Samuel Childsey, selectmen of East Haven.

thought that as the annex was the district which would be the most benefited, it was no more than right that the territory should assume the increased amount.

Chairman Feldman requested the East Haven selectmen to state the boundaries of the territory they proposed to annex.

Selectman Childsey answered that the line would begin at the "creek," then run to the "dike," then follow up the creek to the foot of Beacon Hill, and then go to a fence on the Curtis farm, so called, the other end of the boundary to be determined as New Haven should decide.

Upon request of one of the members, Selectman Andrew read the letter of H. J. Prudden defining the boundaries which that gentleman thought the most advisable, viz: that the boundary extend to Morris's creek instead of Thompson's bridge, the creek being a natural boundary.

Selectman Childsey said he should object to that boundary, as East Haven might just as well give up all the town and be done with it.

Selectman Forbes inquired whether if East Haven should relinquish the territory in dispute, the other part of East Haven's proposition would be acceptable.

Selectman Fote thought the thing had been pretty well talked over, and that one of two things should be done, either East Haven should accept New Haven's proposition, or New Haven should accept East Haven's offer.

Selectman Forbes thought the matter of the boundary line could be fixed without any controversy. After consulting the people who pay the taxes, the selectman of East Haven had come with a fixed sum which they could not vary.

Selectman Childsey said that he did not know that any other boundary was proposed than Morris's creek and that he should strongly object to the additional territory of South End being taken in.

After recess Selectman Hart offered the following proposition which was unanimously adopted by the joint board:

Voted, That the propositions of the selectmen of the town of East Haven for New Haven to assume $100,000 of the indebtedness of the town of East Haven be accepted and that a committee should be appointed by each board to consult (sic) counsel and have a bill presented to the legislature now in session whereby this subject can be presented to the two houses for approval; provided, also, that the majority of each board shall establish the boundary line.

The joint board then adjourned. The New Haven board subsequently met and a committee consisting of Selectman Andrew, Hart, and Reynolds was appointed to consult counsel and to draw a bill for presentation to the legislature.

The committee (will?) consult with the East Haven authorities this morning at (nine?) o'clock.

Rules Of Fair Play Issued By Biddy Basketball League

Because the primary purpose of the Lion's Biddy Basketball League is to promote character building of young boys, a set of rules for good sportsmanship has been set up by the league's board of governors.

"We respectfully ask that players and fans alike take heed of these rules and observe them at all times," said Coach Frank Cristanti, chairman of the board. "The aim of these rules is to help

Biddy Basketball Booster Fund Rises To $190.50

Contributions to the Lions' Biddy Basketball League booster fund continued to climb, although at a somewhat slower pace, last week and have attained the total of $190.50, according to Ralph Castellon, chairman of the fund.

The following up to the last meeting of the league's board of governors completes the list of names of contributors who have donated to the fund. Booster stickers are available from members of the board of governors of the league.

Contributions have been received from: Connellet Steel Company, Arthur Cordes, Jack Murray, Anthony De Mayo, Chris Carr, Herman Johns and Mrs. William Spencer.

Because sponsors have been obtained for eight teams, booster funds will be used for the purchase of portable equipment for the league. Biddy Basketball requires the use of lower baskets for teams which are composed of boys not older than 13 years.
