

Author Charles Harvey

Charles Harvey's life blends humor, dedication, and a love for the simple joys. A proud Virginian by birth, Charles spent much of his career as a manufacturing engineer in Connecticut, punctuated by memorable stretches of unemployment that only added to his colorful outlook on life. Known for leading the company golf league for nearly two decades and winning accolades in local bowling circuits, he's also cherished at home, where he earned the coveted title of #1 Dad from his two sons. In retirement, Charles enjoys writing, keeping a vigilant watch over his lawn, and eagerly awaiting the daily mail at his home in Durham, CT.

'Xylene X Band' is the story of how the New Joe learns to live Joe's life, and, to a certain degree, how Joe's life adapts to his new personality. But to truly live Joe's life, New Joe must develop the skills, and they will be severely tested by the upcoming 'Xylene' tour. More information about the book can be found on xylenexband.com.

Mr. Harvey will have copies of Xylene X Band on hand to sell at the Connecticut Author Showcase on Saturday, November 15 at the Hagaman Library. The cost of the paperback is $18. The cost of the hardcover is $28. He accepts cash or checks.
